Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

ALWAYS USE OUR

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

INCREASED PROFITS

So soon as you start going by this book you will find your profits increase. This book explains how the big profits are made—the right stock to get hold of, the best ways to house, care for, feed and train Canaries; it shows clearly what are the points experts look for, and how to bring them to perfection in your own birds, and in this way increase the value of your pets, either for exhibition purposes or for the sale market.

BREEDING AND HOUSING:

Specialists tell all about these important subjects. What are the best breeds to buy, where to get them, how to keep them in health, the signs of ill-health and how to treat ailments. All these things are in the book.

The right kind of aviary, and all points of indoor and outdoor keeping are explained in full detail. In short, everything necessary to brilliant success and big prizes.

THE FREE BOOK:

In the superb free book, which all may have on application, further description is given; it is illustrated and worth sending for on its own account.

AN APOLOGY

for a bird is useless to you. It costs no more to keep a good bird than a waster but the pleasure derived is infinitely greater. If you are looking for a thoroughly healthy reliable bird, please give me one trial. The descriptions of birds given below are guaranteed absolutely correct in every particular, as I do not believe in trying to induce custom by foolish exaggeration or nonsensical fairy tales. SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealywrens? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 2½d., from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

HARRY ALLEN, THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING

MY BOOK OF SECRETS, ONE SHILLING

IT IS the best book published of its kind; it gives you the correct rules of singing contests; it tells you the cause of soft moult, and the only cure for it; it tells you how to train Linnets, Canaries and Larks for contests, and how to make them sing at one another; it tells you how to make Larks, Linnets and Blackbirds sing in five days, how to make Nightingales sing with full, loud voice, and all Softbills, and how to save Goldfinches from dying and make them sing; it tells you how to make Linnets sing at one another with their wings down. This book has saved thousands of birds their lives; will be sent by return of post for 1/-. Cock Thrushes and Blackbirds, singing with full voice, 3/- and 3/6; a few hand-reared ones, sing indoors or out, with quality notes, a treat to hear, 5/-; and one, a real champion, can be heard 100 miles away, 7/6. Beautiful cock Larks, finger-tame, singing with full voice, daylight and gas-light, 1/6 and 2/-; a few hand-reared ones, right for contest singing, will sing anywhere, singing all day long, real champions, 5/6. Real Siberian cock Goldfinches, the finest I have seen this season, 5/- and 6/-, sure prize winners under any judge, 7/6; and one, fit for the Palace, with all show points, 10/-. Real English Peartree cock Goldfinches, the largest in England, grand broad heads, singing hard all day, 3/6; sure prize winners for the bench, the same that have won all over England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, 5/-; and one, a real topper, cannot beat, 7/6. Very large cock Bullfinches, splendid birds, real pictures, 3/- and 4/-; sure prize winners, 5/-; splendid hens, 2/-; Russian hens, splendid birds, 3/-, 4/- and 5/-; Russian cocks, 4/-, 5/-, 6/- and 7/-; splendid German hen Bullfinches, very large birds, finger tame, 2/6; German cocks, 4/6 each; all the above are sent out in willow cages. Chaffinches, Greenfinches, Bramblefinches, Mealy Redpolls, 2/- a pair; sure prize winners for the bench, 2/6 each. Linnets from the same place as the champion Linnet of the world, they can run as long as any German Canary in England, 1/6 each; there has one just been sold lately for £8; these are the birds that made me my name. Linnets taught by the champion Linnet of the world, singing hard all day, right for catching or contest singing, with new cage and my book of secrets, 3/6; and some real champions, with quality notes, 5/-. Splendid Siskin and Canary Mule, can win at once under any judge, a real beauty, 15/-, and he is singing with full voice. Linnet Mules, with pure Linnet song, 10/- each. Goldfinch Mules, real pictures, with fierce Finch song, 8/6 and 10/-; they are all singing mad. Beautiful Talking Amazon Parrots, real talkers, 35/-, £2 and £2 10/-; they cannot be beat at double the money. Hundreds of foreign birds in stock. Please state wants. Aviaries and Parks supplied. Hull's Leading Bird Specialist

Any man with a 3d. stall in market, shivering for his daily bread, can call himself the leading dealer, but to prove it when you visit the city is another matter. Now I do not claim any foolish titles, nor have I any connection with such, but I claim to have the largest bird premises of any dealer in Hull, and by far the largest and best collection of birds to be found here. All I ask is a visit from you, then you will be convinced my birds are not cooped up in little back cages, nor are they kept in a little stuffy shop, but in large, well-ventilated, out-door bird-rooms and aviaries. Every bird sent out is guaranteed healthy and as advertised. If they do not prove so, return them, and will willingly exchange them or return your cash. I am patronised by all the leading exhibitors. I dare say hundreds of you know Mr. Medley, of Hull, one of our best British bird judges. I have sold this gentleman over £6 worth of birds in five weeks, and he does not buy rubbish, but good birds. Ask him what he saw in one room alone; he will tell you, over 200 birds. I have also just received an order from Mr. Reading, Beckton, for £23 worth of British and Siberian birds for his aviaries. This is the second lot I have supplied to this gentleman. I am sorry I could not get all birds off last week, as it was a record week. I sent birds off every night last week, barring Saturday; over 70 on Friday night alone, but those that did not get them will have done so before this, with satisfaction. Up to the time of writing this advert. I have received 37 orders, 18 of which are from Scotland alone; repeat orders and testimonials arriving every post. They know where they get best value for their money. This is only a few out of over a hundred received last week. "Mexbury, Brackley, Northants.—Dear sir—Siberian Bullfinch arrived safe, and I was greatly surprised to see such a large fine bird; I cannot thank you enough for selecting me such a splendid bird.—H. S. Rayler." "New Sheldon.—Dear sir,—The Siberian Goldfinch arrived safe; am very pleased with him; he is a real giant; I thank you very much for honest dealing.—R. Swan." "7, Gerrard-st., Lancaster.—Dear sir,—Birds arrived quite safe; am highly pleased with them.—T. Fisher." "46a, South-st., Inner Levin, Methil, Fife.—Dear sir, birds to hand safe; am well pleased with same.—T. Bond." "No. 2, Calluna-rd., Tonyrefail, Glamorganshire.—Dear sir,—Birds arrived safe; not a bit the worse for the long journey, and I can say I am more than pleased; many thanks for straight dealings and quick despatch; I shall know where to send in future.—D. Dares." Now, gentlemen, I could fill this paper, but I don't wish to keep other adverts. out. I have the following in stock:—One grand cock Waxwing, feathered like wax, can win anywhere, 25/-; also a grand pair of fine Grosbeaks, in grand condition, feathers shine like silk, 30/- the pair; and a splendid Yellow-faced Amazon, £2; Siberian Bullfinches, real giants, in grand feather, cocks or hens, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6; and a few extra specials, 7/6 and 10/6 each; I also have the largest stock of Siberian Goldfinches ever seen in one lot in Hull; these don't come to me in half-dozens, but in hundreds, therefore I have a better chance of selecting you a good bird than those buying small quantities. I have a grand lot, extra large, 4/6, 5/6, 6/6; and a few picked out to win and to moult winners, 7/6 and 10/6 each; I will freely give any man in Hull £20 that can show one quarter the quantity or quality as I have. Monster Siberian yellow cock Greenfinches, 2/6 and 3/6 each; Mealy Redpolls, real giants, well pencilled, make winners, 2/6 each; a few bit smaller, 1/-; Lesser Redpolls, 1/- each; Bramblefinches, Chaffinches, and Yellowhammers, 1/- each; picked for showing and to moult winners, 2/- and 3/- each; cock Linnets, 1/- each, on full loud song; a few picked for show and to moult sure winners, 2/6 each; also a monster hand-reared Corn Bunting, can win anywhere, 5/6; very large cock Linnet Mule, a sure winner, 12/6; another grand singer, 10/6; also a large dark Yellow Goldfinch Mule, a grand show bird, only 10/6, on full song; also a monster cock Greenfinch Mule, 1913 bred, another moult will win anywhere, 10/6; grand Mules for singing, on full loud song, 5/6 and 6/6 each; cock Larks, singing, 1/- and 2/- each; also a grand cock Blackbird, tame, and in fine feather, 2/6; Leipzig Rollers, the best imported this year, 7/6, 8/6; and a few extra good, deep bass rolls, and many other grand changes, 10/6 and 12/6; hens to match, 1/6 and 2/6 each; Norwich or Yorkshire from the best strains in England, 8/6, 10/6, and 12/6 pair; Border Fancies, winning strain, 6/6 and 7/6 pair; Crests, 10/6, 12/6 pair; hundreds of common feeding hens, 12/- per dozen, or 1/6 each; also grand fox terrier pups, 5/- each; if there is anything you want in the bird or animal line, write to me; all sent on approval at my risk; easiest of easy terms by joining my birds club; particulars, stamp; distance no object: John Day, The Aviaries, Porter-st., Hull.

WANTED, two pairs Norwich, good size, type, and quality; will give £10 for really good birds; approval: Clark, Hairdresser, Broad-st., Peterhead (1157)

The kind so often sought, often advertised, but seldom obtained.

Good type, style and colour. A really grand lot, including the entire stock (except Breeding) of a well-known old Crystal Palace Exhibitor and other private exhibitors. Birds that some would charge you 20% per cent. more for; and some they would not sell at all, except at prohibitive prices.

Cocks, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/-. Hens 7/6, 10/6, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-. Including some evenly marked of both sexes. Many of these can win. Have on approval and make the comparison with the so-called "wonders" and so-called strains.

Few prices of others here given: Cocks, 5/6, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6. Hens 3/-, 3/6. Pairs 8/6, 10/-6. Cages 3d. (See my advert. on page 12.)

Patronised by every leading Crystal Palace judge this last 30 years, including Judges Battye, Barnes, Roe, Robson, Vardy, Davies, Russell, etc., etc.—Sandiford, Canary Breeder and Judge, Preston; also at 89, Sclater-st., Shoreditch, London.

I KNOW IT'S RUDE

to point, but I must point out to you the very special qualities of Weber's Leipzig Rollers, as imported solely by myself. For 22 years the breeders have devoted the whole of their skill to improving the song of this strain, and the result is round about perfection. They have none of the monotony of the ordinary Roller about them, their song being made up of a splendid variety of ever changing harmonious music, and this song they will retain during their whole lives, not merely for one year only. They are particularly strong and hardy, and thoroughly acclimatised before sent out. At present I have an exceptionally large stock (over 900) of these Leipzig Roller cocks, all in full song day and gaslight, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, waterbubble runs, soft roulades, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, gong and flute notes, etc., and guaranteed entirely free from any harsh, objectionable notes whatever, price 7/- and 8/- each. Special bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and bubbling water tours, 10/6 and 12/6 each. I also have a limited quantity of very special contest Rollers; these birds are of purest blood Germany can boast of, and are gems of very first water, fit for immediate contesting, 15/-, 17/6 and 21/- each. Leipzig Roller hens, 2/3 each, 4/- couple. No contest Roller hens yet. For those who like a loud, noisy singer, I have a splendid lot of free singing vigorous Hartz cocks in full loud song, day and gaslight. These are particularly good-looking birds, and will stand any amount of cold; just the thing for public bar or coffee house, etc.; price 5/- each; Hartz hens, 3/6 couple. Special travelling cages, 3d. extra. All safely and warmly packed with water and seed for 48-hour journey and sent on full week's trial at my sole risk, either on receipt of cash or deposit system of CAGE BIRDS, and money fully and freely refunded if every satisfaction not given. See following few letters and notice full address and date to each: "83, Cobham-rd., South Park, Ilford, Dec. 8. Sir,—Referring to birds from you a week ago, the cock bird has now begun to sing very nicely. I also beg to acknowledge receipt of hen you sent to replace one that died (owing to delay on railway.—W.G.). This is first transaction I have had with you, and in addition to giving me every satisfaction it has proved that I have been dealing with a straightforward business man. I shall not hesitate to send to you again. Yours, J. Chepeck." "Stonyhurst College, nr. Blackburn, Dec. 4. Sir,—A word to let you know how highly satisfied I am with Roller you sent me. His song is so soothing to the mind and quite different from that of other birds, whose song consists of a short, monotonous squeak, and thanking you for honest dealing. Yours, S. de Freitas." "1, Princess-sq., Longport, Nov. 28. Sir,—Birds arrived safe, and highly pleased with them. Yours, J. Joynson." "11, Gethon-rd., Penygraig, Nov. 30. Sir,—Received Leipzig Roller in pink of condition. I thought I had some good singers, but he knocks them into a cocked hat, and has secured you another order. Yours, T. Watkins." "Thorpe Terrace, New-rd., Luddenden, Nov. 25. Sir,—Roller to hand on Wednesday. He commenced singing as soon as unpacked, and for beauty of song I have yet to find his equal. I am perfectly satisfied, and wish to tender my sincere thanks for your straightforward dealing. Yours, Wm. Murgatroyd." Please note, all Roller cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig," and as I am sole importer of this strain no other man can sell as much as one feather unless he first purchases it from me. I publish but a very few of the testimonials I receive, but the Editor has frequently examined bundles of them which have never been published. (1111)

GENUINE SONGSTERS

For many years I have supplied thousands of customers with the best singing Canaries that have ever been heard. If you require a genuine, reliable singing Canary I invite you to come and inspect my stock and select one for yourself, any day except Sunday. If you cannot come allow me to send you one on seven days' approval. You can see the quality and hear its song before deciding to keep it. I guarantee every customer satisfaction. I have many hundreds of unsolicited testimonials open for your inspection. The following is a sample of the many received this week:—23, Comer-terr., Cockfield, January 3rd, 1914.—I have given the Roller a fair trial and am pleased to say that we are more than satisfied. Many of my brother fanciers acknowledge he is a first-class songster at a reasonable price.—R. Heckley. Please remember that I import all my Rollers direct from the best and most reliable breeders, and can give the best possible quality for money. Every bird is tested as to its singing qualities before being dispatched, thus avoiding your disappointment. BREEDERS' CARDS.

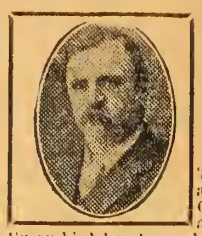
MESSRS. AMBLERS, Champion Yorkshire breeders; finest strain in the world, which is proved by the champions we have bred, sold, and exhibited for over 30 years, winning thousands of prizes and championships at leading shows. Three times best in show Crystal Palace. This season have sold some of the biggest champions on the bench. For sale, a few clinking pairs, wonderful length and quality, from 15/- to 60/-; also some lovely hens, full of style and feathered like wax, 7/6 to 30/-. Winners, fit for keenest competition. Better Yorkshires cannot be bought. Approval, cash or deposit. Langton Lodge, Scotton, Knaresborough, Yorks.

BAILEY, winner outright Y.C.C. 20 guinea Challenge Cup, the Y.J. 50-guinea Challenge Trophy, etc., etc.: 46, South View terr., Sandy Lane, Bradford.



65 SPECIALS, 82 FIRSTS, 72 SECONDS, 58 THIRDS.

The above is the record already secured by my birds this season, and they are still going strong. They have also won the N.P.C. Champion Trophy, the O.N.P.C. Champion Trophy, 3rd in Y.C.C. competition, also several silver cups and bowls, gold and silver medals, diplomas, and numerous other trophies. Every bird has been shown in open champion classes only, and in hottest competition. I have also a large number of letters from fanciers all over the country who are winning regularly with birds supplied by me, or bred from my stock.

These FACTS need no comment; they speak for themselves. I am now offering marvellous value in the following varieties:—

CHAMPION NORWICH, THE BULLDOG STRAIN.

Grand, short, thick-set birds, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- each upwards. Matched pairs, personally selected by me for breeding winners, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- to 100/- per pair. Blood is sure to tell in the end, and I am prepared to give a written guarantee that the above are bred by me from my noted strain of winners. I have also a few real good cobby birds bred from other well-known strains at the following prices: Cocks, in full song, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Grand cobby hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Matched breeding pairs, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/- per pair.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Grand, lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, with good position, and in full song, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- each. Erect, racy hens, feathered to perfection, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each. Matched pairs, personally selected, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair.

EXHIBITOIN YORKSHIRES.

I have a few specially good birds, ready for immediate benching, that can easily win their cost in prize-money. Cocks or hens, in clears, ticks, or marked, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Also a few specially matched pairs, bred from the best blood in the Fancy, and personally matched by me for breeding winners, at 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. I have also a few of this season's open winners for sale at a working man's price. Write for particulars.

CRESTS AND CRESTED-BRED.

I am offering wonderful value in this variety, as follows: Crested Cocks, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Crested Hens, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- each. Crest-bred Cocks, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- each. Crest-bred Hens, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- each. Matched Pairs at 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/- per pair upwards. The above are large, massive, feathery birds, and will give satisfaction anywhere.

PURE SEIFERT ROLLERS.

I have a very large stock of these marvellous songsters, and am in a special position to give satisfaction to all Roller fanciers. Kindly note the following prices: Cocks, thoroughly trained and in full rolling song, with many changes of tours, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Genuine Schoolmasters, specially trained for contest singing, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/- each upwards. Hens, guaranteed same pure strain, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6 each.

Grand, healthy Sib. hens, for muling, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 each; Goldfinch Mules, in full song, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- each; Linnet Mules, in full song, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6 each.

Travelling Cages 3d. extra in all cases.

I have also a splendid selection of Border Fancies, Lancashires, Scotch Fancies, Lizards, etc., etc. Kindly remember, I issue an open invitation to all fanciers to call at any time and inspect my stock. You need not announce your visit; come at any time (except Sundays). You will be sure of a hearty welcome and will be shown round my rooms whether desiring to purchase or not.

Any fancier requiring stock is invited to come and make his own selection. To those unable to come I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the kingdom at my sole risk. I will send on 7 or 10 days' approval anywhere, and will guarantee absolute satisfaction to every customer or cash returned in full.

EASY PAYMENTS can be arranged to suit the convenience of genuine fanciers who are not in a position to pay cash. Send a postcard for my free illustrated catalogue, containing much useful information concerning the cage bird hobby.

NORTH WALES C.B.S.

Third annual show held Dec. 26 Assembly Rooms, Carnarvon, with over 320 entries. The room is one to be proud of, staging was at a nice height, well arranged, so that the birds could be comfortably seen, and the management was of the best. Quality ran very high, and some of the winners were entered in numerous classes, and very hard to separate. W. H. Williams won challenge cup with two nominated birds, and R. E. Griffith the Mule or Hybrid and British cup; the former being won outright. Other specials winners were: D. Jones, W. Hughes, W. Nolan, E. Roberts, Herbert Jones, W. H. Williams, Evans and Roberts. Novice classes brought a few fresh ones to the fore. We expected to see a greater number of Norwich, but the type, quality and condition was all that could be desired. Yorkshires were the mainstay, and contained some very prominent winners of rare length and style. Bord. were very fair and quality extra good. Mules and Hybrids were of excellent quality. Foreign were small in number but of fine quality. British were an excellent lot in numbers and quality, several eye openers were staged. Mr. R. E. Griffith went through his work in a very satisfactory manner, ably assisted by Mr. J. W. Jones, and a good band of stewards. Mr. A. Hirst, Accrington, judged, and gave general satisfaction.

NORTH LIVERPOOL.

First annual show held at the Hall, Royal Street, Dec. 26. The society is to be congratulated in securing such fine, spacious and well-lighted headquarters. The show was a splendid success; close on 300 exhibits. British came up particularly strong, over 50 being entered in seven classes. We have to thank our show manager, Mr. Wilkins, and his stewards, Messrs. Foxcroft, Leadbetter, Frankham, Holden, and Sinclair, for arranging everything so satisfactorily. All prize money and specials were paid on night of show. The following won specials: Messrs. Rothwell, Holden, Rawthorne, Mullins, McCoy, Frankham, Battersby, F. Williams, Flentts, Foxcroft, and W. G. Leonards. Special best bird, Mr. Rothwell, well deserving the honour. The show was well patronised by visitors. Mr. A. Wellings judged, and his awards gave complete satisfaction.

NORTH STAFFS R.C.C.

First radius show held Vine Hotel, Newcastle, Dec. 13. Fanciers from all the pottery towns visited the show. Many of them were accompanied by their wives, who seemed particularly impressed by the birds' singing. The committe express their thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Hill for their kindness, to the donors of specials, also to the visitors who all helped to make the show a success. Mr. Leese, Longton, is to be congratulated on winning 1st, 3rd, and special prizes in the young bird class, also 1st in radius class, and special for best bird. Prize money was paid to exhibitors who attended the show, and was dispatched to others within two days. Entries in class for members' young birds were rather disappointing, considering that full prize money and specials for vhc, hc, and c were guaranteed. Class 2, open to North Staffs, was more satisfactory several birds competing that had won at other exhibitions, and many good birds stood cardless. Mr. J. Tomlinson, Newcastle, judged, and his awards gave satisfaction.

GREENOCK, PORT GLASGOW, & GOUROCK.

Annual New Year show, held Jan. 3, in the Boilermakers' Hall, Cathcart Street, Greenock, a very suitable hall, with plenty of light, and most accommodating. Birds were neatly staged on the two-tier principle. The society has the patronage of the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council, and the members feel prond of the honour. The office-bearers and committee, a very courteous and cheery lot, who carried through all arrangements in a very creditable manner, are: Pres., W. L. Stewart; vice, T. Watson; sec., J. Roddin; assist. sec., C. Bryden: treas., M. Service; committee, Messrs. Brown, McDermid, C. Stewart, McKie, Loudan, Bell, and Molley. The entry was fully 200, a slight increase upon last year, and a fine level lot they were; there was a marked improvement in the Scots Fancy classes, both in numbers and quality, the fine team turned out by Mr. Turner being worthy of special mention. Mr. Turner won society's gold badge, Mr. Molley Cameron Cup best British, Mr. Brown the society's cup, and Mr. Loudan the rose bowl. Sec. Roddin, ably assisted by Mr. C. Bryden, had all prize money and specials ready to hand over to winners at close of show. Judges were Mr. D. Hamilton (Hamilton), Canaries; Mr. P. Quiston (Ayr), Brit. and For., and their awards were well received.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

KILMARNOCK.

62nd annual show held Agricultural Halls, Jan. 1 and 2. We were sorry to hear of Mr. Nicholas' team having arrived too late for judging after having come all the way from Swansea. Another regrettable incident was the disappearance of Mr. S. Duncan's well-known Gouldian Finch, the cage being left intact, but the bird gone. There was a good attendance during the afternoon, and some of the winners attracted attention, among the most outstanding were Mr Guthrie's Goldie, truly a grand bird, and Mr. Rae's Bullie, a splendid Britisher, making a fine record for a field-moulted one. Notes were difficult to take owing to the lights being too far from the staging, some of the classes being quite dark. Mr. Blanc, the ever popular secretary, is still at the head of affairs, and his place would be hard to fill, as he is ever on the go. The officials and committee are a hard-working lot, and do their best to make the show a success. Entries were just down on last year. The Crest section did not contain a single entry, while a few Scotch Fancy classes only had one entry. This is to be regretted, as the club issue a splendid classification. Mr. Hamilton judged Canaries, and Mr. Kerr British and Foreign. The awards seemed to please most of the exhibitors, though here and there we heard a complaint.

SCOTS. YELL. CK. (2): 1, Hamilton, nice erect pos., grand thickness through, nice length of wing and side, good solid top, could do with more drive; 2, Deans, erect pose, good top end, nice free drive, plenty of nerve, fails only in subs. BUFF (1): 1, Rae, nice size, good top and drive, slow to draw, in splendid order. PIED YELL. CK. (2): 1, Gilles, grand size, sweet head, fine drive, grand length of wing; 2, Dean, loses only in size, good shoulder and reach, bringing head well down. BUFF CK. (1): 1, Hamilton, very large, good length and shape, fine drive. FOUL (1): 1, Ralston, nice length of wing, takes pose quickly, very nervy. CL. YORKSHIRE UNION OF C.B.S.

Halifax Disqualification Case Finally Disposed of by the Council.

The Council of the above Union met on Saturday, Jan. 10th, at the Market Tavern, Bradford, Mr. H. W. Walsh (President) presiding over an extra large attendance of delegates. In opening the business of the meeting the President took this the first opportunity of wishing the delegates a very happy and prosperous New Year, and hoped that the coming season with the birds would be a most successful one also. The sentiments were heartily accepted by the delegates, who also wished the President in turn a very prosperous New Year. The minutes of the previous meeting being passed as read, the first business of importance was the application for reinstatement, made by Mr. Arthur Radley, of Skelmanthorpe, previously suspended by the Union three years ago. This application was granted by the Council, thus giving him privilege to join the Huddersfield Society, to whom he had applied for membership. A reported case of lending birds for exhibition purposes was enquired into by the Council which emanated from Skelmanthorpe, and this letter of complaint received by the Union Secretary was signed in the name of one of that Society's members, who had denied having ever known or written a letter on the subject at all, and complained that the signature to the letter was forged. The Council also had a letter before them from the person implicated, and he denied having lent any birds for exhibition, having sold them weeks before same were ever exhibited. The Council decided to place this matter into the hands of the Skelmanthorpe Society in order that they may enquire into it and report to the next Council meeting, and a request by the gentleman (whose name was alleged to have been forged for the purpose) that the original letter be handed over to him to make investigation, was granted. Halifax tendered their resignation from the Union, and after discussion it was decided to lay the letter on the table for a month, a motion that same be accepted being defeated. In face of correspondence on this subject, the Halifax representatives were asked the reasons for the Society's decision to resign from the Union, and they made answer to the effect that the case of disqualification had nothing to do with it in any shape or form, a declaration which met with applause, as the notice of motion for the special meeting held to consider the question was given before the annual show was held. This should prove quite sufficient for those who attributed their resignation as due to the disqualification at their annual show. Holmfirth and Dis. also tendered their resignation from the Union, the few members belonging that Society finding it hard to keep together, owing to the Fancy being at a very low ebb in that neighbourhood. This was accepted with regret. It was decided to give the order for supplying gold medals for novice and amateur competition to Messrs. Fattorini and Son, Bradford, at the same price, weight and quality as before. The President and Secretary were elected as representatives of the Union to serve on the Yorkshire Prize Distribution Committee, which event is to be held in March. The Council then dealt with the Halifax disqualification at some length. The Keighley Society were first called upon to offer an explanation as to the letter appearing in CAGE BIRDS of December 20, and the Secretary, who had responded to the invitation to attend along with the Society's two representative delegates, volunteered a statment in which he said that the members of their Society were dissatisfied with the Council because they felt that certain evidence had been held back which ought to be disclosed; also they thought that if a novice had been disqualified, he would have been dealt with more severely, but the President clinched this latter argument by a very forcible illustration as to how the Council had leniently dealt with the novices in cases where there had been no doubt, as the cases taken had been proved and acknowledged; and as comparison he cited cases where the champions had been very severely dealt with. This explanation, of course, satisfied representatives, as also did the statement showing how the case in dispute had been dealt with by the Council. The delegates expressed their disapproval of the manner in which the Society had approached the case, feeling that they ought out of courtesy to the Union to have placed it before the Council to deal with instead of rushing into print; however, the Council were satisfied at the manner in which Keighley had come forward, and after the representatives had expressed themselves as satisfied with the way in which the Council had dealt with the disqualification, this was allowed to drop. The next item was correspondence and replies from persons who had been invited to attend the meeting to disclose any evidence they may possess on the case; not one of them having put in their appearance. The Secretary had also written Mr. H. H. Mitchell, whose article appeared in the issue of January 3rd, wherein he writes: "Is it not a well-known fact that if the proper and whole evidence was given in his support that it would lead to great complication of matters that would not do to be disclosed," inviting him to attend and substantiate these remarks, but he had replied to the following effect: Sir,—Yours of the 6th to hand. I write to say that I cannot accept your invitation to meeting, after the way you have misconstrueted my letter both in your invitation and in your letter in CAGE BIRDS this week. I didn't say in it that it is a well-known fact, but asked the question, 'Is it not a well-known fact,' therefore I have no information to offer you, but may explain through the Fancy Press the reason why I asked such a question." The Council decided that the reply should be published in order that the Fancy at large may see for themselves the attitude of those men who have written as though they could divulge something startling, and yet have not come forward to offer the evidence for the benefit of the Council. Thus are they convinced that the so-called evidence is a pure myth and they passed the following resolution unanimously: "That the Council are perfectly satisfied with the evidence which they have recived to-night and previously in respect to this case, also with regard to all resolutions as passed on the matter, and that from now they will let the case drop entirely. A feeling was also expressed that none of the Union officials should further enter into correspondence on the matter. This brought a lengthy meeting to a close, the President thanking all present for their attention to business.—H. Hill, Sec.

NORTH-WEST GLASGOW C.B.C.

Monthly meeting held at Blythswood Halls, Gt. Western Road, Dec. 18, Mr. Phillips presiding over a good attendance. Nominations of office-bearers for the ensuing year were tabled for next meeting. McStewart, sen. (Cathcart) gave a washing and drying exhibition, putting the bird through in fine style. Much interest was taken in the introduction of the new drying powder used by Mr. Stewart. Quite a lot of questions were put to him, which he answered to the satisfaction of all present. Hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Stewart concluded the meeting.—Wm. Loan, Sec.

SOUTHAMPTON C.B.S.

Meeting held Jan. 5, Waterloo Temperance Hotel. 30 members present, including Dr. H. K. Yeo, vice-pres., who is a keen foreign bird fancier. Rules were framed and arrangements for a members' show, Feb. 25, were discussed. Two new members were made and a pleasant evening was spent. W. L. Page, Hon. Sec.

LAISTERDYKE B.F.A.

Meeting held Jan. 7, Railway Hotel, Laisterdyke. Elections of officers for 1914, Mr. L. Hodgson, jun., chair. and treas.; Mr. J. E. Hudson, vice-chair.; Messrs. Padgett and Swain, trustees; Messrs. LEIGH C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held Jan. 7, Mr. Taylor chair, when a good muster turned up. We had a lot of business to go through. All the officials of the preceding year were re-elected for 1914. Classes were fixed for N.F. and Old Bird Show, but not the dates, it was decided unanimously to change the name from the Leigh and Dis. to the Leigh Cage Bird Society, and open the membership to all comers, four new members were proposed, two from Leigh, one from Farnworth, and one from Daubhill. —R. Charlesen, Sec.

ATTERCLIFFE C.B.S.

Meeting held Jan. 8, at Headquarters, Mr. Havenhand presiding. Mr. Perry gave a very interesting and instructive washing exhibition, which was greatly appreciated by all present; indeed, some of the older fanciers were more interested than the novices. He first demonstrated how he himself washed a bird, and afterwards showed the methods adopted by others he had seen. This was followed by a washing competition for novices, in which several participated. Mr. Harrison secured the prize, a splendid washing brush. A good muster attended, and we made two new members, a number which I trust will be greatly augmented at the next meeting, as we desire and hope to make this the best year in the history of the society; we have arranged a splendid programme.—E. Johnson, Sec.

CHESTER C.B.S.

Annual meeting held "Boot Inn," Jan. 6, Mr. F. C. Parker chair. Mr. Petinger elected a member. The balance-sheet for 1913 was submitted and adopted, showing a balance in hand of £4 1s. 1d. Windsor and F. G. Parker; committee, T. Thompson, G. Wright, E. Richards, W. Woodhine, and T. Gardner. Decided to hold Pair Show Jan. 28. Now is the time for fanciers who intend joining to do so and receive the full benefit. Cups will again be up for competition to be won outright at N.F. show and annual. Subs., 4s. per annum. Full particulars from Hon. Sec.: R. L. G. Simpson, 35, Clare Avenue, Hoole, Chester.

LEICESTER (Hand-in-Hand) C.B.S.

Meeting held White Swan, Jan. 6, Mr. Gibbins presided over a good attendance. Correspondence was dealt with. Messrs. Trengove and Chick elected as judges for open show. Three specials given to the society by Mr. F. J. Green were allotted to novice section for 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, most points gained at right shows. Mr. E. Butler was made a member. Suggested that we have a supper. Sec. to notify members not present. Officers for 1914: Pres., Mr. W. A. Gibbins; vice., Messrs. Hulse, Wood, and Noakes; trustees, Messrs. Hulse and Noakes; treas., Mr. Pelerdy; auditor, Messrs. Day and Sarson; committee, Messrs. Allen, Walton, Sturgess, Laundon, Hale, Jolley, Hayes, Pole, Moores, Kilshy, Gilbert, and Herbert; sec., A. NEW CROSS C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held Headquarters, Jan. 1, Mr. G. Hill, chair, and a good number preseut. Secretaries presented, balance-sheet and report of the past year's work, which showed cash balance in hand of £2 17s. 6d., with assets valued at £5 15s., and debts nil. During the year the society has made 16 new members, purchased two challenge cups, given specials at each of its shows, and in every way has helped the interests of its members, and the Fancy generally. The report met with unanimous approval, and was adopted, and a vote of thanks given to the sec. and other officers. Officers for 1914 were elected: Pres., Mr. Stuart Coates; chair, Mr. G. Hill; vice., Mr. H. C. Humphries; treas., Mr. T. W. Pope; auditors, Messrs. J. Fuller and C. Preece; committee, Messrs. Fuller, Martin, Hall, Gardner, Culham, Childers, Kay, and Pope; secs., Burton Bros., 126, Lee Road, Lee Green, S.E., who will be pleased to hear from intending members. After considerable discussion it was decided to reduce the subscription to 3s. per annum, nomination fee 1s., and we hope this will be the means of getting a lot more fanciers to join. No other society can give better value for money. Our programme for 1914 is a very strong one. We cordially invite fanciers to visit our Pair Show, held People's Hall, Tanners Hill, Deptford, Feb. 5, and earnestly request members to send in all the entries possible in an endeavour to beat last year's record.—Burton Bros., Hon. Secs.

EDINBURGH N.E. DISTRICT O.S.

Financial meeting held Dec. 29, in Free Gardiner Hall, Abbeymount; Pres., Mr. John Gourlay, chair, and a large turnout of members. Sec. submitted balance sheet for the year, the total income being £20, against an expenditure of £13 1s., leaving a balance in hand £6 19s. The auditor's report was well received. Office-bearers were elected: Pres., Mr. T. Purdie; vice, Mr. J. P. Thomson; Sec., R. S. Spence; Committee, Messrs. P. Murray, J. Dalrymple, J. Carrie, S. Boyes, W. Rankin, D. Reid. Auditors, Mr. R. Weir, Mr. J. H. Erskine. Decided to hold annual show first Sat. in Nov. Mr. Thomson moved a hearty vote of thanks to the retiring President.—R. S. Spence, Sec.

Leisbman, Malcolm Baird; auditors, J. Marshall, J. Penman. Next meeting, Jan. 31; enrolling members, going over class list.—W. Clarkson, hon. sec.

CITY OF BELFAST NORWICH, CREST AND YORKS. C.C.

Annual general meeting, held in Clarence Place Hall, May Street, Jan. 3, Mr. Jas. E. Adams, pres., chair. Mr. Wheatley's motion was taken up re the compulsory use of closed rings at the society's shows. The matter was gone into in a whole-hearted way, and after being discussed at considerable length, was defeated by one vote. An amendment to part of rule 26 was also proposed by Mr. Wheatley, that sawdust be used in Yorkshire show cages instead of canary seed, as there is a place in such cages for seed. This was passed. Officers for 1914 were elected: Pres., J. E. Adams; vice-pres., T. E. Wheatley; treas., Walter Connell; committee, Messrs. Teasey, Gray, Boyd, Weir, Carson, Malcolm, and Lavery. The election of judges for our 1914 show was then taken up, and several names of very prominent judges are placed in rotation to be written to. Mr. Robert Webb, Belfast, was proposed for membership.—James Stewart, Sec.

HOUGHTON-LE-SPRING C.B.S.

Meeting Jan. 3 White Lion Hotel. Balance sheet was gone through, which leaves the club in good financial position. Decided to leave the election of officers until Jan. 17, as there was only a poor attendance. Members note special meeting Jan. 17, time as usual.—R. H. Dixon, sec.

MENAI BRIDGE & DIST. C.B.S.

Committee meetiug held Jan. 8 to arrange for forthcoming show on Easter Monday. The following were elected on the committee: Messrs. W. H. Williams, T. Harrison, J. Wilson (Llangoed), W. Hughes, E. Gallichan (Beaumaris), J. Kershaw, W. Williams (Llandegfan), A. W. Huxley, J. Jones, H. Hughes (Local); R. W. Roberts (Portdinorwig) was elected chairman, and O. Jones treas. Will secs. of North Wales shows please note date so as uet to clash.—W. Nolan, hon. sec.

BORDER FANCY C.C.

Annual general meeting held Scottish National Show Rooms, Grassmarket, Edinburgh, Jan. 1. There was a very large attendance. In the absence of the pres., Mr. Smart presided. Balance sheet for 1913 was gone over, which showed income with surplus from 1912 to be £61 16s. 11d., expenditure £47 4s., leaving a balance of £14 12s. 11d., which was considered satisfactory. Messrs. P. McKenzie and H. Bennet, Kelso, were appointed auditors. Mr. Geo. Brown, Leith, was elected pres.; M. Jamieson was again proposed as hon. sec. and treas., but declined to accept, and Mr. Wm. B. Smart was elected. All the delegates were re-elected, and one or two extra for new districts. The first motion was rule regarding ring birds; this created a heated discussion, and it was moved and carried that any club members competing with rung birds shall be disqualified from B.Y.C.C. The next motion was that any society having classification as Scottish National Show an extra medal be granted for Clears, Ticks, Even and Uneven birds, and one for Greens and Cinnamons, this was agreed to. A motion that names of members judging during year be printed on balance sheet, with note of show or shows they have judged was rejected. Decided that all first prize birds at shows which have club medal be put on table and judged for it. A complaint was made regarding large drinkers in two show cages, and sec. was instructed to write the member on the matter. A few new members were proposed and admitted.—M. Jamieson.

Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) judges Rotherham open show on Nov. 20.

The Southern Sea Fisheries District Committee state that cormorants in their district annually destroy £200,000 worth of fish.

If the reader who sent us 1s. for a book on Waxwings will send his name and address we shall be pleased to forward this on to him.

I have taken over the secretaryship of the Boldon Colliery C.B.S., writes Mr. J. Stephenson, 232, Arnold-street, Boldon Colliery.

All prize money won at Kilmarnock Show, Jan. 1-2, has been paid, writes Mr. J. Blaine, Sec.

A correspondent enquires:—"Can any reader of CAGE BIRDS kindly tell me where I can obtain Mr. Knight's 'Pectorine'?"

Will fanciers please note that Blaydon annual show is fixed for Nov. 13-14, writes Mr. Geo. Havver, Hon. Sec.

Liverpool open show has been fixed for Oct. 23 and 24, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Green, hon. secs. Will secretaries please note, to avoid clashing?

Palace Show, Feb. 6 to 10.—Schedules have been posted. Intending exhibitors not having received a copy are invited to apply for one to J. W. Ramsden, 11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, London.

I have been asked by a number of British Bird exhibitors to come out as a judge, and I have decided to do so, writes Mr. H. J. Chick (Nottingham). I am engaged to judge Leicester show, Nov. 6 and 7.

Prize money and specials at Pwllheli show are all paid, I think, writes Mr. W. H. Davies, under date Jan. 7. This is a record for any North Wales show; we have a little balance left.

I was agreeably surprised to see my winning Goldfinch depicted on the front page of CAGE BIRDS last week. I must say it is a great credit to your artist; I wish "C.B." every success.—W. Pringle (Peebles).

Mr. W. Foster, hon. sec. Buckhaven C.B.S., writes that he sent us the date of his show as Nov. 7 in error. The correct date is Oct. 31, as in our guaranteed list. Will other secs. please note?

Abersychan F.S. has fixed the date of its next open show for Dec. 3rd. Will other secs. please take note. All who would like to join us, the coming club, should do so now, entrance 1s., and 6d. per month after.—W. T. Couch, Chairman.

As I have resigned the secretaryship of the Leicester C.B.S., writes Mr. J. Cook, all communications regarding the society should be addressed to my successor, Mr. J. Hardbattle, 22, Abney Street, Leicester. Secretaries please note.

The Sheffield O.S. have decided upon Messrs. J. C. Barnes, H. W. Battye, J. Beswick, W. Mundell, and J. Robson as judges for their next great open show, Nov. 6 and 7. The very spacious and elaborate Corn Exchange will, we believe, be the venue.

Owing to pressure of business, writes Mr. W. Cottingham, I have resigned the secretaryship of Hyson Green C.B.S., and Messrs. Moult and Bown, 34, Monsal Street, New Basford, have been appointed; all correspondence re the Society should be addressed to them.

I beg to inform you, writes Mr. G. Baines, 24, Main-street, Long Eaton, that I have taken over the secretary's duties in connection with the Long Eaton and Dist. C.B.S., and trust that all members will continue to take the same interest in the society's work in the coming year as before.

Having been reading the Scottish National Gossip in CAGE BIRDS, I find you publish Mr. Wilson's name with a Buff hen, which was sold at £4 2s. That is a mistake, as the hen was a Yellow in the 15s. limit, and belonged to me.—Malcolm Sharp (Grahamston, Falkirk.

I was very pleased to see my millighted yellow cock, the Bromley cup winner, having the honour of appearing in last week's issue of your valuable paper. It is a splendid likeness of him, and reflects great credit upon your artist, Mr. H. Norman.—W. Foxen, Bromley.

I have taken over the Secretaryship of the Littleborough Cage Birds Society in succession to Mr. H. Woodhead, writes Mr. Jno. R. Windle, 53, Whitelees Rd., Littleboro', and all correspondence respecting the above Society should be sent to me at 53, Whitelees Rd., Littleborough.

The Woolwich F.S. annual meeting, writes Mr. G. W. Boyce (68, Elm Street, Plumstead), is on Jan. 22nd, at the Rippolson Road Mission Hall, Plumstead. Special invitation given to amateurs. Apply at once for admission at reduced fee of 2s. 6d. for the year. Seven valuable silver cups to be competed for.

Owing to our show held Dec. 26 ending in a loss of close upon £10, writes Mr. J. Wilson, sec. Malton Norton C.B.S., we have been obliged to deduct one-fourth of all prize-money; the balance has been paid. It is the first time in 18 years we have paid less than full money. Hoping exhibitors will accept this as satisfactory in the position we are placed.

The annual pair show of the Leigh C.B.S. will be held on Jan. 24 at 6, Mr. J. W. Cleminson, Preston, judge, who will also give a lecture on the Norwich Plainhead afterwards; everybody invited free. We are having our annual feed and presentation of prizes, Jan. 31, and it is hoped that we have a record number on this night. The tickets are 2s. each.—R. Charleson, Sec.

THANK YOU!

F. CARL.

The Hemsworth and Dist. C.B.S., writes Mr. J. W. Gillings, the sec., has had a fairly good season, but principally all members' shows, as we are not quite wealthy enough to promote an open show again, as we did in January 1912, our first start in the Fancy. I am hoping we shall have another in 1915. Nearly every one of our members takes your excellent paper, and I am sure CAGE BIRDS is well worth reading from any point of view.

Mr. John Rukin, of Rawtenstall, writes:—Thank you for the Diploma, which came safely to hand, a very creditable production. I have had a champion sale so far this season, having sent a trio of Lizards to Mr. Dowler (South Africa), a trio to Mr. Jeffrey (Montreal), and last week a pair to Mr. Guy W. Wilson (Antibes, France). Mr. Dowler had the misfortune to lose one Lizard hen on the voyage. I have got another order for a pair of my winners from Mr. Jeffrey, and also an inquiry for a pair of Scotch Fancy hens. I am also sending out to Mr. Dowler (South Africa) two Lizard Standard show cages.

Re my advertisement in CAGE BIRDS of December 20, writes Mr. E. Baker of Cowes, I have simply been inundated with applications for my birds; so much so that it is absolutely impossible for me to answer all. I think it only fair to take applicants in rotation, according to post-marks. Owing to pressure of business I could not attend to any letters before Christmas. I have received many letters expressing regret at my giving up the Fancy, and begging me to reconsider the matter. I am not giving it up, but simply reducing my stock. I am astounded that one single advertisement could have produced such results, as inquiries have come from all parts. It goes to prove the great popularity of CAGE BIRDS.

Birds in Paper Bags.

In kindly forwarding us a cutting from the "Daily Mail" referring to the practice of selling birds in paper bags, Mr. Geo. Crabb says:—"The writer of the enclosed must be a sentimental ass with more money than brains. If he wants to get rid of more money I should think you can find deserving recipients. I have carried many a good bird home, safe and sound, in a paper bag. Why not? Experientia docet!

A Welsh Fancier's Troubles.

Mr. J. Griffiths (Tredegar) writes:—Diploma to hand, for which please accept my best thanks. I was very pleased to hear I had won the prize for the best Coupon bird in the Yorkshire Champion section at Cardiff, and shall value it the more as it was won at the largest show in Wales. I am sorry to inform you the bird has since died. On New Year's eve I came home from work, and found it on the bottom of the cage. Upon examining it I found both its legs broken. You could guess my feelings. I was bandaging it, when a message came to say my wife was knocked down by a horse and cart. I put the bird down to attend to her. Upon the doctor's examination he found both bones below the knee of the right leg broken. She was removed to the hospital, where, I am pleased to say, she is making favourable progress.

Applications for Crystal Palace schedules should not be sent to us, but to Mr. J. W. Ramsden, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, S.W.

We hear from the sec., Mr. Lightfoot, that all prize-money for Wandsworth F.S. show has been sent out; if anyone has been overlooked, will they kindly draw attention to the matter?

Owing to a misunderstanding at the hall, write Messrs. Forse and Son, hon. secs., Thornhill Road, Leyton, our show will be held Nov. 12 and 13, and not Nov. 5 and 6, as announced last week.

We have just received a good order for fancy fish from Vancouver, British Columbia, which we obtained through the medium of CAGE BIRDS, write Messrs. De Von and Co., the famous firm of importers and exporters, of Bethnal Green Road, London.

We are asked to notify the following changes of address:—Mr. F. J. Green, from Loughborough to 168 High Street, Lowestoft; Mr. W. Booth, from Boardman Street, Hyde, to Royal Oak Hotel, Newton Heath, Manchester.

Prize money and specials won at Aberdeen Ornithological S. show, Dec. 12-13, have now all been paid, writes Mr. J. Bryson, sec. and treas. Officials for 1914 are: Pres., J. Hector; vice-pres., R. J. Robertson; sec. and treas., J. Bryson, 293, Holburn Street; auditors, W. Allison and W. Allan.

We are sorry to hear from Mr. J. W. Gambrill, 56, Cheriton Road, Folkestone, that up to the time of writing he had not received a single entry. The prizes are 10s., 5s., 2s. 6d., with a fee of 1s. 9d.; the schedule was given in detail in the show advert. on page 583 in our issue of 3rd inst.

We have received from Mr. J. C. Bell, sec., the balance-sheet of Border City (Carlisle) O.S. The income for 1913 was £92 16s. 6d. and the expenditure £84 5s. 1d., the result of the year's working being that the balance in hand has been increased from £5 14s. 3d. of 1912 to £14 5s. 8d.

Poor Entry at Boscombe.

We are obliged to extend entries until Saturday's post-mark, 17th, writes Mr. M. Cook, hon. sec., as at time of closing we do not average one per class.

A Good Record.

My Hawfinch, 1st to-day at Scottish National, is the Novice Champion Diploma winner at Matlock, and Open Champion British Diploma at Tideswell. In eight times out it has won 7 firsts and 1 third; not bad for my first year.—W. Bull, Derby.

A Good Response.

The response to our invitation last week for contributions has proved overwhelming. We are quite unable to deal with one-third of all those sent in by our warmhearted friends. Those unpublished in this issue we shall hope to deal with at the earliest possible moment. We hope the senders will not feel unduly disappointed.

Mr. R. Johnstone, sen.

I very much regret to record the death of Mr. Robert Johnstone, sen., one of the oldest fanciers in our district, writes Mr. J. Patterson (Chirnside). After a short illness with influenza, he succumbed to heart failure. Mr. Johnstone was a keen breeder of the Border Fancy, many good birds passing through his hands yearly. He was also an enthusiastic Volunteer (col.-sergt.), and a noted shot, winning many trophies. Much sympathy is felt for his widow and family, in which I know readers of "C.B." will join.

IMPORTANT TO SECRETARIES OF SOCIETIES.

FINAL NOTICE!

We have sent out to the secretaries of all the cage bird societies known to us a printed form, to be filled in with particulars of their clubs for publication in CAGE BIRDS 1914 ANNUAL. In a number of cases these forms have not yet been returned, despite the fact that to be represented in our "Directory" (the only one of its kind) in the ANNUAL is a sure way to obtain applications for membership from fanciers living in the neighbourhood. We beg to notify that Monday next (Jan. 19) is the latest date on which these forms can be dealt with; any received after then will be too late for this year's ANNUAL. The particulars we want most of all are (1) name of society, (2) where the meetings are held, (3) when they are held, and the time, (4) yearly subscription, (5) secretary's name and address. This applies to specialist societies, ordinary societies, Roller Canary clubs, and singing clubs—in fact, cage birds clubs of all kinds.

CLOTH THAT WEARS LIKE LEATHER.

A marvellous holeproof cloth that will not tear, and yet looks exactly as the finest tweeds and serges, has been discovered by the Holeproof Clothing Co., 54, Theobald's Road, London, W.C. They make from these wonderful cloths a well-cut man's suit for only 14s. 9d., breeches 6s., or a pair of well fitting trousers for 4s. 6d.; and if a hole appears within six months another pair is given. See advertisement on page 23, and write for patterns, etc.

THE GRAND FINALE OF "CAGE BIRDS" Championship Competition.

SOME POINTERS FOR COMPETITORS AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.

Schedules of the forthcoming great show at the Crystal Palace are now available (entries close Jan. 24, certain), and particulars of the Grand Finale of our Championship Competition appear on pages 16 and 17 therein. This "final round" is confined solely to exhibitors who have won a Diploma at one or other of our coupon shows held during the past season.

All diplomas have now been dispatched, with the exception of those offered at Gateshead Show, from the secretary of which we have been unable to obtain an official list of either the cash special or diploma winners. Fanciers who may consider they are entitled to a diploma, but which they have not received, should write us at once, giving particulars of show, section, etc. We have not space in this issue to publish the completed list of diploma, etc., winners, but all who care to send us two penny stamps can have a copy forwarded to them.

The Prizes "Cage Birds" Offers.

A Challenge Shield, value £10 10s., for best Coupon Bird in the Show (to be won three times not necessarily in succession, before becoming the property of any exhibitor).

£10 10s. cash, for best Champion Coupon Bird.

£10 10s. cash, for best Novice Coupon Bird.

£78 cash, divided into First Prize, £3; Second Prize, £2; Third Prize, £1; Fourth Prize, 10s., in each of the following twelve sections: (1) Yorkshire Canaries; (2) Norwich Plainheads; (3) Crests and Crest-breds; (4) Border Fancies; (5) Scotch Fancies and Belgians; (6) Greens; (7) Lancashires and Lizards; (8) Any other variety Canary; (9) Mules and Hybrids; (10) British, Hardbilled; (11) British Softbilled; (12) Foreign.

Twenty-four lovely hand-coloured Diplomas; one for the best Champion Coupon Bird and one for the best Novice Coupon Bird in each of the above sections.

Rules for Competitors.

(1) This competition is open only to exhibitors who have won a diploma at one of CAGE BIRDS 1913-14 Coupon Shows, in accordance with the competition rules.

(2) Each competitor may enter not more than four coupon birds in each of the twelve sections in which he has won a diploma. (Note.—Competitors, of course, can enter as many birds as they choose in each section, but not more than four can be selected to compete for our Coupon Prizes.)

(3) Each competing bird must have a CAGE BIRDS Coupon affixed opposite its number on the entry form; also the letters "C.B." must be written opposite it, or "C.B.N." if it competes in the Novice Section of our competition.

(4) Coupons, price 6d. each, can be obtained from CAGE BIRDS Offices, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.; apply early, before entries close. Or, if the time is short, enclose the necessary extra cash with your entry fees to the manager of this show, and he will affix coupons opposite whichever birds you have marked on your entry form. For every Coupon bird, of course, the usual entry fee must be paid to the show officials.

(5) The birds entered may be of any age, and either rung or not rung.

(6) No bird with trimmed, painted or dyed plumage will be eligible to compete, and all entries must be the bona-fide property of the exhibitor.

(7) An exhibitor who has won a diploma need not necessarily enter the same bird for the final competition. By winning a diploma he has the right to nominate and enter not more than four birds in all. (Note Rule 2.)

(8) No exhibitor in the final will be allowed to win more than two prizes with his four entries.

(9) In all cases of dispute arising out of this competition the Editor's decision will be absolutely final and legally binding in every respect, and only upon this understanding will entries be accepted.

All competitors should, of course, take care to enter their birds in the right sections, and, above all, to send their entries in time—there is NO EXTENSION of the date of entries closing at the Palace Show.

Those entering birds in the Novice Section should (to avoid possible disqualification) be quite clear that they are entitled to exhibit therein, according to our Novice rule, which is the same as that adopted by the Palace Show authorities, viz.:—

A novice is a person who has never won a first prize for Canaries, or Mules and Hybrids, or British, or Foreign birds, in a class at any show other than one confined to club members, or residents in the town or county where the show is held, or limited as to the price at which the exhibit is to be sold (price not to exceed £5), or three first prizes in open novice classes. All members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them may have to compete.

The 1914 Booklet of the London and Prov. O.S. is a neat little production, setting out the rules, aims, etc., of that important ornithological society. It may be obtained on demand from the hon. sec., Mr. Charles W. Law, Brimley House, Woodhouse-road, N. Finchley.

What's the Trouble?

Mr. Barry Drew, of York, writes:—"A short time ago I wrote and forwarded the names of officials for the York C.B.S., stating at the same time that I was taking over the duties of secretary for 1914. Now I wish you to delete the names, as through a little friction between one or two of the Fancy, I have refused the office. I am personally sorry this should have happened.

OUR TWELFTH GREAT BIRTHDAY ISSUE OF "CAGE BIRDS."

Of all the birds whose tuneful throats
Do welcome in the verdant spring,
I prefer the Starling's notes,
And think she does most sweetly sing.

Brought from the far Canary's coast,
Nor can the Nightingale afford
Such melody as she can boast.—Allan Ramsay.

A Visit to Mr. Sam Cook the well-known Norwich Fancier

By T. JOHNSON (Southport).

I WONDER if there is a Norwich fancier from Land's End to John o'Groats who hasn't heard of Sam Cook. His has been a name to conjure with in the Norwich fancy for years, far more years than the writer cares to remember. He must be known by repute to thousands, and personally to hundreds of fanciers.

I remember the time when I was young in the Norwich fancy, and when Mr. Cook's name was mentioned by me with awe and almost with reverence. His wonderful strain of Norwich was known to me from the reports of CAGE BIRDS, and the catalogues of shows, but as yet I had never had the good fortune to know him. I was at Manchester show, and I knew that Mr. Cook would be there, so I asked an official of the show if he could kindly point out Sam Cook to me. He looked about, but couldn't just locate him for the moment, "but," he says, "walk round the room until you see a tallish man with a trilby hat on his head, and a smile on his face."

I found him all right. I'm sure I couldn't have found him better if I had had a photograph to guide me; in fact, the only photograph I ever remember seeing of him didn't represent him with that characteristic geniality. I think he must have been anticipating a visit to a dentist when he sat for it, for I never otherwise remember seeing him without his smile. He smiles when he wins, and he smiles when he loses. He also smiles when he draws—his prize money (you bet). He is a fancier whose hobby is not weighed from a pounds, shillings, and pence standpoint. If he is fortunate enough to breed a good bird, he can't be tempted to part, because, as he says, "I like good 'uns."

A Believer in Sunshine.

But these few notes are intended to be less about Mr Sam Cook than about his Norwich Plainheads, and his methods of breeding; and a few days ago I availed myself of an invitation kindly given to run over and see his birds. His birdroom is a spare room indoors with a south-west aspect. He believes in plenty of sunshine in the breeding season. I don't intend to give Mr Cook's methods of rearing in these notes, except to say that he uses the old-fashioned egg and bread, although he frankly admits that his hens might be better feeders and some of his present-day winners would not be alive to-day had not he and Mrs. Cook assisted by hand rearing.

His cages are of the single breeder pattern, and line two sides of his room, while under the window and along the other side are two flights for the youngsters. As soon as I entered the room I noticed specially a big yellow cock, a bird of tremendous size without undue length, thick body and neck, and a great big round head almost an inch wide.

It sounds an exaggeration to say an inch wide, but although I didn't measure it except by the eyes, I honestly believe it to be very little short of an inch across, and, mind you, this was free from browiness or lash. I had admired some of his unflighted yellows at the shows, and noticed the beautiful heads they had, so I couldn't help remarking that it was no wonder he got some good top pieces on his youngsters when he had that sort for stock.

Members of the Wallasey C.B.S. taking a ramble in a likely spot for viewing bird life.

This bird is an old winner, but has gone a bit in the secondaries, else he would no doubt be trotted out. The next bird which caught my eye was the winning clear buff. He was only bred late in the season of 1912, and was never ready to show as an unflighted; but this season his wins are too well known for me to mention here. This bird was bred from two yellows, and, as I have said, late in the season, and is remarkable for his size, colour and beautiful quality of feather.

Strong in Yellow Blood.

Another grand stock bird to arrest my attention was a clear buff, the son of that remarkable and well-known bird, now deceased, the old ticked yellow. He has a massive head, and short thick body, but hasn't the colour nor the glossy plumage of the other clear buff. Friend Cook has a wonderful collection of unflighted cocks, especially yellows; and everyone of them good. There are three clears of tremendous size, possessing grand heads, thick short necks, short bodies and tails and grand silky feather. Any of these could win in first class company.

A grizzle-capped yellow rather took my eye, which had all the qualities of the other three, but, if anything, a better head. Still another was a variegated yellow, a very useful stock bird, big size, but a trifle less thick in body. Amongst his unflighted buffs I noticed the clear that has won so well this season.

Standing out prominently amongst his hens is that wonderful unflighted yellow clear, 1st at Preston, Nottingham, and Bradford National, amongst old hens. To describe her good points would be to fill a page; and I can only say that she has no faults. To my mind she is just about perfect. Another yellow unflighted is the 1st Leeds, 3rd Burnley, and 4th Manchester, since when she dropped into moult. She is a big hen, rare head neck and body; but hasn't the polished feather of the other one.

The unflighted buff hen, 2nd Leeds, 2nd Burnley, 2nd Preston, 1st Warrington, etc., next claimed my attention. This one has rare size, lovely round body, good head and neck, and lovely silky feather. Whenever beaten, it has been by a yellow. Several more unflighted hens were to be noticed, amongst which were the two natural-coloured hens, 1st and 3rd Preston and Sheffield. Quite a lot of lesser lights there were which will make up grand pairs with the extra good cocks which are to be their future spouses. I noticed a good sprinkling of green blood in the room, the sort of green that is almost black, which no doubt accounts for that wonderful colour he has.

The Art of Pairing to Produce Winners

In the course of our conversation I elicited a little information about his methods of pairing, which may be of benefit to readers of CAGE BIRDS. Generally speaking, he pairs yellow to buff; and I gathered that he wasn't quite so enamoured of double buffing as he used to be, because in present competition one couldn't afford to throw anything away in colour, which is undeniably lost by that process. Evidently he believes in double yellowing to get colour and quality of feather, but he must have birds of the right sort for the job, short thick birds of good substance, with no inclination to slimness. He never pairs up two birds with the same fault.

Although he didn't say so, I gathered from his conversation that he didn't keep a breeding record, nor ring or mark his birds in any way, but he is gifted with a wonderful memory, and he could trace any given bird back for nine or ten years. In a reminiscent vein he was telling me which hen this was out of, and which cock was the sire of that, even to the third and fourth generation. (Who would be bothered with closed rings?) In introducing fresh blood he is very particular what he buys and where from. It must have the bluest of blue blood in its veins; and to that he attributes much of his success. He was asked if there was any Crest-bred blood in the winning Norwich of to-day? He answered that speaking for himself, there wasn't any in his stock, and we certainly couldn't see any trace of it in his birds.

Asked which point he found the most difficult to obtain, he answered that in his opinion the head points were the most difficult and the most important, but another difficult point was size without length. Anyone could get size with long necks and barrelled bodies and long tails, but to get size on a short body with real silky feather was a difficult point.

Before leaving with reluctance this wonderful stock of Norwich, I had the pleasure of seeing that wonderful yellow hen of his, now, unfortunately, beyond the cares of this world, and adorning a glass case on his sideboard, flanked on each side by the trophies she helped so much to win. She had only recently come back from the taxidermist, himself a well-known Norwich judge, and she is set up in true Norwich style. I refer to the yellow hen, winner Scottish National, 1912 and 1913, also Glasgow, 1st and special best Norwich, Bolton, 1911, 1st at all principal shows in those two seasons, a real good hen. Speaking about length in Norwich, it is interesting to note that this hen, while being of rare good size, is but $5\frac{3}{4}$ inches in length, three quarters of an inch shorter than is allowed by the N.P.C. standard.

I hope that these few notes will be of benefit to novices; but a peep inside this birdroom, with a few hints from Mr. Cook himself while he handles the birds, every one of which he has bred himself, by the way, will do the novice more good than all the literature ever written on pairing.

THE ART OF STAGING BRITISH BIRDS.

By C. PR.OR (R.pley).

THIS will leave a space of four inches between the right perch and the right end of the cage. One and a half inches of this space will be occupied by the seed trough, which is simply a piece of wood, not less than three-eighths of an inch in thickness and one inch in width, running from back to front.

The cage, you see, has been planned round the perches. Turn any properly tamed bird of the species named into a show cage of this design, and, providing that they are of suitable thickness, he will in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred take the perches easily and naturally, and with all the style he is capable of. The hundredth bird will want half an hour's practice.

The proviso in the foregoing paragraph brings in view another point of the highest importance; i.e., the thickness of the perches. Unless the bird has perches which he can grip firmly and easily, he has great difficulty in keeping his balance. When he is invited to change perches, he hesitates a moment, then flounders across, and, likely enough, topples over. It is impossible for him to be stylish under such conditions, even when he recovers his equilibrium, and so away go half his chances of a prize. No standardization is possible, however, in the matter of thickness of perch, because different birds, even of the same species, have differently sized feet. The rule to be observed is that the perch must fit the foot.

As a guide to what constitutes a suitable thickness of perch it may be taken that the extremities of the foot from the toe-nail of middle front claw to that of the back claw—should encircle a fraction over half, but not so much as two thirds of a round or oval perch. The ideal probably lies halfway between. The perches themselves may be either the turned ones with a boss at one end, which are fastened with screws from the back, and just miss touching the wire front, or neatly finished slightly oval ones of the ordinary description; fastened at the back with a small screw, and resting on the front crossbar in the usual way.

The turned ones are generally to be preferred, but the essential thing is that they should be easy to the bird. Many turned perches are far too hard and slippery for comfort, and the effort required to maintain balance on them is bound to detract from style. Whichever kind is chosen, the softest wood obtainable must be used, and, for the sake of effect, preference should be given to the whitest. Care must be taken in the fixing, so that there shall be no danger of slipping or working loose. Embellishments such as polished metal mountings are not needed, and should not be countenanced.

The Front and the Wiring.

The cage front must be removable to allow of cleaning, and, upon occasion, recolouring. The front made in one section to slide up in grooves, or to come away from the body of the cage by the unfastening of skilfully contrived catches, is by far the best, so long as it is fitted in a workmanlike manner. The wires should not be close together. A closely wired cage at once places a good bird at a disadvantage by obstructing the judge's view of him. Excepting for such small fry as Wrens and Tits, half an inch is too close for anything. Five-eighths will do for Siskins and Redpolls; three-quarters to seven-eighths is about right for the larger Finches and Buntings. A fine gauge of wire should be used, as enamelling will add to its thickness.

In the show cage of the size we are considering the top rail will be half an inch in width, and the bottom one one and a half inches. The only cross bar will run along on a level with the perches, three inches from the bottom. The well proportioned cage permits this—nay, demands it. It (the crossbar) may be perfectly straight or artistically curved—it is immaterial which—but punched bar makes the neatest job. The drinking hole will be at the right hand end of the front, between the second and third wire. This will bring it opposite the strip of wood (rounded at its top edge) which shuts off the inch and a half or so of the edge to form a seed box.

A Custom to be Discarded.

The time-honoured custom of placing the drinking hole in the middle of the front is dying hard, but it has nothing whatever to commend it, and a triple indictment to answer. Firstly it compels the bird to go to the floor—in itself an undesirable thing. Secondly, in many cases, birds have a very proper objection to jumping down amongst their dirt, and will sit and suffer from thirst until their eyes are like pinheads rather than do it. Thirdly, when they do jump down, they get dirt on to their feet which they carry up to their perch. Then they wipe their face and beak on the perch, and—well, 'nuff said. All this is avoided if they can reach their water from where they stand to feed.

The door may be round or square, and it may be placed at either end of the cage. There is some advantage in getting it at the seed end, but the principal thing to consider is which end most readily fits in with your arrangements for running the bird straight into the show cage from his quarters at home.

The question of colour must be dealt with next. It is a great mistake to imagine that the equipment of an exhibitor's staging department need present the slightest resemblance to the stock-in-trade of an artist's studio. There is one colour, and one colour only, which will do ample justice to every British Hardbill, and to almost every British Softbill (the Blackbird is the only exception that occurs to me at the moment) and that colour is green. The only point to decide is the shade of green. It must be a pure green. Pea-green, for instance, may be dismissed at once; it is too yellow. Peacock-green is too blue. Bronze-green is too "brassy."

Note.—In writing of the various shades of green, I refer to the article sold in tins either as paint or enamel; and the names used to distinguish them are those which appear on the label.

The Good Points of the Greens.

Of pure green colours which are suitable the choice is limited, and yet ample, for only two need be taken into serious consideration, emerald green and holly green. Emerald green is bright and attractive. It shows to advantage those numerous species whose colouring is of a sombre tone, as, for instance, Linnets, Twites, Redpolls, Corn, Reed and Lapland Buntings, Thrushes, etc.; and it forms a harmonious background for the display of such good points as definition and regularity of marking and pencilling, boldness of type, generous formation of skull, and gracefulness of carriage, which are the qualities most prized where colours blend rather than contrast. It is also more kindly than was the old-fashioned cold, pale blue to Greenfinches, Siskins, Yellowhammers and the like, whose colours, if not sombre, are at least subdued. But it is too delicate a tint to do justice to those other species in which we look for brilliance, depth and sharp contrasts of colour, such as Goldfinches and Bullfinches, and, in scarcely less degree, Chaffinches and Bramblefinches. These are infinitely better suited by the more robust holly green. Indeed not only does holly green give incomparable effect to the more striking beauty of these prime favourites, but it is also in every way an appropriate setting for all the others; and everything that has been said in favour of emerald green for them applies with equal truth to holly green.

It occasionally happens that a darker shade even than holly green may be successfully used as a set off for a Goldfinch or Bullfinch of exceptionally rich and brilliant colour. Judgment must be exercised in resorting to this darkest of all greens, for if the Goldfinch is in the slightest degree inclined to "brassiness" in the blaze, or if the Bullfinch is at all pale, or not perfectly level, in breast colour, the fault will be mercilessly exposed by the over dark background. If, on the other hand your Goldfinch has a blaze like a piece of red sealing wax, and your Bullfinch a breast like a maiden's first blush, the result is to enhance them to the very limit. A Siskin of exceptional purity and clearness of colour will also look his very best against a setting of this description. Further than this into the question of colours for show cages it is needless to go. Holly green by itself is really equal to all occasions—with just a reservation in favour of something lighter for Blackbirds and Choughs. At the same time there is no objection whatever to other shades of green being employed, and any intermediate tone can readily be obtained by the simple expedient of mixing the two colours, emerald green and holly green, in the required proportions.

The Greenfinch is perhaps the least satisfactory subject to deal with, and he must by now have caused an appalling waste of art enamel. It should be remembered that he is not a bird of striking colouration, and that his qualities are of those that reveal themselves only under examination.

The Condition of Show Birds.

By T. J. SOUTHPORT.

NOT so long ago I read in CAGE BIRDS a lecture delivered by a fancier before his cage-bird society. I forget what his subject was, but thinking of this subject, "Show birds and their condition," one sentence the gentleman used in his lecture came back to me. It was: "There couldn't be anything worse, in his opinion, than to show a clean bird in a dirty cage." Now, when you come to look at it, a dirty cage and a clean bird are bad enough, but worse is a dirty bird and a clean cage; and worse still is a dirty bird to a dirty cage. Not that a cage has anything to do with the condition of a bird, still cleanliness counts with condition in a show bird. In most scales of points some points are given for condition; in some varieties more, others less, and I have often wondered if our judges really do allow those points for condition, because I have seen birds winning that were not really in condition, that is, in high condition. In fact, most birds that do win are rather a bit low, and especially so is this in the case of Norwich. Birds in high condition don't show off their points to advantage; indeed, if they happen to have any faults, you may depend on it they will show them. If one is at all inclined to be feathery at thighs, if in very robust condition, or what we may term very forward, he will show that feather. My idea of a bird in show condition is one that is perfectly healthy, but not forward enough to be singing lustily, only just beginning to turn his notes and to tune up his voice; rather quiet, and not yet beginning to answer the calls of the hens; seemingly not yet started to think seriously of that joyous state, matrimony. As the winter passes and spring is approaching, and a young cock bird's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love, he gets restless and begins to draw himself up out of shape, until he is hardly recognisable as the bird which was winning prizes a few weeks previously. I remember visiting a well-known Norwich breeder's room in the height of the show season, and amongst his birds was one cock that was beginning to sing lustily. He was in very high condition, so high that his owner commented on it, and said that he would have to stop that, as he was wanted for show the week following; so he caught the bird and transferred him to a dark corner of his room. He had happened to be facing the window, where he got a little sun, and it was bringing him on too quick. Transferring him to a dark corner would have the effect of "backening" him, and keeping him fit for show purposes. A bird, to be in show condition, must be healthy, of course, and when handled must have enough go in him to get in position, or to take his perches freely, but we don't want him to be in dancing condition. I once had a conversation with a Norwich fancier of the old school, when our chat turned to condition in Norwich, and I mentioned a few well-known winners which appeared to me not to be in very robust condition. "Ah," he said, "that is a trick of the trade"; and he went on to tell me of another fancier, whose name need to be one to conjure with in all Norwich circles, who, he said, used to keep his show birds without food the day before a show so that they wouldn't be in too high condition before judging. He said that it made them look bigger and rounder when "down." Whether this were true, or it was merely a figure of speech, I can't say; but a day is a long time to keep a Canary without food, and I certainly shouldn't think of so keeping mine; but perhaps there is something in it. It appears to me that when a show bird begins to get "rompish," the best plan would be to limit his diet, and if he happens to be where he gets some sun, emulate the action of the Norwich breeder mentioned previously, and put him in prison for a day or two. Some birds never need keeping down. The difficulty is to get them forward enough in time for breeding; but those are generally the ones which are approaching the time when, like ourselves of the genus homo, we are too old at forty.

The Indian, or White-Breasted, Kingfisher.

By W. T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

At the Horticultural Hall (L.C.B.A.) show in November, 1911, Mr. S. M. Townsend exhibited a fine specimen of this species, which was again shown, at the same venue, in November last. Kingfishers are not everyone's fancy, owing to the diet, mainly meat or fish, and what insects one can supply; but for those who do not object to this, this bird is a beautiful, quaint and interesting pet. To some extent its beauty is indicated in the following sketchy description: Head, face, sides of neck and body, wings and under tail coverts rich chocolate, glossed with chestnut; scapulars, and greater wing-coverts dull blue; back, rump and upper tail-coverts glistening cerulean-blue; chin, throat, middle of the neck, breast and abdomen, pure white; tail blue, central feathers greenish. It is about 10½ inches long, of which the tail measures 3 inches.

This species is found in most parts of India, up to the base of the Himalayas, and extends eastwards to China. It is not only found in the vicinity of water, but frequently in wooded country some distance from it. Away from water it frequents groves of trees, gardens, open jungle and the vicinity of large villages and cantonments. In such situations from a suitable perch it watches for a land-crab, mouse, lizard, grasshopper, etc., and pounces down upon it, carrying it back to the perch to devour. In the vicinity of water it preys on fish (rarely diving for it), frogs, tadpoles and water insects.

A hollow under a projecting stone, hole in a bank, or hole in a decaying tree, all form suitable nesting sites. The eggs are white; and the clutch varies from two to seven.

In captivity this bird will do well on a diet of raw beef and fish, supplemented by mealworms, earthworms, cockroaches, grasshoppers, and any other similar insects obtainable, also quite small frogs; thus their diet presents no insuperable difficulty to those fond of out of the way pets. Mr. Townsend's bird received several gold-fish per diem during the course of the 1911 show. Minnows, adpoles, and other small fish are not unduly difficult to obtain, and would help to vary the menu advantageously; even if not procurable regularly, as occasional dainties they would break the monotony of meat and insects, and thus greatly benefit the bird.

Mr. Townsend's fine specimen is, I think, the only one in England at the present time, and also for some years past. In outdoor quarters there should not be any great difficulty in inducing this species to breed, if a true pair were only obtainable. This bird's loud, harsh call, almost a scream, is not often uttered save when on the wing, and I have not heard it uttered in captivity up to the present.

OUR ENGLISH KINGFISHER.

The opinion is generally held that the Kingfisher is the most beautiful of all the species that breed in this country. Few can have seen the bird for the first time, flashing like some brilliant meteor down the stream, without experiencing a thrill of delight. And the more closely one inspects the bird the more marvellous does its plumage seem. Further, it retains its gorgeous plumes all the year round, unlike many of the charmers of other lands, whose beauty is seasonal only.

A PARROT AT PLAY.

This Parrot, now alas ! deceased, was the property of Mr. A. England, of High Street, Barnet, a photographer by profession, to whom we are indebted for the pictures. The bird was remarkably docile, and a great business asset, for when " dressed up " (see centre picture) he could always be depended upon to soothe the fears of young children whom fond parents brought to face the camera in his master's studio. Polly also struck up an amazingly intimate friendship with the cat and the dog seen in three of the photos; they were truly "inseparables." Our fifth picture shows another friendly trio, a Cat, an Owl, and a Jackdaw.

The Pink-Crested Touracou.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

A Drawing of this Bird Appears on page iii.

THIS beautiful and rare species (Turacus erythrolophus), is a little larger than a Jay, but more pheasant-like in form; the tail fairly long, broad and rounded at the tip. Our illustration was drawn from a specimen of Mr. C. T. Maxwell's at the last Clapham show, where it was awarded 2nd prize (Mr. A. Ezra's Red Sunbird securing the premier position). It was only 7th at the recent Horticultural Hall show, in a class composed almost entirely of very rare species. It has not met with the best of luck when exhibited up to the present Touracous are a beautiful group, with exquisitely harmonised garments of soft plumage; greens, carmine, violet, or purple-blue usually forming the colour pattern. They need room to properly exhibit their full beauty, as it is only when the wing is fully extended that the full extent of the rich carmine area is displayed. They do well in a roomy cage. The species in question is one of the most lovely of a beautiful genus The body colouring is green, glossed with bronze on the wings; lower throat, shoulders and breast pea-green; a space round the eye very pale greenish-grey, almost white; the crest is broadly tipped with pinkish-red; eye-lids red; irides dark-red. It is, indeed, exquisite; the beautiful soft green relieved by its reddish crest. greyish-white face, and the carmine-red of the under wing-coverts and flights. It is as they descend to the ground from a perch, or rise up again to it, and for a brief spell at the moment of alighting, that their full beauty is seen.

Delightful as Aviary Birds.

Interesting as these birds are in cages, one cannot over-praise them as aviary birds; their graceful movements and contour are unrivalled. They become delightfully tame, even in a large aviary, and are not unduly difficult to cater for. Bananas should be supplied, whole, with a narrow strip of the skin removed; sweet-water grapes, elderberries, hawthorn berries, blackberries, raspberries, and the like, are all appreciated, as also are boiled rice and mealworms, earthworms, silkworms, and insects generally.

How Touracous Might be Bred.

If any attempt is made to breed them it will be well to securely fasten a hamper lid high up in some branches, as the nest they construct in their native wilds (Africa) is a mere platform of sticks, upon, or in, which they deposit two bluish-white eggs. Traveller-naturalists tell us they feed on the indigenous fruits and berries, which are varied with insects, worms, caterpillars, and even small birds. They mostly frequent the tops of high trees. but are also to be seen amid the tangled creepers, flitting from shrub to shrub, and if disturbed to some higher elevation, alighting with crest erect and upturned tail. The latter characteristic I have observed many times in the Western aviary at the London Zoo. One wishes either that these lovely birds came over a little more freely, or that one had an illimitable purse.

EVENING AMUSEMENT FOR BORDER FANCIERS.

By J. STEEL (Dalkeith).

WE now require seven cross ties to bind front to back. One of these, as will be seen in sketch, published on Nov. 1, is made with a set-back, to keep door flush with remainder of wires. Every care should be taken to make these cross-ties of equal length, and have the loops parallel to each other. When fixing these it is advisable to omit that one which rests on spires at door end (left) till top wires have been introduced, as these are all placed inside of framework, one on each side, forming a complete circuit of ends and top, and another being cut with a slight surplus to form the loops in which the door slides, the remainder being cut flush at top of door space. The measuring off and fixing of these is simply a repetition of the process described in setting mould, it only being necessary that the wires of top touch cross-ties at all points, without being too long to cause sagging. No bending of bow is required, beyond the slight turn at corner.

When wires (six in number) have been inserted it is advisable to wrap all to cross-ties, beginning at seed-drawer end, before soldering any. To ensure correct meshing of top a piece of punched bar may be used, or preferably a "gauge-comb," which is simply a strip of wood with wire nails driven through in a manner whereby each pair holds a wire in position five-eighths of an inch apart. All being wrapped and soldered it only remains to make and fix door; it is hardly necessary to describe this operation as a reference to sketch will show its construction. The space under door being filled in, it only remains to fit holder for water-glass and small loop on top of cage for lifting.

Points About the Perches.

Perches: These are procurable from cagemakers. They are circular, and grooved to provide the bird with a good grip, such being essential to good position and action, hardly possible to obtain if, as I have often seen, they are of hard wood with a surface like glass. Nothing can be more provocative of spread tails than the bird's endeavours to maintain a foothold on such perches. Therefore soft wood, as white as can be procured, should be selected. Many I have noticed are much too thick, being out of proportion to both bird and cage, and more suited to a Scotch Fancy Canary. I have noticed a very nice perch on the market lately in which the grooving formed a diamond pattern, and the wood and thickness were all that could be desired, but this possesses a fault, for, when dirty or soiled, washing has the effect of removing all the grooving by reason of the fact that same is only pressed in, not cut, and the swelling, consequent on wetting, restores the plain shape.

To make grooved perches, get a smith to bore a hole in a piece of steel plate about half-inch thick, and countersink same to form a sharp edge on underside. This edge should then be notched with a corner file like the teeth of a saw. To use the perch block it is only necessary to plane down wood to a thickness slightly in excess of diameter of hole and drive each piece through with a mallet. If the diamond groove is preferred the teeth should be set obliquely like the teeth of a cross-cut saw, and a similar plate or hole should be provided with teeth set in the opposite direction. Drive through each in succession, and it will be found effective in producing the interlaced spiral groove, or diamond. To whiten perches, wash in a strong solution of carbonate of soda, and dry either in a strong sun, or before a fire.

Applying the Finishing Touches.

There are many brands of enamels on the market, but some of them are far from desirable for cages, the most common faults being stringiness, which makes an awful mess, the cage having the appearance of being smeared with treacle. Another fault is flying off, or peeling, due to a lack of elasticity, which is an important feature when the article painted has to stand such vibration as the wires of a cage. I have yet to find a really good black which can be applied in one coat, and nothing is more annoying than to find it necessary to do up show cages every season, as each successive coat is but adding to the roughness. I find that a coat of Drop Black (flat) which dries instantly, followed by a coat of elastic carriage varnish stands better, has a fine glossy appearance, and is only half the cost of cycle enamel. It is advisable to apply the varnish in a warm temperature, this adding to its fluidity. Do all inside of cage first, using a short-handled camel-hair brush as it is difficult to black all wires from outside or apply varnish without working up to a froth.

If time presses a good brand of enamel may be used as these sometimes dry very quickly, but a coat of the above varnish should be applied over same at the first opportunity, giving it plenty of time to get thoroughly dry before running a bird in. It is advisable to wash all cages immediately on return from shows, as if the stains of droppings are allowed to harden on cage they defy all removal, and repainting is necessary. For the same reason old or white cages are advisable for training purposes.

Telescopic Cages.

The ordinary manner of working these up on a base of punched bar, as with Yorks cages, is inadvisable, as being too great a departure, and likely to cause comment; besides, such would entail the dispensing with posts and spires and I have not been favourably impressed with cages I have seen of that description. We have therefore the preferable option of making cage top hinged for opening by looping the outside wires to cross stays at end, and making the other ends snap on the opposite cross-stay, with two similar loops left partly open for that purpose, as also are the remaining three in top. These loops should be made very small. It will be necessary to make seed drawer cover removable for these, and as they are made in sets of three to keep same of a size which permits of their being inserted one within the other, the inner one requiring no removable top.

By running three birds into the smaller cage we have a reduction in bulk of two-thirds, which is very convenient for carrying, and reducing also the number of carrying cases. Of course, such method would not be permissible in sending birds to a show, as it would entail labour and responsibility on show stewards in recognising and apportioning the birds to their proper classes, but for members' shows, or events which permit of the fancier conveying his birds, these telescopics are very useful.

I omitted to add that the loops for door sliding in are, in these, made in the cross tie, instead of a projection from top. If by mistake a wire should be soldered in wrong place it is only necessary to hold it over the flame of a candle or vesta and when melted give it a few smart taps to remove solder. No doubt this may all sound very amusing to the professional cagemaker but, though I am not a "pro.," I can assure the amateur that a little practice will do much, and the £ s. d. side of the question is not despisable.

A Muling Problem.

By REG. H. TERRY.

Is it possible to obtain a strain of Hen Canaries which produces all Cock Mules?

I CAN well imagine the reader of the above heading giving vent to some expression of incredulity. Such a seemingly impossible suggestion is sure to be greeted by some with ridicule, whilst others, I hope, will have the patience to read through the following account of my experience, when I trust they will admit that I have some grounds for making a bold suggestion, and I hope they will be sufficiently convinced to cause them to experiment with the same end in view.

If, in their experiments, by strictly adhering to the modes of crossing which I am going to suggest, a hen Mule should crop up, then I shall be prepared to admit that my assertion is wrong; but until I have myself, or know for a fact that some other person has really produced a hen, I shall remain convinced that it is possible to produce all cock Mules from this strain. My contention is not brought about through many years of tedious study, as some might imagine, but more by accident, as I am now going to prove.

Three or four years back my stock consisted of ordinary Norwich Canaries, more remarkable, I am afraid, for their quantity than their quality. About this time a Cinnamon Yorkshire cock came into my possession, and not having a suitable mate for it, I picked out a large, variegated Norwich hen, and paired them. The majority of the youngsters were self Cinnamons, and the rest Cinnamon-variegated.

Sex of More Value Than Quality.

As I have hinted above, my knowledge of Canaries was not very extensive at that time, and I judged the value of a bird more by its sex than its quality, as to my idea a cock bird was worth about three times as much as a hen. It can well be imagined, then, with what disgust I found that all the offspring from this pair turned out to be hens. I put it down to ill-luck at once, until I read the following in an article on the peculiarities of Cinnamon breeding, written long since by Mr. W. A Blakston:—

"If a cock Canary, not being a Cinnamon, or crossed from the variety, be paired with a Cinnamon hen, the produce will not show the pink eye or any Cinnamon feathers, but will consist of self-coloured greens, cocks and hens, and variegated greens. If, however, we invert the order of things, and infuse the Cinnamon blood by mating a Cinnamon cock with, say, a Norwich hen, we obtain altogether different results. The progeny will for the most part consist of self-coloured and variegated Cinnamons, with an occasional green or green-marked bird, and with this strange result also, that all the Cinnamons, clear or variegated, will be hens. This is a fact not generally known, but our own experience has shown it to be a fact, while enquiry on every side has never in any one instance led to a knowledge of any other result. Some breeders will only declare positively as to the yellow variegated, but our experience is that every bird which shows one cinnamon feather will be a hen."

After reading this, I was, of course, not a little enlightened as to the cause of my so-called ill-luck, and after experiencing the same results as the author suggested, I was quite convinced that his remarks were correct. I did not particularly want to become a breeder of practically Cinnamon hens only, so I parted with the Cinnamon cock, and also most of the offspring.

From a painting] NOBLE EXAMPLES OF THE CRESTBRED AND CRESTED CANARIES. [by H. Norman.

Length and texture (width and silkiness) of feather play an important part in this breed. The chief characteristic of the Crestbred is the extremely wide skull, with its "lashing" (fall of feathers over the eyes); and of the Crest, its headpiece of feathers, drooping evenly, covering eyes and beak, and in the best specimens of remarkable size.

leaving myself with two hens, one self-Cinnamon and the other Cinnamon variegated.

About this time my fancy turned to Mule breeding, and as I had two Goldfinches, I ran them with these two hens the following Spring. I did not have any particularly good luck, although I did not think I had done badly for a first attempt when at the end of the season I had three very nice dark Mules, all cock birds. These were all from the self-Cinnamon hen; the other hen had two clear nests of eggs out of three, and hatched two eggs in the third, but, as is so often the case with young hens, she did not attempt to feed the young.

A Year of Plenty.

I tried the same pairs again the next season and had much better results, the hens turning out to be ideal parents, and I am proud to say I did not lose a single youngster from these two hens. Altogether, I bred seventeen Mules from these two pairs during the season, one rearing ten and the other seven.

Now comes the remarkable part. All these seventeen youngsters, together with the three bred the previous season, making a total of twenty in all, were cock birds, and all are in full song at the time of writing.

Now my theory is this:—If by mating a Cinnamon cock with a Norwich hen the offspring with any Cinnamon feathers whatever are all hens, then why should not Nature revert, and by mating a certain variety with these hens, the offspring all become cocks? The first part of the question has been solved, I think readers will admit, beyond all doubt, as it has been tried and proved by some of the most eminent Canary breeders, but the latter part is simply an idea brought about by some convincing facts which resulted from a chance mating with the Goldfinch and Cinnamon-bred hens.

Is the Evidence Adequate?

It may be thought that I have been a little too previous in making such an assertion with only twenty birds to prove it; but when one takes into consideration the peculiarities of the Cinnamon Canary when crossed with other varieties, and also the theory remarked on above, I think there is ample reason for suggesting that it may be possible to produce all cock Mules.

An Experiment that will Repay.

In any case, there can be no good derived from keeping such a theory to myself, as if readers will experiment for themselves, the question will be proved either one way or the other. Such experiments are bound to repay the breeder, as the Mules resulting from such a cross as suggested, providing the hens used are large, will be far in advance of average quality. I am afraid this strain will never satisfy the craving of the Mule breeder whose one aim is to produce light Mules; but to produce good dark Mules—and to my idea a really good dark one is quite equal in merit to a light one, and much more handsome—the breeder will find this strain second to none, whether or not the results prove me correct in my assumption.

ARE SPECIALIST CLUBS IN DANGER?

The Views of Four Leading Fanciers of the Day.

MR. G. C. LEY'S SCHEME.

THE great and serious importance to the Canary Fancy of the question raised by Mr. R. L. Crisp is not one, I am afraid, that can be disposed of in the space you would care to give in one issue. Those fanciers who have been agitating these last few years about the "half-prize money" question; those who complain and give over exhibiting because of meeting champion exhibits; those who expect to, but find they cannot clear entry fees and railway expenses; all these will find a solution to their complaints in the answer to the question, and the remedy.

In the first place, let me say I am a fancier and exhibitor of between 30 and 40 years' standing, before specialist clubs for cage birds came into existence. I am, and have been for some years, an active member of one, because I know their need, and why they were formed.

The Shows of the Eighties.

In the early eighties you could nearly count on one hand the Canary exhibitions which were open competitions, and the "Derby" of the Canary Fancy was the annual show at the Crystal Palace, where, until a few years back, the classes filled to an extent that must have provided a rich harvest for the management. The reason of this latter is obvious; being so few open shows, 90 per cent. of the birds staged had not before been tried in open competition, breeders had not had the opportunity of seeing their's side by side on the show bench with those others had bred, and so they sent in annually their entries to the Palace. Mark the difference between then and the present time. There was then no grumbling about the cost of railway transit and entry fees from those who were fortunate enough to secure honours, vhc, hc, or c, to say nothing about being in the money. Exhibitors felt proud and well repaid because they had secured a card at the Palace, knowing they would be called upon for stock from that particular strain.

The secret latter-day fanciers have to learn is, that the cost of exhibiting their birds represents their advertising expenses for bringing their name to the notice of those who are looking for stock off a winning strain, and consequently making their profit out of surplus stock. Shows were formed in the old days because whosoever bred birds thought there were none like, or so good as, their own, consequently they wanted a referee to decide it, and a place to bring the birds together for that purpose. This spirit brought bird clubs and shows into existence; it was not a business problem for profit.

Later, breeders in surrounding districts who were not numerous enough to form local clubs of their own were invited to bring along their exhibits to make the classes stronger; the birds were on and off the benches the same day, to save expense of management. This was the starting point of open shows. Although we have now many open shows in the United Kingdom, there are very few self-supporting, as in the early days, when prize-money was paid out according to entries, and no faults found by those accepting this privilege. Exhibitors recognised that shows were not run for their profit, but amusement, besides being an advertisement to help them get rid of surplus stock at a better value.

Exhibiting as a Business Side-line.

At the present time there are many exhibitors who have not taken up the Fancy as a hobby, but as a business side-line. The show bench is no place for them. They are poor sportsmen who find fault at half prize-money, or when they have run up among champion exhibits, because they are out for profit, not for a hobby. This class of exhibitor is no credit to the Fancy, but brings it into bad repute. He goes to see his own team win, and if he should accidentally send an entry into a class where specialist club members are competing, he has the confounded impudence to rush into print with the idea that his eighteenpenny entry is helping to provide their cups and bowls.

I would refer those exhibitors who think they could (or should) do away with specialist clubs, to the early days of the exhibition bird, true samples of which they can find depicted in the illustrations of Messrs. Cassell's work on Canaries, and then to our latest publication, "Our Canaries." The vast and astounding improvement they will see between the early and present-day exhibits has been brought about by specialist clubs who have set a standard to breed and exhibit to, not by one man, but by all the most successful breeders and exhibitors for the past 20 or 25 years. The inference is plain; if specialist clubs are doomed, so eventually will be the exhibition bird and the bird shows. Without specialist clubs, classes will die out and varieties gradually become extinct.

I was greatly surprised to read the letter by Mr. J. W. Ramsden (because he knows better) advocating some other kind of judging, by someone, or something, who would reverse the birds from the bottom to the top of the class, and bring the law on to those societies who employed specialist club judges.

The time has certainly arrived, as Mr. Crisp observes, for fanciers to take heed. We cannot blame show committees for dropping the classification where they lose money. It is up to us to find the remedy. We must have members' birds on the bench which do not win, besides those which do. We exhibitors who have constantly been on the topmost branch plucking the best fruit must make an effort to hand some of it down below. If we do this we shall certainly find a great improvement in the entries.

Will this Solve the Problem?

I think the following scheme the solution of the difficulty. In the first place, specialist clubs' trophies must be won on points, instead of by best birds, and to induce members to show birds which have no chance with the champions, I would give them an equal chance of winning the clubs' trophies by reversing the points. The 1st prize bird has the consolation of taking the money and full points for the specials offered by the society holding the show, but the points I would offer for the specialists' club trophies, to members, would be as follows: 1st, 1 point; 2nd, 2 points; 3rd, 3 points; 4th, 4 points; vhc, 5 points; hc, 6 points; c, 7 points; reserve, 10 points.

This would entail no hardship on the owners of winning birds, because they would have an equal chance of making more entries in each class, if they wanted more points, and more entries is the gist of the whole trouble. The "wish I could die" feeling of the specialist clubs would be cured by a tonic of this sort. We should find the novices and the amateurs competing with the champions. The idea of giving a reserve 10 points was for this object, and to bring all members up to the scratch by affording them a sporting chance; the man with the money-bags could gain no advantage over the workingman exhibitor in respect to club trophies.—Geo. C. Ley (Nottingham).

The Trouble will be lived Down, says Mr. W. Spillman

WHY fanciers should say specialist clubs are doomed is a mystery to me, when, if they are properly worked, they should prove the Alpha and Omega of the Fancy. It is very evident, however, that the present rules of the S.N.P.C. will have to be wiped out, and a new set made, more concise and explicit, leaving no doubt how points are to be counted. Mr. So-and-So says Mr. ——— has won the cup, whilst others say the contrary. Nice state of things, eh?

I should like to see it made a hard and fast rule that no member be allowed to win the ten guinea cup outright, or the three guinea cup more than once. Certainly that would give others a chance, and a cherished hope of winning either. I had not seen any one with whom to discuss the pros and cons of the recent correspondence until last week, when I met Mr. Gill, and he suggested one club show, which I think a capital idea.

The nomination of four birds has certainly proved a failure, as I predicted, whilst the compulsion of closed rings would make many give up in disgust. No one is more particular than I am about how birds are bred, and every youngster is rung at about three weeks old, but directly the moult is over, the surplus stock disposed of, and the current year birds can be identified, off come the rings, for, to say the least, they don't add comfort to the wearer.

The value of a good secretary cannot be overestimated, as it is on him the success of the club largely depends. He must be an earnest worker and methodical business man, and lean to no clique.

Many say it is only the early shows that benefit by the specialist clubs' patronage, and there is a lot of truth in it, for by the time the shows are half over, the chances of winning the trophies are in the hands of a few, and some of them are so keen on coming out on the top that they buy hither and thither. At the same time, others who are even present cup-holders never buy a winner.

The Buyer of Winners.

Mind, I admire the buyer of winners, but he must not be able to "buy" the specialist club cups; and, what's more, he should not be allowed to buy anybody's birds and sell them as related to his winners, when it can be proved beyond doubt that the winners were not in his possession at the time of breeding. That's a new departure for a specialist club, and if duty calls Cage Birds should be the mouthpiece for exposure. We shall live it down yet, and a better state of things will exist. It is remarkable the number of people that take up our hobby and retire annually.

I am sorry I shall not be able to attend the Palace meeting of the S.N.P.C., but to those who do let me entreat them to discuss matters in an amicable spirit, if only for the benefit of the club, so that the year we are just entering upon may prove all that can be desired.—W. Spillman (Devonport).

HOW WOULD YOU MATE THESE YORKSHIRES? £1 1s. FOR BEST REPLY.

Our Artist has drawn seven Yorkshire Canaries, three cocks (Nos. 1 to 3), and four hens (Nos. 4 to 7). We want the opinions of readers as to the best way to pair up these birds to improve the stock, i.e., to produce the best possible youngsters. We will give one guinea cash for the reply which in the opinion of the Editor is the best sent him. State the reasons which induce you to mate the birds in the manner you advocate. Write on one side only of each sheet of paper used, and send your reply to reach us not later than Tuesday, January 27th.

Trenchant Commen s from Mr. Frank Cole.

"WHEN are you going to apply for our patronage?" were the words addressed some ten years ago to the secretary and manager of a provincial show. The reply was an emphatic, "Never, so long as you want so much and give me nothing." Time has rolled on, and many things have changed, but I am more than ever convinced that that secretary was right. The patronage of some of the specialist clubs is a curse instead of a blessing to the society that asks for it in an endeavour to have the best birds. This should never be, and it behoves us to ask the reason.

A specialist club exists for the perfection of a particular bird, according to a fixed standard. But what do we find?

Each and every judge having his own standard and his own particular whims, or treating a class by its majority. Strong condemnation; but who has not, show after show, season after season, seen birds that must have been allowed 50 per cent. for head or body properties, or they would never have got in the cards; or one class judged for size, another for type? Exhibitors grumble, and rightly so, because they don't know what to breed for. What does the specialist club do or say? Nothing.

A Few Pertinent Questions.

Then again the specialist club asks for a particular number of classes; no more, no less. Why no more? One can understand its asking for sufficient classes to give every variety of its ideal a fair chance, but surely when a society offers more classes the specialist club should accept them. It is not that by accepting them their funds would be diminished; oh, dear, no; the specialist club gives the society—nothing!!

What does the specialist club exist for? I have said, to create an ideal. Prizes are given for the most points gained at a particular show or throughout a series of shows. Who wins these prizes? Why the six or seven members who have the best teams of birds. Who pays for the prizes? The whole of the members. What do the majority of them get? Nothing!

Thus the specialist club has nothing to say to the judges, who ignore its ideal; nothing to give to show funds, and nothing for the majority of its members. Truly, a sorry plight!

One way out occurs to me, and for the purpose of illustration I will take the Southern Norwich Plainhead Club. Please don't think I bear any animosity towards this club. It is the one I belong to, and when I say I think I have four specials to come from it this season, it will be seen that there is no question of "sour grapes." My suggestion is that the club does away with its points specials, and gives its funds in extra prizes to be won at each show where its patronage is given.

As an illustration only, let us take the Wimbledon and Leyton societies' shows. These were specialist club shows, and each society gave three prizes (1st, 2nd, and 3rd). The S.N.P.C. should have given 4th 2s. 6d., vhc 2s., hc 1s. 6d., c 1s., as special prizes in each class, provided the exhibitor who won the card was a member, and added to his entry "S.N.P.C. breeder." Had this been done at Wimbledon the club would have paid out to the champions 21s. 6d. between seven members, and 11s. between five novice members. At Leyton it would have been 28s. between six champions and 18s. 6d. between six novices. In other words, an average of 20s. to champions and 20s. to novices. This is providing all members had bred their birds. I take it the man who buys his birds does not buy to get the so-called "codding cards," so he has nothing to complain of.

A New Use for the Funds.

Plymouth and the L.C.B.A. gave seven money prizes, and others may follow. If they do, and make a loss on the Norwich classes the specialist club should give the 20s. to their show funds, whether its members had won it or not. I am firmly convinced that this would make more entries for the show, and more members for the specialist club. The outsider would soon ask what all those specials meant, and would not be backward in taking advantage of them. This is certainly worth considering, and I think would bridge over much of the difficulty between champion and novice. The income of the club at present would, I believe, support ten shows, five for each section. We still have the £10 10s. cup and also a breeders' cup.

While on the subject of shows, those in the novice section must be spread over the district. Why should not the novice in Cornwall or Wales have something nearer home than Wimbledon?

One more suggestion: Look to the judges. There is more satisfaction in winning under four or five judges than always under one or two; and there are plenty of good men about. This is not a difficult matter to deal with provided the shows are well spread over the district.

My remedies therefore are: (1) Look after all your members, and in particular the breeder, the man who makes your ideal. (2) Look after the judge, and see that he finds the ideal birds. (3) Assist the show that does so much for you.

If this can be done we shall have a stronger club than ever, and hear nothing more of "Are Specialist Clubs Doomed?"

FRANK COLE (E. Dulwich).

Mr. R. L. Crisp Suggests Outside Influences are also at Work.

WHAT'S wrong with the world, the bird world, of course, I mean? Lethargy, stagnation, waning interest, lack of recruits, are all signs of the times. In regard to specialist clubs, some blame cup competitions; others the purchase of winners; some condemn the way specials are allotted, but nothing has been said about the novices who join specialist clubs, win a guinea teapot the first season, and forthwith leave the club; then there are others who suggest £5 limit classes as a panacea.

There is something to be said for and against each of these views, but in none of them, to my mind will the true cause be found. Everything has its cycle, and the Fancy for the present is under a cloud. I say the Fancy, because I am of opinion that lack of interest is not confined only to specialist clubs, but to societies as well. Where is the society in which meetings are as well attended as formerly, and funds have not diminished? A great many, I venture to think, are struggling for their very existence. A few reasons occur to me: Firstly, there are too many societies; secondly, too many open shows, which do not encourage membership; and, thirdly, the present high prices of everything one has to buy, which leave the fancier with less money to devote to his hobby.

Counter attractions, too, such as picture palaces, half-time halls, and, perhaps, the craze for football, may have something to do with the present state of affairs. Be all this as it may, something is necessary to infuse greater interest into the Fancy, and any views on the subject from your many readers will, I feel sure, be greatly appreciated. R. L. CRISP

Some Inmates of My Outdoor Aviary.

By A. J. GARLICK (Dublin).

Chatty Notes Upon Some Popular British Birds and a Foreigner.

IT is now some twenty years ago, when my time was not so limited as it is now, and when the worries and stress of the business world were unknown to me, that I conceived the idea of erecting an outdoor aviary. Being always an ardent ornithologist, and having kept birds in cages from my childhood, as I grew older the desire to have an aviary of my own was the one thought which occupied my mind.

A Modest Beginning.

The time came, in due course, when I was allotted a space in my father's garden, and I proceeded to erect my long-wished-for aviary. This was a small structure some 10ft. long by about 4ft. wide, placed in the corner of the garden, and having a southerly aspect. The whole aviary was covered in with a roof of galvanised sheeting lined underneath with boards, and the flight enclosed with half-inch mesh galvanised wire. The structure was divided into two parts, the flight and the sleeping compartment, with a hole about 3ft. square between the two. The entrance was by a door into the sleeping compartment, with a baize curtain behind same to prevent the birds escaping when the aviary was being entered.

The following is a list of the birds which I kept with success, and which were a source of much pleasure in my school days when every spare moment was spent with my feathered friends:—1 pair Lesser Redpolls, 1 pair Chaffinches, 1 Twite or Mountain Linnet, 1 pair Goldfinches, 1 Siskin, and 1 Red-crested Grey Cardinal.

One of the Best.

These birds I did not attempt to breed with, but simply kept them for their beauty and song. The Redpoll is a most lively little bird, and I have always found it very hardy and capable of enduring any amount of cold and severe weather. Its song is very pleasing, and its activity (being almost incessantly in motion) in flitting amongst the branches and twigs which I placed in the aviary for its accommodation, was most interesting. Many an hour have I watched it in its many different moods and Tit-like ways, for it exhibits considerable scansorial powers, at one time clinging to the branches in every conceivable attitude, and at another running along them with an enquiring eye in search of some dainty morsel, which, in an aviary (at least such as mine was), does not often present itself.

The male bird in the summer time has the crown of its head of a blood-red colour (hence its name), and the sides of the neck and breast carmine, becoming paler on the sides and flanks which are streaked with brown. In the winter it loses much of this brilliancy and lustre, and assumes a more sombre attire.

As Beautiful as Familiar.

The familiar Chaffinch, though very common, and universally spread over the country, is, nevertheless, a very beautiful bird with a song by no means to be despised, and is well deserving of a place in any outdoor aviary. I have kept several of these birds for a number of years, and can vouch for the truth of the French proverb, "As gay as a Chaffinch," which expresses their sense of its lively and engaging qualities which ought to make it a general favourite. It is one of the first birds to herald the approach of spring, and we hear the cocks enlivening every grove and plantation with their reiterated and monotonous "pink, pink,"—challenging each other by their song, the entire wood re-echoes with their short thrilling notes, which, although not possessing the compass or inflection that distinguishes some of the birds of this family, is yet pleasing and agreeable.

A Bird of the Mountains.

The Twite, or Mountain Linnet, is also a desirable addition to the aviary. Its peculiar call-note of "twaite," may be heard throughout the winter months. Its song during the summer months is pleasing and somewhat similar to that of the common Linnet, from which it may be distinguished by the yellow colour of the bill. It frequents hill-side and mountain pastures.

No Aviary Complete Without Him.

The Goldfinch is one of the most beautiful of British birds, and no aviary would be at all complete without this universal favourite. It has a very sweet natural song, and great powers of imitation. Like the Twite, it is seldom met with in the County of Dublin, but more inland its numbers increase. As a cage-bird it is rather common here, and its song may be often heard in the Metropolis, where it has many admirers, and although its vocal powers are not so imposing as those of the Skylark or the Canary, yet its docile habits, the beauty of its plumage, and other attractive qualities, have caused it to be specially sought after. I have seen a flock of these birds in a field, fluttering in the sunshine, pulling and tearing at the thistle-heads, and showing their beautiful plumage up to the best advantage while hovering over the thistles, as seems to be their delight. They are exceedingly lively birds, and sing at all seasons except during the period of moulting.

The Perky Little Siskin.

The Siskin is somewhat smaller than the Goldfinch, but resembles it in habits and song. I have found it a very tame bird and easily approached. Its plumage is a yellowish green, elegantly marked and shaded with black. It is a neat little bird with a short tail and stout conical beak. The top of the head is altogether black, hence it is sometimes called the Black-headed Thistle Finch. Its home is the north of Europe, but it also breeds among the pine woods of the Scottish highlands. Although by no means a common cage bird in this country, it is certainly a desirable species for the aviary. Bechstein likens the continuous chirrup of this bird to the noise made by a stocking-loom, and says the weavers like it on this account. It will live for 8 or 12 years in confinement, and will breed readily with the Canary.

A Desirable Foreign Species.

The Red-crested Grey Cardinal was another inmate of my aviary, a specimen of which I had for several years. This bird comes from Mexico and other parts of tropical America, but is quite hardy and capable of passing the winter out of doors. Its upstanding crest of a rich scarlet colour, its sprightly habits, and song, make it a desirable addition to any outdoor collection of birds.

A Decorated Cages Competition for Children.

Sir,—I am sending you a photograph of some of our coming fanciers who took part in the Decorated Bird and Cage Competition. These are the principal winners. The boy on my right (I am in the centre) is Willie Saunders, who took first, special prize and cup. I had 93 entries in all, but everyone got a prize, and even then there were 33 prizes to spare! These I gave away to other children who did not compete. I had a well-known fancier and his wife call on me (Mr. M. Dawson, of Peterborough) and they spent a very interesting time viewing the cages. The competition yielded a very good profit, which was handed over to the general committee of our club for the children's annual party. This will show brother fanciers what they can do if they try. I received a letter from a well-known show manager giving me permission to take some of these children to the next annual show free of charge, and this should prove both interesting and instructive to these coming fanciers. I am always willing to help on novices. I am also sending to the House of Commons, to our Member, two foolscap sheets full of signatures for the petition published in CAGE BIRDS, and shall keep going on and shall be sending a further list a little later.

THE NATURE PHOTOGRAPHER AT WORK.

Our photograph depicts Mr. Stanley Crook, the well-known nature photographer, of Scarborough, at work, which as will be realised, is not altogether free from an element of danger. Inset at corner is a picture of a Chaffinch's nest.

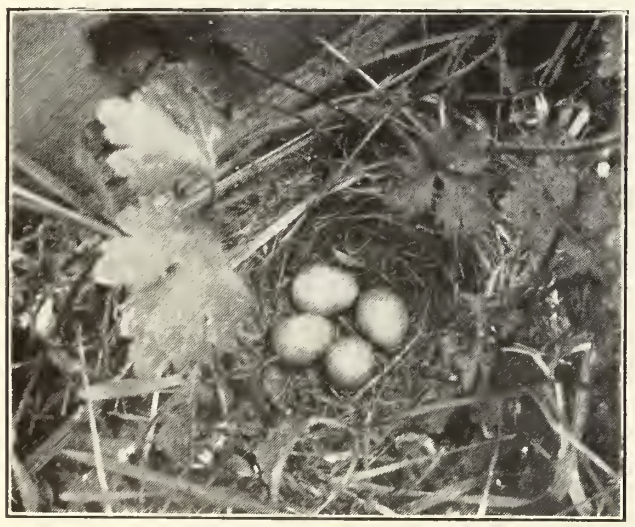
A TALE OF FOUR YELLOW WAGTAILS

by W. E. TESCHEMAKER, B.A.

THE morning on which our story opens was a fine but rather gusty day on Hickling Broad, towards the end of May. My guide, who like most Broadsmen, was not a very daring sailor, was anxious to take a reef down in the lug of our little boat, but, after being well chaffed, decided to take the risks which were certainly not great, seeing that there are very few places where the Broad is more than four feet deep. Hickling Broad is a fine sheet of water containing, if we include Whiteslea and Heigham Sound, some 700 acres of water, and is about three miles in length. Our course gave us a dead beat to windward of nearly a mile, but our craft, heeling to the strong breeze, scudded through the water at an exhilarating pace. We were soon abreast of the little island where Miss Turner, the well-known lady photographer, moors her houseboat, the "Water-rail," and makes her charming studies of bird-life.



A HOME OF THE YELLOW WAGTAIL.

Nest and four eggs photographed in Mr. Teschemaker's aviary.

Here, by message conveyed to us that morning, we were permitted to pay a visit. The island is not many square yards in extent, but is entirely surrounded by a fringe of reeds. Through these reeds we shot in a rather unceremonious manner, and found ourselves in a little lagoon which was as still as a mill-pond, and unruffled by the strong breeze blowing fresh from the North Sea some four miles distant, which was churning up miniature breakers on the open water of the Broad. It reminded me on a tiny scale of some storied South Sea island with its blue lagoon and coral reef. We announced our arrival by the bump with which we came alongside the "Water-rail," and were duly welcomed by its hospitable owner.

An Idyllic Existence.

Here Miss Turner lives quite alone for several weeks every spring and, surrounded by some of the most interesting bird-life which can still be seen in this country, has unique opportunities for obtaining studies of the home-life of our rarer birds. The nests are found for her, and the screens are erected by skilled hands so that all that this fortunate photographer has to do is to convey herself and her camera by boat to the scene of action which is generally within a few hundred yards, and, in the space of a very few minutes, the results can be tested in the dark room which has been fitted up on board the "Water-rail." If the negatives are a failure another batch can be obtained with very little loss of time, whereas the average bird-photographer will frequently find himself in remote districts where he has no facilities for developing his negatives, and on more than one occasion the writer has returned home after a trip of several hundred miles only to find that the entire series of negatives has been under or over exposed through the erratic behaviour of a shutter, on the accuracy of which too much reliance had been placed.

We were interested to find that Miss Turner is also an aviculturist, and has a garden aviary at her home in Kent, where we were told a pair of Magpies had lately hatched a brood. Another event, which interested us and which must be almost certainly a record, was the capturing of a live and uninjured Bird of Paradise in this Kent garden. Although the bird had been about six weeks in a state of freedom it was in fine condition, and in due course was returned to its owner (Mrs. Johnstone).

Whilst we were chatting a small shoal of tame Rudd swam up to the boat-house and were fed on small pieces of bread. We asked ourselves whether in this peaceful lagoon, unruffled by the storm and stress of the life of the city, by the importunities of the tax-collector, or the trammels of civilisation, we had not found a near approach to the perfect life, and we ventured to ask whether there could be any disabilities in such an idyllic existence, and were told that it was occasionally lonely, and that the Hickling mosquito was sometimes very trying (which we can fully corroborate from personal experience). But let us remember that, according to the philosophy of the ancients, there were drops of bitter even in the nectar cup of the gods that dwelt on high Olympus, so we mortals must resign ourselves to having the bitter and sweet well mixed for us. The wise man is he who swallows the bitter as quickly as possible, and lingers like an epicure over that which is sweet.

Having booked a kind invitation to call again on our way back and have a cup of tea, we once more hoisted sail and beat up for the Whiteslea end of the Broad. On our way we passed another island where I regret to say we both saw and heard a gun, although this was the close season. It is most satisfactory, however, to be able to record the fact that a large area of land round the Broad has been leased by certain bird-lovers and is now well preserved, so that even the Montagu Harrier has been able during the last few years to rear its brood in safety. One of the objects of our present visit was to obtain a photo of this rare and beautiful species. The nest had been found for us and on the evening of our arrival contained three eggs, but, though we made a very early start on the following morning, someone had been before us and had looted the whole clutch. The thief must have been waiting in the vicinity of the nest before daylight in order to snatch the eggs as soon as ever the clutch was complete. With some difficulty we ascertained that the sum of £5 could be obtained from a certain collector for a complete clutch, and of course this would be a great temptation for a poor man; we can easily realise how it is that our rare birds have vanished so quickly during the last twenty years.

Making Things Easy.

By kind permission we left our boat in Mr. T. A. Cotton's spacious boathouse, and transferred our belongings to a punt in order to explore some of his ground. My best thanks are tendered not only to this gentleman, but also to the Revd. Mr. Bird, of Stalham, the well-known ornithologist; Major Jary, Mr. Patterson, the naturalist, and others, for kind assistance readily given, which was all the more appreciated because we came as complete strangers, without even a letter of introduction. On our first visit things were not made nearly so easy for us, but, of course, we must all make a beginning.

With some misgivings on the part of our guide we were allowed to operate the long punt-pole, or "quant," and propel our craft up the long dyke which connects Hickling with Horsey Broad; he was right, for though, as we have suggested above, the amateur helmsman is unlikely to learn anything from the Broadsman, the amateur puntsman will be very rash indeed to challenge the criticism of such an accomplished exponent of the art as the latter. We had not proceeded far before, on a grassy sward flanked by a marsh, we spied some elegant little birds with long tails skimming gracefully over the tussocks and flitting restlessly to and from the marsh. On closer inspection we made them out to be a colony of Yellow Wagtails, and the fact that some of them were carrying nesting materials showed that we had happened on their breeding ground. "Who ever heard of Wagtails nesting in a colony?" the reader may remark, and the remark would be justified, for, if we may whisper a little secret in your ear, practically everything that we read about British birds is cribbed in its entirety from the bird-books, and we do not recollect having seen the above observation in the latter. Only a few years since a well-known ornithologist suggested that more books on British birds would be superfluous, because nothing new could be said on the subject, but I hardly think he would repeat that suggestion to-day, if only because the bird-photographer, by taking notes of what he has seen during the long hours he has been compelled to spend in his hiding tent, has lifted a tiny corner of the curtain which veils the mystery of bird-life, and has shown us how much can be done by a little patient observation and how great is our ignorance of the home life of our British birds.

In Wagtail-Land.

Here at all events were Yellow Wagtails nesting in a colony, and they probably had so nested for time out of mind, for we were told by our guide that he had found the same colony a year or two previously nesting at another spot not far away, but an unexpected flood had swamped the nests and induced the birds to change their quarters. Between us and the Wagtails was "a moat defensive" in the shape of a wide and deep ditch, from which presumably the earth which now formed the bank of the dyke had been excavated, but we managed to leap this by the aid of the long punt-pole (not without sundry protests from its owner) and found ourselves transported in a single instant into Wagtail-land. We threw ourselves down on the soft green grass and gazed with great delight upon the enchanting picture of bird-life before our eyes. On two sides Wagtail-land was bounded by the above-mentioned deep ditch; on the other two sides by a forest of graceful reeds, waving and whispering in the breeze, and a marsh from which was wafted the sweet scent of mint; above were the blue sky and the raeing clouds.

The Ubiquitous Red Mite.

A Way to Keep Them Within Bounds.

By Sub Rosa.

I THINK I once, in an article I wrote, used the phrase, "that there was nothing certain about bird breeding except its disappointments." Most fanciers of long standing will uphold me in that. Things may in the first year or two go as well as the proverbial marriage bell, although I might add, by way of parenthesis, that a hen-pecked acquaintance of mine once said that the bell is the only thing about married life that does go well. That pessimistic view must have been acquired from his wife putting an end to his breeding birds. But, as I was saying, a fancier may do extraordinarily well for a year or two, and the fortunate fancier's outlook on things generally, and birdy matters in particular, are very bright. I know. I once reared eighty youngsters from thirteen hens, and my outlook on life was so bright I bought the wife a new hat. Next year I only reared 20, or thereabouts. Pride always goes before a fall. But in these few notes it is my intention to write about one of the certainties of bird breeding—red mite. They—like the poor—are always with us, in quantities more or less, according to the precautions we take against them. Stay! Did I say always with us? I am wrong. I once read a paragraph—I think in CAGE BIRDS (all the best things appear in CAGE BIRDS), written, I presume, by a lady, in which the writer had not seen a red mite for 20 years: but as the precautions she took were extraordinary—but impracticable to a working-man fancier—I can quite believe it. She washes her cages and perches every day with disinfectant and hot water, soaks nests in camphor, and wipes wires with a wet cloth, as well as having a specially made cage. I can imagine the mites having a lively time of it, but I should not suspect the lady of breaking any records in breeding youngsters.

Lovers of the Darkness.

It is not necessary to take such elaborate precautions to keep the mites within reasonable bounds. Given a cage without crevices, well enamelled every two or three years, and scrubbed out twice a year with disinfectant, cleaned out once a week, and perch ends dipped in paraffin occasionally, no one need be troubled overmuch with red mite. A raw novice not accustomed to the hiding places of the mites may not be able to locate them, but if there are any about he will find about their hiding places a lot of little white specks, which a writer termed their "spoor," but is really the excrement. They, the mite, are not on view in the daytime; they love darkness rather than light, I suppose, because their deeds are evil; and they only attack their hosts at night, retiring to their lair with the daylight. I once adopted a simple but effective plan to counteract the ravages of the midnight marauders. My perches have half-an-inch of cage wire at the back-end to prevent mites lodging between perch and cage back, and to prevent them from descending on to their hosts at that end, I plastered a little carbolic soft soap (Kill-M-Right it is called) on the very end of perch out of sight of the bird. I don't think the mites liked that arrangement; and painting the front end of perch with paraffin about twice a week had the effect of keeping them in check, and allowed the birds to sleep comfortably. They are such inconspicuous little beggars that it is easy for them to escape the notice of a new beginner. I remember once, at the outset of my career as a bird breeder, I had a hen give up sitting, and I was at sea as to the cause until I examined the nest. Since then, I have always used Keatings in the nest plentifully. I never kill a spider in my bird room

Dressing or Faking.

The Legitimate and the Immoral.

By "Lorgnette."

OF course, we all know that our birds need a certain amount of preparation for show, and it has occurred to me that in these few notes we may consider how far legitimate dressing goes, and where faking begins. I think I am within the mark when I say that our hobby is the cleanest section, as regards faking, of any in the Fancy; still, a few cases may come before our notice where faking is palpable. But, taken on the whole, I am happy to say that faking, as regards canaries, is conspicuous by its absence. Take the Crest. This variety is supposed to be the one where most dressing is required. If we had a Crest, good in all points, with extra large crest, but, say, a feather or two persisting in sticking up in the centre, should we be on the right side of the border line which divides dressing from faking if we were to remove those feathers? Personally, I think most fanciers are blessed with consciences elastic enough to admit that in those circumstances it would be legitimate dressing.

The Case of the Yorkshire.

Now we will take the case of the Yorkshire. We will suppose we have a bird of beautiful length, back, head, neck, etc., but which is, unfortunately frilled on chest. should we be allowed to remove the feathers which offend us? Or, as some breeders would say, would it be right if they were to happen to "come out in the wash"? In that case I should say, no; emphatically no. But you may say, "Surely, if it is legitimate in the case of the Crest, it ought to be in the Yorkshire." Let us examine the two cases thoroughly. In the case of the Crest, it is not a glaring fault, by which I mean it is not a fault of the breeders really. No matter how well our birds may be bred, even from a couple of perfect show Crests, we should be liable to get a youngster from them of the description I have mentioned, just a feather or two sticking up, as it were, from sheer cussedness. But the fault in the Yorkshire is a breeder's fault, a real fault. It may arise from the breast bone being too prominent. In that case, the structure, the anatomy of the bird is at fault, and should either be remedied in its mate, or the bird should be discarded altogether. Or it may arise—and in most cases it does—from the feathers growing sideways, i.e., pointing towards the centre instead of downwards, which causes the feathers to overlap each other. A real good Yorkshire breeder will not have this sort in his room. Some say that it is because the bird is too thin, which causes the breast bone to become too prominent. It is a fallacy. No canary is too thin if it is really healthy, and a bird that has to be fattened, as they do chickens at a poultry farm, to show off its points, is a faulty bird. The proper remedy lies in the breeding room, in selecting birds whose feathers grow in a downward direction, instead of across the body, and those whose breast bone is not too prominent.

The same remarks apply to the Norwich. Sometimes we may have a good bird which has too much fluff at the thighs. That is a breeder's fault, and is either the result of too much double buffing, or is the result of a dip in Crest blood, perhaps. To remove the feather from the thigh is faking, because it is a fault that can be remedied in the breeding room. I don't know much about the Lizard, except to admire a good one when I see it, so I will confine my remarks to an expression of an old friend of mine, who has bred Lizards (although it must be distinctly understood that the expression is his, not mine), and it is: "That to be successful in Lizards it is necessary for one to be a good artist."

A GROUP OF BEAUTIES FROM FOREIGN CLIMES.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

An article specially written round Mr. Goodchild's charming coloured plate.

OF all the many gorgeous coloured plates that have graced the issues of special numbers of CAGE BIRDS, the present certainly stands unrivalled. Mr. Goodchild has placed in happy juxtaposition "Gems" from many climes, and, if every figure is not a rara avis, each is a feathered gem of which any owner might well be proud. Personally, I think one of the charms of the plate is, that with one exception, the birds figured are not beyond the means of the ordinary fancier.

Differences of Disposition.

What more can I say, in introduction, than add that every figure on the plate is a portrait. Of course, all could not be kept kept together in the one aviary, either indoors or out, for the Blue Pie would be using his smaller brethren as part of the menu, and that exquisite, the Blue-winged Green-Fruitsucker, has not yet been sufficiently tested in a mixed series (grading upward, say, from a Waxbill to a Thrush) for anyone to speak with authority, but personally I should not hesitate to include it, if the aviary were a large one. Neither is the Long-tailed or Giant Whydah always safe, save in very roomy quarters, with the "Small Ornamental Finches."

The Blue-Winged Green-Fruitsucker (Chloropsis hardwickii).

There are few, if any, more beautiful or fascinating birds than the species of the genus Chloropsis. From every standpoint is this true; they possess gorgeous and silken plumage, are full of character, mimics of no mean order, and "fear no man," whether kept in cage or aviary; moreover, they are hardy and enduring, once they have been nursed over the period immediately following importation, and what more can the bird-lover require?

This, one of the many beautiful and interesting birds which India gives to the adherents of aviculture, ranges over the Himalayas, extends to Tenasserim, and also occurs in the Malay Peninsula. In view of the coloured picture, description appears almost a waste of time, yet for purposes of comparison of male and female, it may be advantageous to give it:—Male: Above, rich grass-green, with a narrow frontal band of yellow, which merges into and suffuses with the green of head and sides of neck; lores, lower eye region, ear-coverts, chin, throat and upper breast, velvety black, relieved with two moustachial streaks of hyacinth-blue; remainder of lower plumage fiery orange-saffron; flanks green; shoulder patch, turquoise-blue; lesser wing-coverts, verdigris-blue; other coverts and primary quills, black edged with purplish-ultramarine-blue; secondaries, with brown inner and green outer webs, tertiaries and inner coverts, green; bill, black; irides, dark brown; legs and feet, plumbeous; total length, 7½ins.; tail, 3. Female: Above, green; wing-coverts, green, except the lesser, which are blue; quills brown, the primaries edged blue, the others with the outer webs green; tail, green; moustachial streaks, palish cobalt; sides of head and neck, chin, throat and flanks, green, washed with blue on the throat; remainder of under parts, dull brownish orange.

The Fair Sex Not Always Available.

It will be thus seen that these beautiful birds are easy to sex, but, unfortunately, hens are not often obtainable, and consequently costly; none of the species has as yet been bred in captivity, but Dr. Amsler, of Eton, has come very near to success with the Gold fronted. I do not know of any instance of their having been bred in captivity in India either, though they are kept there by Anglo-Indians in aviaries and cages. But, quite apart from breeding, this or some other species of Chloropsis is quite one of the nicest cage-pets I know; he is so tractable, once he has become accustomed to his owner and surroundings. He can be let out of his cage for a fly, and can always be enticed back again in a moment or two by a mealworm or grape. While out, he will take all sorts of liberties with his owner's person, use him for a perch or any other purpose his majesty chooses; while, if you think mealworms, he becomes animated at once, and puts his head on one side with a sort of "Who said Mealworms?" expression, and when the tin appears he can scarcely contain himself. Down he swoops to the tin, and cannot be driven off till he has regaled himself with a few. As a mimic he is simply great, nothing comes amiss to him, from the plaintive call of a White-eye to the song of the Thrush or Blackbird! But, I must pause, for space, even in a double number, has its limits. As regards food, I always supply ripe fruit, ad lib and varied, milk sop, insectile mixture (very little taken), and some live insects; in a roomy garden aviary they are great fly-catchers.

A Study of Cinnamon Blood in Canaries.

See Mr. Norman's Coloured Plate accompanying this Issue.

THE fine coloured plate which the talented Mr. Norman has provided for the delectation of readers of our twelfth Birthday Number will be of more than passing interest to the majority of those engaged in Canary breeding, for that potent factor known as "cinnamon blood" offers mysteries for solution to the keepers of so many of the modern varieties of Canary. In some breeds—notably Yorkshires and Borders—the value of a dash of cinnamon blood in helping to attain perfection of quality (silkiness) of plumage and even colour, is widely admitted, but its vagaries are understood, even partially, by but few.

Investigation of the intricacies of cinnamon inheritance is a fascinating study, and no one has ever been more strongly attracted by it than that able fancier, the late Mr. J. North, for so many years the Canary specialist of CAGE BIRDS. We are tempted to reprint the following passages—making them rather disjointed, perhaps, in the process—from the brilliant paper he wrote around this subject in the early part of 1905.

"We can rest assured that we are dealing with something that has been elaborated in England, and although I do not contend that Canaries are original natives of Britain, what I do say is that after having been imported into these isles it was through the fanciership of our forefathers that several distinct breeds were specialised and cultivated, and notably so the Cinnamon. . . . .

"On the other hand, there is a popularly accepted notion, which I want you to discard from your minds, and that is that wild Canaries are 'yellow' or 'canary-coloured' birds. They are nothing of the kind, but are dusky green, heavily striped down the back, with underparts light yellowish-green, flight feathers, tail feathers, legs, feet, nails and beak all dark. . . .

Things Not What They Seem.

"Now science which is classified knowledge says the colour of the wild Canary is not green, but a mixture of black and white which are not colours at all, but may form grey, which is neutral), yellow and reddish-brown, and that its green appearance is caused by the refractive power of the plumage, showing up to our eyes those rays of light which make green, or that which looks green, etc. . . .

"There is not a shred of evidence that Cinnamon-coloured Canaries have ever been found in a wild or free state. In fact, I have never come across a hint that such was the case, for everything points the other way about, viz., that the green is the original wild colour, and that the 'cinnamon' is a 'sport' under domestication. The two colours are even now so intimately associated that when you are breeding from anything but a Cinnamon cock and full Cinnamon-blooded hen you cannot tell precisely what colours you are going to get. . .

"From the very earliest days of the Cinnamon I am convinced that in-and-in-breeding has been practised, and I think we may go a step further, and put it down that in-breeding or Sib-breeding is in some way accountable for the production of Cinnamon colour.

"The first Cinnamon birds produced were doubtless very different indeed to those now winning prizes; they were different in name, in size, and tone of colour. Originally they were called 'Quakers,' from the dove-coloured garb, and 'Duns,' meaning brown, and they were not whole or self-coloured, but broken, or pied, or variegated. By the late W. A. Blakston we are informed that the breeders in Norwich City produced some sort of birds, as a sort of bye-product, that when matched to dun hens threw youngsters of richer colour and quality than pre-existing 'Duns.' And these were eventually called Cinnamons, because their colour was thought to resemble the spice.

"We are not told what the old Norwich City breeders were doing with dun hens, but I have no doubt they were extracting the silky quality of feather, which always goes with decent Cinnamons, and which to-day forms one of the chief characteristics of the Norwich Canary, and I have no doubt the same sort of pairings are still often made in preference to an ordinary Green.

Colour and Quality Improved.

"Greens have been recommended in many text-books as being essential for occasional crossing with Norwich, but as a matter of practice the dark birds are not very often so employed, and I do not think that it has ever been contended that the produce of a Clear Norwich and a Green have derived any improvement in the quality of feather from the Green parent, but where a Cinnamon hen is matched to a Clear Norwich cock the youngsters inherit both increment of colour and silkiness of plumage."

After going at length into various aspects of Cinnamon crossing and its results, showing, amongst other things, the possibility of obtaining Green birds containing 100 per cent. (that is full per cent.) Cinnamon blood and self-Cinnamon hens that contained as little as 3 per cent., of Cinnamon blood, Mr. North continues:—

"One would think that in a matter that admitted of so much variation the two fundamental rules that we have formulated—(1) That a Cinnamon or Cinnamon-bred cock paired to a non-Cinnamon-bred hen can throw only Cinnamon daughters, and (2) that a Cinnamon hen cannot throw any Cinnamon youngsters except when paired to a Cinnamon-bred cock—could not be in all cases rigidly maintained, and I have known several instances where No. 1 has appeared to lapse.

"I once looked, with the breeder, into a nest of young Crest stock, and found two birds with pink eyes and cinnamon variegation, one turned out to be a cock, and the breeder did not know of the existence of Cinnamon blood in either parent. The mother was a clear body with dark crest of known dark eye non-Cinnamon pedigree, and a great winner herself, and the father was a Green-marked and green-eyed. One would conclude he was Cinnamon-bred.

"Another case was of a nearly self Cinnamon cock and a winner of prizes at Crystal Palace and many other places; he was a big feathery bird, with a well-shaped but somewhat small crest; his father was a good Green, known to have some Cinnamon in him, but the mother's family had none that could be traced.

"A breeder in Essex bought a pair of dark-eyed, green-marked birds, and bred a clear body Cinnamon Crested cock from them, which was quite contrary to rule and to everyone's expectation. Another prize-winning cock, with good cinnamon crest and cinnamon wings, was thought by its breeder to be a hen.

Exceptions Which Prove (?) the Rule.

"These instances are quite out of the usual course, and seeing the very great difficulties in the path of those who try to breed such cocks, and the poor success which has often attended their struggles of many years, are inexplicable, for even if they were entirely new 'sports' one would expect them more likely to occur in hens than in cocks. Perhaps these are exceptions that prove the rule.

"But the second rule as to Cinnamon hens being unable to throw cinnamon-coloured chicks except when paired to a Cinnamon-bred cock, I have never known to vary, but why it should be so rigid I cannot explain, nor has any reason ever been offered so far as I know. I think it one of the greatest mysteries connected with Canary-breeding, and if anyone can throw light on the subject he will be patiently listened to. . .

"From these facts we deduce the statement that the cinnamon colour is got in the cocks with difficulty, but in the hens with facility, so that in commencing the work of crossing it would be the better plan to use a Cinnamon cock and another variety of hen. . . .

"We have said that the cinnamon colour is midway between green on the one hand and clear on the other. The tendency may flow either way, but with different results for fanciers. I have no doubt that the light plumaged pink-eye birds, which are "Cinnamons" in all their acts and deeds, when bred in a certain way and not simply because they are pink-eyed, are invaluable for light muling purposes. The line for Mule breeders is to pair pink-eyed Yellow to pink-eyed Yellow, but discard all the Buffs, for the Yellows will produce plenty of buff Canaries and buff Mules."

New Roller Club at Wigan.

SIR,—Thanks for prompt insertion regarding our Roller club. We have already 20 members subscribed, which speaks highly of the prominence you gave our request, also for the enthusiasm of the Roller fanciers in this locality. We shall hold our first general meeting on Jan. 17, at 7 p.m., in the "Queen's Head," our present headquarters. Business, election of officers, etc. Will any fancier desirous of joining please attend or communicate with

PETER VICKERS,
6, Ormskirk Road, Newtown, Wigan.

Cage Bird Society for Spalding and District.

Sir,—In your issue of January 3 you were good enough to publish a letter upon the above suggested society. To our great surprise, we have only received one letter, and we notice in last week's "C.B." there was not a single correspondent wrote upon the matter. Where are all the Fanciers in this suggested limit of 20 miles radius, many of whom have asked us to form a society? Surely there are a few Fanciers left in Peterboro', Sleaford, Boston, Bourne, Holbeach, Long Sutton, and in many of the smaller places who would support us in our effort. Mr. Anton and myself cannot run a society or show on our own, therefore we again appeal to interested Fanciers to communicate with us if they are willing to help us to set the ball rolling.

W. R. MURRELL.

Southend and Southern Counties O.S.

Change of Title.

SIR,—Please announce in your valuable paper that the above society is changing its name to the Southend and Dis. C.B.S. We are asking for new members to join us; the annual sub. is 3s. We are having three shows during the year: Pair show, F.F. show, and a grand open show. We have two silver cups, silver teapot, and several other special prizes for members only, so come and join us, and win some specials. Full particulars will be sent on application. Wishing all our brother fanciers and friends a happy and prosperous breeding season.

Cinnamon Borders at the Scottish National Show.

SIR.—In thanking you for the splendid "portraiture" of one of my winning Cinnamon Borders, which appeared in last week's issue of CAGE BIRDS, allow me to explain regarding my 3rd Scottish National yellow hen, which your reporter inclined to associate with the L.C.B.A., and which remarks have caused some little controversy. I may state that the hen in question is not my L.C.B.A. winner, nor yet is she my "Palace" winner—she is not my first at Carlisle, nor my first at Haddington, nor is she the Hamilton Cup winner. These are five distinct or different yellow hens, all of which I had on view on my bench to-day—they are a great team of which I am proud, and they can be seen any time.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems), will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

BEST TO START WITH (T. B.).—Any of the hardy, free-breeding varieties which may strike your fancy, barring only those requiring highly-developed technical marks or other physical points, such, for example, as Lizards or Crests, would be quite suitable for you to begin with in order to get a year or two of practical experience before going into the more highly bred and valuable breeds. Rollers, if good song is of importance, would be quite the most suitable, but if fancy points are of more interest, either Borders, Norwich, or Yorkshires, in the order named, would be about the best all-round varieties for you to begin with.

A QUINTETTE (Witton).—(1) Yes, young cock Canaries will sing more or less if kept in groups of three or more in a good-sized flight cage, but under such circumstances you must not expect to get the best song out of them, and during the next few weeks you must also look ont for frequent quarrels. They will sing less because they will be more interested in accepting the, to them, challenge of any bird that presumes to open out. (2) Young birds that moulted reasonably early should be in song now, but when kept together in flights as yours are it is not uncommon for them to remain silent until the middle of January, when practically all healthy cocks will begin to come into song, and, as a rule, should be in good full song by the middle of February. (3) It is quite safe to give them green-food now providing you are quite sure that it has not been exposed to frost, and is not covered with rime, or sodden with snow water. On the whole, it is best not to give any freshly-gathered greenstuff whenever there is any frost about, or when the ground is covered with snow, or a thaw is in progress. Watercress is the best green-food at this season, but, if available, the leafy tips of the inner stalks of celery are very good, and the birds are exceptionally fond of them. If you can get green salads grown under cover you may, of course, use these just as you would in the milder seasons.(4) In your case, I should say it is not so much special feeding as separate caging that is required to bring the cocks into song. However, you may try giving them, in addition to the staple seed diet, about half a teaspoonful per bird of crushed sponge cake, with about half the quantity of a mixture of equal parts maw, sesame, and gold of pleasure mixed in it. Give this every second day for a fortnight or so, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, inga, millet, and teazle, and a morsel of banana, sweet apple, or watercress. (5) No, the hens certainly should not be left in the same flights as the cocks at this season. To do so will be practically sure to bring them into breeding condition prematurely. They will be all the better for being in large flights, but only hens should be in the same flight. Do not mix the sexes in the same cages at this time.

PECULIAR BEHAVIOUR (W. G. H.). The symptoms you describe are due to the nervous strain of abnormal excitement. Such birds not infrequently die with extreme suddenness whilst enjoying the best of health and whilst singing vigorously. The most you can do in such cases is to keep the bird as far as possible from exciting influences. They are, as a rule, most suited for single-caged pets, where they will not be incited by rivalry to overdo themselves with excitement. You should keep it where it will not see other cocks singing, and if it was also out of earshot so much the better. Medical treatment is of little use, but you may try adding six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a three-penny-piece to the water for three consecutive days, and afterwards give instead six drops of tincture of gentian and four of dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight or so. Your feeding is quite suitable except that it would be better to give a small spray of watercress when it is in a fit condition to use in place of the apple. The emulsion you name would do no harm, and probably no good. If you are very desirous to try it, give four drops on a morsel of bread and milk every second day for a week or two. Sprinkle bread with maw or soft sugar, if necessary, to get the bird to eat it.

A TRIPLET (F. S. Doble) —(1) It is not essential to store seed in an air-tight vessel. Providing you can keep it quite secure from the unwelcome visits of mice, it will be just as good if kept in partitioned cardboard boxes. You should see that the boxes are not impregnated with a strong smell from some previous contents which could be communicated to the seed stored therein. (2) This bird's peculiarity of eating various seeds only under certain circumstances is an idiosyncrasy pure and simple, and is of no importance. As regard the moulting see that it is not exposed to cold draughts or rapid and extreme fluctuations of heat and cold. Keep it in a cosy, but not necessarily overheated, place where the temperature is fairly equable. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed only for a month, and in addition give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a morsel of banana, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw, and also give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, and teazle. In the drinking water add six drops of tincture of gentian and three of tincture of steel every second day until the feathers cease dropping. (3) It is an old and exploded idea that inga is poisonous. If used injudiciously it is, just as any other seed may be, apt to prove deleterious, but properly used it is absolutely harmless, and a valuable addition to the fancier's larder. The writer you name was, in his day, a great authority in his own special line, but was not, I am afraid, very reliable on Canaries.

AILING YORKSHIRE HEN (Segrave).—The symptoms shown by your hen may be simply due to your room being rather colder than the one she was accustomed to before she came into your possession, or it is just possible that it is due to a little constipation, which again may be due to some slight change in your system of feeding. If it is neither of these she is probably suffering from a slight bronchial affection. Try the following treatment for a fortnight or so, and if the bird is not quite well in that time write again, and I will advise your further. Keep the bird in a comfortable place, quite away from the chilly cold side, but do not overdo the matter and overheat the bird. In addition to the usual seed diet, give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day for a fortnight or so. On the alternate days, add to the drinking water 20 drops of the following mixture. Mixture: Two drachms each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one drachm each of ipecacuanha wine and chlorodyne, and eight grains of iodide of potassium. If there is any sign of constipation add to the water for two consecutive days before commencing the above treatment six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a three-pennypiece.

INCESSANT MOULTING (Novice).—You say nothing about the conditions under which the bird is kept, but I suspect it is either hung in a window or in some place where it is exposed to rapid and extreme variations of temperature, and probably also cold draughts. Is the cage hung in a window? This position, which is far too common, must invariably give rise to this perpetually moulting condition sooner or later. If you have the bird in such a position, remove it at once to a position within the room, and let it be a bright and sunny one if possible, and whilst free from cold draughts it should be as well ventilated as possible. A box cage is also the best for singing birds. Do not allow it to hang near or over burning lights in the evening. Having taken these initial steps, give the bird a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. In addition to this, give separately every second day for a month half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and finally sprinkled with maw seed. On the intervening days give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, and teazle, and also a morsel of banana. Then dissolve half a drachm of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in an ounce of sherry, add a teaspoonful of glycerine, and give 20 drops of this mixture in the drinking water two days in every three for a week. In the next week give instead 20 drops of Chemical Food every second day, and in the third and fourth weeks repeat first and second week's in the same order.

NOT SINGING, NOT MOULTING (H.G.).—(1) As the bird appears to be in good health, it is probably only waiting for the spring to come before it opens out with its full song. Many birds after their first few seasons take a few weeks' rest after the moult is quite finished before resuming song. See that it is kept in a bright and healthy position, free from extremes of heat and cold, and from cold draughts. Give a staple of plain canary seed only. Give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a morsel of banana, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle, maw, and gold of pleasure, and also a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar. Continue this feeding for a fortnight or so, and in the meantime add to the drinking water 20 drops of whisky, ten of lemon juice, and six of glycerine every second day. (2) You should make yourself sure whether this bird is exposed to cold draughts or rapid and extreme fluctuations of heat and cold, and if this is so, alter these conditions as a first step towards treatment. See reply to "Novice" in this issue on this subject. It is not unlikely that the bird will go through a full moult as soon as the weather gets mild in the spring. To save loss of valuable time, if you wish to breed with the bird you should treat her as advised to "M.J.D." (1) in last issue. Your treatment, when she last commenced to cast feathers, was not bad, but it did not go quite far enough.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

TROUBLE WITH A GOLDFINCH (W. H. H.).—I have carefully read your letter, and although you say your bird is not constipated, I feel rather confident that this is the cause of the trouble. There is a drooping action with a straining to void, after which comes the jerky motion you describe. You have given him salts, also buckthorn, without an improvement. Instead of relying upon medicines, I think you will do well to make a slight alteration in your mode of feeding him. Discontinue for a time to give him canary with his other seeds; give a rather larger allowance of sunflower and add an extra pinch of niger and dandelion. Offer him some soaked teazle and rape, be rather liberal with green food, and try him with a cube of stale bread soaked in hot milk with a dusting of sugar on it. Watch him carefully to see how he behaves, and if no improvement, I would advise ten drops of dandelion juice in the drinking water, fresh daily. When he has somewhat recovered, a course of Chemical Food would strengthen him—a small teaspoonful in an ordinary glass or china drinker. Boil the water first and allow it to stand until cool. Place him in your largest flight cage, and hang on the bath whenever the weather is at all suitable.

FEEDING A MAGPIE (Magpie).—I fear you have been indulging your bird to such an extent that he has become somewhat dainty. I have had many Magpies, and never had the slightest trouble with them as regards food; they would simply eat anything. If you have enough scraps to keep him going, all well and good, but I always mix some staple food daily, sometimes Melox or chicken meal, with a spoonful of meat meal or lime crissel in with it, and about twice a week a feed of insectile food as given to more delicate birds. He also has scraps, mice and sparrows when procurable, a few mealworms now and then, beetles, and insects in season. A Magpie requires change of food as much as any bird I know of; he will quickly tire of such delicacies as freshly killed Sparrows and mice. By your letter you appear to be treating your bird on rational lines; remember the Magpie can go many hours without food and suffer no inconvenience, so you need not worry if he will not clear up the staple food; he will take it when really hungry. Mix a little every day, and see that the feeding vessel is perfectly clean.

PAIRS FOR HYBRID BREEDING (Truly a Novice).—Pleased to assist you. Don't apologise for asking questions. In the case of the Canary-Bullfinch, the Canary will have to be the cock bird, and you are more likely to be successful by using an English hen Bullfinch. In trying for the Goldfinch-Bullfinch, I would advise you to get both English birds, as large as possible; but with the Lesser Redpoll and Bullfinch, the Redpoll should be a large one, and the Bullie hen medium size, or the eggs will be infertile. The Lesser Redpoll-Canary and Goldfinch-Canary are not very difficult Hybrids to produce. For this purpose I should feel inclined to use a large English bird or a smart, sprightly Foreign bird—one full of health. You would require some two-compartment breeding cages from two to three feet long. These should have a wire and also a wooden partition, so that you can shut the cock bird away from his partner and use whichever partition you think desirable. Hen Bullfinches will generally build a nest and sit fairly well in a cage, but cannot be relied upon to rear the young. Occasionally one will, but they cannot be depended upon. You would require several pairs of common Canaries to hatch and rear. Respecting suitable hen Canaries, see answer to "Novice." Clear Hybrids are certainly more valuable than dark ones, but variegated birds are not, as a rule. A really good dark bird will fetch a big price. Some fanciers admire them quite as much as the lightly marked ones. Sib. bred hens are birds inbred with Canaries that produce occasionally lightly marked Hybrids. I would advise you not to bother with these until you have had some experience in breeding ordinary dark birds. It is not possible to tell if a hen Canary will throw light birds, but fanciers who have a strain that they have bred with for years, look to get an occasional lightly-marked one in a brood.

THRUSH WITH SWELLING (E. P. Wharton).—The cause of your trouble is that you are not feeding your bird properly. Get a good brand of insectile food as given to the more delicate birds, and feed him on this for a time, mixing with it some scraped raw carrot, boiled potatoes, or chopped greenstuff, such as watercress. Offer him three or four mealworms, beetles, or some scoured gentles, daily. This change of diet will probably disperse the swelling, but you might catch him, bathe the place with warm water, dry it on a soft cloth, and just touch it with a clean camel-hair paint brush that has been dipped in tincture of jodine. The booklet on the Thrush, published at this office, would be useful to you.

FINCH FOR HYBRID BREEDING (G. Etherington).—Your Finch, which you call No. 3, is certainly not too old to breed, and would be a very suitable bird; but if either of the others are larger I would advise you to use it, as size plays such an important part in awarding prizes to Hybrids. Your other two Finches should be singing a bit now. Are you sure they are cock birds? Compare their blaze with No. 3. See if it goes well back over the eye, and if they have the same perky manner. Note the shape of the head and beak. If they are hens, and as steady as you say, I would not part with them. They would be valuable for Hybrid breeding. Your cage is just the right kind for the purpose. Place the selected Finch in the opposite compartment to the hen. You could draw the slide occasionally for an hour or two. The cock will be ready when his beak is quite clear and he sings and shows off before the hen. She will be hopping about the cage, flapping her wings, and repeatedly calling, and running about with anything she can find to build with. When they are both in this condition and the weather is favourable, you can draw the slide for good and give them plenty of building materials.

TROUBLE WITH LINNET (Lover of Birds).—Have you examined your bird for insects? If not, do so at once Hold him in the hand for a few minutes, and if he has lice you will soon see them running over your hand. You must then dress him well with insect powder, working it well into the feathers before returning him to his cage. Place a clean cloth over it at night and examine this for red mite; if you find any, place the bird in a new cage and thoroughly scour or burn the old one. If no insects, catch the bird and gently rub in the way of the feathers a little warm kerol ointment night and morning for five or six days. It would be as well to give him the following tonic: Procure from the chemist an ounce of the crystals of citrate of iron and ammonia, and dissolve as much as will cover a sixpenny piece in three tablespoonfuls of water. Give it fresh daily in a glass drinker. Let him have the largest cage you can spare for him, and give him a bath frequently.

ANOTHER LINNET QUERY (F. S. Doble).—The seed you send is of excellent quality, but there are some kinds in it that Linnets do not care for, consequently your bird has contracted the habit of throwing it about. I think you would do better to make up the mixture as advised to G. Cook in this issue. You need not fix a feeding perch in your cage unless you like. If he can only just reach the seed, that is quite sufficient. He will not be able to waste so much of it. Let him have a bath as often as you can. Give it him in the early morning, so that he and his cage are quite dry by roosting time. You need not give him soft food. About the only greenfood you can get now is chickweed, groundsel, and watercress. Give him a spray of one or the other two or three times a week. Why not get the Nutshell booklet on the Linnet, or the British Bird Manual. They will give you heaps of information.

SUITABILITY OF CAGES (Bird Lover).—You would have done better and assisted me greatly in coming to a decision respecting your cage had you given me the measurements of it. By your description it appears to be a Roller Canary song cage, suitable for a small Canary or Finch, such as a Redpoll or Siskin. The Robin is an active bird and requires a rather roomy cage—something from sixteen to twenty inches in length. Even with this size he wants it cleaned out very frequently. I would not advise you to use the small cage for him, and I do not think you would like to see him cramped up in it.

VARIOUS ITEMS (C.P.).—I think three pairs would be quite sufficient to place in your aviary. You gain nothing by overcrowding. Let the cocks be a Goldfinch, Linnet, and Siskin, and the hens a Bullfinch, Greenfinch, and Redpoll, or a Canary, or even all four if you feel inclined. To feed them you should make a seed hopper with three partitions—one for canary, one summer rape, and the other teazle. Give them twice a week (a spoonful for each bird) the following: equal parts of linseed, niger, maw, dandelion, thistle, and gold of pleasure. On other days let them have a small handful of sunflower. You had better lightly crack it, or the Bullfinch and Greenfinch will probably eat the lot before the others can get at it. (2) The Siberian Goldfinch is the largest of the Goldfinches, and can never be mistaken for a British bird. He is whiter round the cheek and down the centre of the breast. Of course, some small Foreign birds are sometimes bought as English, but there is an indescribable something about them that enables an expert to detect them. (3) The bird you describe is the Tree Sparrow; rather an interesting bird, as they are not particularly common anywhere. They are not thought much of as exhibition birds, and do not stand much chance in a mixed class with some of the more popular species against them, but a really good specimen should beat a bad one of any other kind. Don't apologise; glad to assist you.

OUTDOOR AVIARY (T. L. Hill).—I think your suggestion is a good one respecting your aviary. As fowls have been kept in the sheds at some previous time, I would advise you to fumigate both places thoroughly before commencing operations. The only weak spot I can see in your arrangement is that the open portion will face the west, where the rain and the rough winds come from. You had better board up the front about two feet six inches from the bottom, and let the roof hang well over the sides, and possibly you can plant some tall privet to make a hedge along the front. This would shelter the birds immensely. In an aviary like yours will be you could keep anything if you had the experience. I would advise you to commence with some of the Hardbills and keep one or two of the commoner Softbills in cages until you learn to manage them. These would give you no end of pleasure, and whet your appetite for more. The Gold Crests are not easily kept, but the Blackcap is not a very difficult subject to those who have had a little experience. Shall be pleased to advise you further when you have put up your aviary, if you require it.

BIRDS FOR GARDEN AVIARY (E.E.S.).—(a) Two pairs would be quite enough in your small aviary. The most likely British Finches to breed in captivity are the Greenfinches, and for another pair you might try Goldfinches. You should cover the wood portion of your aviary with coarse wire netting, and work some heather and gorse, etc., in among it. Do it as roughly as you possibly can; the birds will take to it and find building sites for themselves, although a few artificial nests would be useful. Wild birds will frequently take to them when in captivity. (b) I would not recommend Bramble-finches; I fear they would only disappoint you. (c) No; the Bramblefinch-Bullfinch has not yet been produced, but it may be some day—one never knows. (d) Several Softbills have bred in captivity, but they require management by someone who is well up in keeping them, and attending to their wants. I would not advise you to make your initial effort with them. Try the Finches first, and keep one or two of the commoner Softbills in cages before you attempt any breeding operations with them. A Blackbird or Skylark would make capital birds to begin with; then, if you are successful with these, you could add one or two of the hardiest of the warblers. Yes; Hawfinches have been bred in captivity, and if you felt inclined to try them, you had better give up the whole of the aviary to them. I presume you know that they do not live on just the same seeds as the commoner Finches. I fancy the British Bird Manual published at this office would be useful to you, and give you a good insight into the habits and manner of treatment of all our cage birds in captivity.

WHITE-LEGGED GOLDFINCHES (Knap-Hill).—No, you cannot catch White-legged Goldfinches. This whiteness of the legs is acquired after they have been in confinement for some time. The legs appear to clear during the process of the moult, after each one they get whiter, until they are as clear as a Canary's. The food for a Goldfinch in confinement would be as follows: Teazle seed 4 parts, canary 3 parts, hemp 2 parts, linseed 1 part, sunflower and German rape ½ part each; this will be for the staple food. Then make another mixture of niger 3 parts, maw 1 part, thistle 3 parts, dandelion and sesame 2 parts, gold of pleasure 1 part. Give a teaspoonful of this about three times a week, and if you can get a good wild seed mixture you could use it on the other days. Many seed merchants now put up a good wild seed mixture which is particularly useful for captive Finches. See that it is clear and free from mustiness. If you would like to try your hand at breeding hybrids between the Goldfinch and Canary, you had better procure a good large Norwich hen. Secure one as soon as you can, so that she gets thoroughly used to the Finch before the spring. Be careful to select a healthy specimen, and a young one if possible. Your Finch should have seeding tops of chickweed or groundsel about twice a week; both of these you can procure nearly all through the winter. See that it is quite free from frost.

STOCKING AN AVIARY (Tamey).—I like the arrangement of your aviary, and think it very suitable for British birds, but there is just one thing: I think you should either board over the whole of the top or have some means of covering it in very bad weather, particularly if it faces the west, otherwise the rain would drive right under it and make it very uncomfortable for the birds. Your selection of cock birds is right, excepting that I do not think it advisable to have two of the same species; they only waste their time fussing about after each other, instead of attending to the hens. If you want another cock bird or two, you could put in a Siskin and a Twite. I do not think you will be

FOREIGN BIRDS.

AVIARY QUERIES ("Comic Crook").—Your outoor aviary should have a ventilator fixed in the oor end of room at the highest point. A door bout 12 by 6 inches will suffice, the aperture to e covered with wire netting on the inside, and he door (ventilator) operated from the outside by ord and pulley. All glass must be covered with ire netting on the inside, and it would be better f there was a large window in the front, which ould be left open during the hot summer months. t will also be wise to put a wire lobby either utside or inside the door, the latter for preerence, to prevent the escape of birds as you o in and out for attendance. (1) Grey and Green inging Finches; Avadavats; Grey, St. Helena, old-breasted and Orange-cheek Waxbills; Alario; ebra, Red-headed and Ribbon Finches; Firefinches, ordon Bleus, Lavender, and Gouldian Finches. For ich colour or striking form you could put cocks nly of Napoleon and Madagascar Weavers, Bishops), Paradise Whydah, and, if you do not bject to fruit-eaters, one or two odd Tanagers—ay, Superb, Tricolour, and Blue. (2) I should put n pairs except where otherwise stated; put in ome rush nests, husks, and boxes, and leave them o take their chances of breeding; some of them ertainly will breed. (3) I aim at as even a temerature as possible, from 50degs. to 60degs. F. 4) You will do better to put dead fir trees or omething similar in large pots or tubs—a living ree would soon be killed by disbudding—and put a edge (thicket) of pea sticks all along the back all.

ALEXANDRINE PARRAKEET (No Talkee, B.E.).—It all depends upon the age of the bird as to whether it ever will talk; there are many Alexandrines who have quite an extensive vocabulary, and there are many others who evidently believe that "silence is golden," except when in a rage, and then indulge in ear-splitting screams. A bird kept under the condition of yours, which goes in and out of cage at will, should ultimately prove responsive. Talk to it and pet it considerably, and I should say it will pick up some words and sentences sooner or later. You diet it apparently all right—plain biscuits, plain cake, and crusts of household bread can all be given—when it is at table have a little fruit, a nut, piece of biscuit handy, and let it have a little; it need only be denied that which is unwholesome for it. Keep cuttlebone and grit continually in the cage. It is quite natural for many species of parrots to regurgitate their food and then re-swallow it; if they were mated they would feed each other at such times—some individuals indulge more than others. A tame bird that does not scream and can be left to walk and fly about the room at will is worth a more extended trial; give it another six or nine months, at any rate, to develop. For a month give Dinneford's Magnesia sufficiently often to keep the bowels moving quite freely, but not so as to keep the voidings watery-loose. If it appears to want a tonic, put it on a course of syrup of phosphates in some form.

CHINESE QUAIL (M.M.P.).—It is quite evident that both your quails are in high condition, and that the illness you speak of was caused by egg-binding, and considering the weather, it is fortunate you did not lose the hen—such a contretemps is quite possible to recur with birds laying in such weather; the egg was evidently shell-less, or nearly so, and I fail to see how you are going to avoid a recurrence. I can only suggest, supply plenty of crushed mortar (lime) rubbish and cuttlebone, and giving her an aperient (Dinneford's Magnesia) in the drinking water, every other day for a week, and keeping them for the remainder of the winter in warm quarters. It is difficult to give a really helpful reply when no details as to treatment or housing is given.

IN ROUGH PLUMAGE (Mere).—Your nom-de-plume is well chosen, for you give me no details other than "it seems to be in good health, but its plumage is ragged and dusty-looking." It is impossible to give anyone a helpful reply on such data. All I can say is confine its diet to seed mixture, ripe fruit, nuts, green food, stale crusts, and biscuit. Also supply regularly grit, cuttlebone, and water, and keep several pieces of wood in the cage for it to exercise its teeth upon. Every fourth day (for a month) put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water—on other days put half a teaspoonful of byno-phosphates in the water, giving clear water once a week. While the severe weather lasts care must be exercised as to the use of a sprayer, but by choosing a mild day a spraying once a week would be beneficial; about 11 a.m. would be a good time; the water should be tepid, and a little essence of quassia added. Keep the bird away from cold air till dry.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

TOTTENHAM.—Pneumonia following on a chill; all other organs were quite healthy, and the bird was in first-rate condition.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

FANCY GETTING TO ITS ZENITH (A. E.).—Your ought to have been christened Jeremiah, my friend. We have no use for your letter. It is pessimistic drivel. Put your head under a tap every morning and cultivate a more cheerful spirit.

DISQ. YORKS. (H. H. Vanghan).—So many thanks for your nice letter. We are glad to have your approval of our view point, but, of course, many men many minds. We strive to steer an independent course, but it is terribly difficult at times. Glad you find "Our Canaries" of such help to you. It is a great work.

CATCHING A SQUIRREL (T. W. Kendrew).—Many thanks for interesting letter, but squirrels are not in our line.

NEW YEAR'S GREETING (F. J. Green).—Thanks for kind wishes. You will see that we have notified your change of address.

Birds Happy in Confinement.

SIR, As I have read in our weekly paper, CAGE BIRDS, remarks made by Mr. Hardy recently, I write to say I got an ordinary Linnet from a friend for a small sum, and it turned out to be a hen. Not feeling inclined to keep it, one day I let it loose, thinking no more of it. When visiting my aviary about 4 o'clock it was there, and as soon as the door opened it flew in over my head Since then, when I give it an occasional outing, it is sure to come back, and glad to have a shelter, which evidently shows there is no ill treatment in my aviary. I have two Thrushes, Blackbird, several Goldies and Canaries, all happy, and singing all through the winter. B. RICHARDS.

The Winning F.M. Linnet at Gateshead Show.

Sir,—Seeing that it was reported that our winning F.M. Linnet at Gateshead was the one we purchased from Mr. W. Curry (secretary of Gateshead Show) we thought it would interest fanciers to know that it was not the same bird. We bought it from Mr. J. Mackenzie, of Newcastle, and it had only been in our possession about six weeks. It was only its second time on the bench, it being first at Consett a week before Gateshead Show. We have since sold it to Mr. Parlett, of Sheffield, at a good figure, and hope he has every success with it. It won at the Scottish National Show. The bird we purchased from Mr. Curry is still in our possession.

JAMESON AND JOHNSON.

Points' Special at East Ham.

SIR,—I am a member of the East Ham Cage Bird Society, and a friend of mine is a member also, and we agreed, at the beginning of the year 1913, to show together as one in the name of Patton and Fisher. I spoke to the secretary about the matter, and he agreed with it, and said we would show as one. Nothing more was said about it, so we went on showing as one. At the end of the year we made 144 points with our birds, which entitled us to a prize for 4th most points. When the time came to give points' specials out I asked about the prize we had won, and the secretary told me that our points were not counted as one, which I should think should have been the case. When we sent our entries in we always made one schedule out, not two, and I am asking you if you can help me in the matter.

F. PATTON.

Specials at the Federation Show

SIR,—Would you kindly ask, through CAGE BIRDS, if there are any fanciers who have not yet had the specials which they won at the last Federation show, held last Jan. 17th and 18th, 1913. I have written to the show secretary twice or three times, but he has ignored my communications. It is now 12 months since the show, and I think it is now nearly time that I received them. I won special No. 22, for best Norwich, also special No. 3, for which I tied with Mr. and Mrs. Salter, but having made more entries than they, according to rules I am entitled to that.

Albino Sparrows in Kent.

SIR,—I have two splendid specimens of light self Cinnamon young House Sparrows. Unfortunately they are stuffed, both cock birds I should say. Both were shot in a farmyard in this parish, viz., Rookery Hill Farm, but on different occasions; being over run with birds feeding among the cornstacks and fowls, one of the sons shot among them, and when he picked up the birds he found he had shot a cinnamon one, and the same occurred on another occasion when another son fired at them. They had asked me to go up and try and catch them, as they had also seen a white one amongst them. I had nothing to catch them with; I told two bird catchers who had nets, but they did not go. I have the privilege of going anywhere about the farm and orchards and fields, which I often do in the breeding time, finding plenty of different kinds of birds' nests. I had rather they were alive instead of dead as they gave them to me, but I had them mounted. The white one has not been seen there lately, but has been at adjoining farms. I was told yesterday of a wren's nest, having had young and fledged, and hen laid again, in the garden at the back of the "Rising Sun," kept by Mr. Hawkes (your artist, Mr. H. N., knows the place and landlord well). If I called he would readily and with pleasure show me it.

Welsh Fanciers and the Palace Show.

Sir,—It has been suggested to me by Mr. Alf. Maggs (Port Talbot) and late of Cardiff, to apply to the G.W. Railway Company to run a saloon carriage to London on the night of February 6, so that cage bird fanciers en route may have an opportunity of travelling together, in order to attend the Palace Show. I, personally, think it a splendid suggestion, and it has also been approved of by several Fanciers at Swansea. Consequently I intend applying to the railway company for the privilege. May I be allowed to issue an invitation to Welsh Fanciers en route to join us and meet the train at their respective stations? All who favour the idea kindly drop me a postcard, so that I may proceed with arrangements. The saloon will travel from Swansea to Paddington, and for the addition of such a nominal fee as a sovereign, divided between us, in addition to the ordinary fare, we can not only ensure for ourselves additional comfort, but have seats guaranteed as well. I believe the ordinary excursion fare is about 8s. 6d., and the addition for the saloon would amount to about 8d. each. As the saloon will only hold about 30, I beg to urge all Fanciers who intend co-operating to forward me their names as early as possible. All who would like to return on Sunday night instead of Saturday night kindly say so, and if the number is sufficient I will apply to the railway company for the necessary permission.

Diploma Winners at the Palace Show.

SIR,—As you know, I won a diploma in novice Softbill section at Matlock Show. I intend showing at the Palace show in your scheme; I shall be glad if you will inform me if, to enter at the Palace, I have to pay 6d. for another coupon, besides the usual entry, or if the winning of a diploma entitles you to the scheme free. Please make this point clear, and accept my best thanks for the handsome diploma.

A Black Redstart Seen at Workington.

Sir,—Whilst taking a walk, in company with a young British bird enthusiast, on Dec. 21, near the site of the old West Cumberland Works at Workington, my friend, who had left me to follow some Redpolls he had observed, came back and informed me he had seen a black Redstart. I told him he must be mistaken, and that he had probably seen a Stonechat. He was, however, quite certain, so I accompanied him to the place, and in a very short time I saw a bird pop up from the ground on to a post. I got close to it and was astonished to find it was, as stated, a Black Redstart. I had it under observation for nearly half an hour, and got to within a dozen yards of it many times. During the last ten years I have known two adult males being taken in the same neighbourhood, one by Mr. Joseph Litt (a guard on the Cleator and Workington Junction Railway), near Borough Walls at Workington, and another by Mr. Wm. Nicholson, in the allotment gardens at Flimby. The latter came into my possession, and I kept it for two years. Many readers may wonder how it was my young friend recognised such a rare winter straggler to the British Isles, but at the present time I have one in my possession, and only last week he was in my bird room, and took a great interest in it.

This is the first time I have observed this beautiful migrant in a wild state during my observations, extending over a period of 25 years.

JOHN WILSON.

Another New Society.

Ardsley Cage Bird Fanciers on the Move.

SIR,—We intend to form a Cage Bird Society here at Ardsley, open to all within a radius of six miles of the Black Swan Inn, East Ardsley. Mr. Hargreaves, landlord of the above inn, has kindly offered us the use of a room. It is felt by the fanciers about here that the formation of a cage bird society will fill a long felt want here, and a meeting will be held at the above inn on Saturday, Jan. 17, at 7 p.m., to discuss formation of same and election of officers. A cordial invitation is given to all who would like to join, and we extend a special invitation to old members of the Morley and Dis. C.B.S., now defunct. Now, fanciers, is your chance to form a strong society. Come in crowds. Wishing CAGE BIRDS every success in the New Year.

How to Make Cage Bird Shows Pay.

Sir,—I have been very interested in the letters which have appeared in your columns with regard to shortage of entries at shows, and the different views set forth for remedying the same. My eight years' experience as a secretary of a society, viz. the W.C.O.S., Plymouth, has convinced me that the great drawback to getting a bumping entry is railway charges. My committee have tried many different ways to increase their entry, and we can only claim success with local and exhibitors that live within the 30-mile radius. I have made a comparison of Plymouth, Clapham, and Cardiff shows, and in all cases 75 per cent. of the exhibitors live within the 30-mile radius. As we were giving an extended prize list last year we made special effort to get at exhibitors in the North and Midlands, but with very little success. In 1911 Plymouth gave novice classes in Yorkshires, and had to cancel all but one of them. Clapham, with the same classification, had an average of 16 per class. I wrote to every exhibitor at Clapham, but had no response, and in this case quite 75 per cent. lived in and close around London. I think that in all cases it will be found that unless the district is a bird-keeping locality the shows will be failures. It is only shows of international character, such as the L.C.B.A., and the Palace, that attract exhibitors from a distance. My suggestion is that societies should adopt a graduated entry fee, somewhat on this principle, viz.: Presuming the entrance fee to be 1s. 6d., this fee should be charged for local and up to 30 miles; over 30 and under 50 miles, 1s. 4d.; over 50 and under 100, 1s. 2d.; and over the 100 miles, 1s. per entry. I am of opinion that this would be found to pay most societies, because exhibitors have to count the cost, and most of us know that entrance fees, plus railway expenses, dip deep into prize-money.

How to Run an Aviary in a Backyard.

SIR,—May I be permitted to give some experiences with a small aviary, in an ordinary suburban back-yard? So much has been written regarding aviary matters, yet a gulf seems to appear at the very onset. Others write of large, sumptuously furnished, naturally arranged aviaries, and mine, forsooth, is 6ft. by 4ft. by 6ft. Even this little place, however, has been a source of great pleasure to me, and I can pleasurably report my first successful breeding results. What if they are only Budgerigars! even that was not so easy as I thought. My aviary is boarded at the top, back and both sides; wire being in front only, facing south-west. The great trouble was with mice, which burrowed from outside, underneath, into the cage, and even after cementing the floor it was found that they nested underneath the cement, making their runs from corner to corner, so honeycombing and undermining the cement that it shrank away from the walls, making an easier route by which entrance could be effected, and the seed purloined. So this floor must needs come up. It was then dug out to a depth of 9 inches, filled up again with concrete well rammed down, and a facing of cement put on top, with the pleasing result that no mice enter now that way. In fact, only a stray one finds its way now and then through the front, which, being boarded half way up, and having two wires, six inches apart for the other half, enables one, on the first suspicion of a visit from Mr. Mouse, to set a trap on the ledge between the two wires, and very shortly our friend's visits are put a stop to. Wishing the hobby every success.

Railways and Shows.

Courtesy of the G.E.R.

Sir.—We noticed that the officials of the Sheffield Show had considerable difficulty with the railway officials. It occurred to us that in view of the above, a word or two re railway treatment at Leyton Show might not be out of place. The Great Eastern Railway granted us every possible facility. Special vans were on late duty for delivery to the show, and also for collection at close of show. Extra porters were provided to assist in returning the exhibits, under the direction of a special representative from Liverpool Street, who, by the way, was giving directions as to best trains, etc., for long journey birds. What more could one wish for? We are inclined to think that the trouble at Sheffield was due to some over-officious individual, and that if the secretary writes to the Superintendent of the Line of the company concerned they will probably get better treatment another time.

How to Keep Your Birds in Condition.

Winner of the 10s. 6d Prize for Best Letter.

Sir,—During my eight or nine years' exhibiting many exhibitors have asked me how I manage to put down my birds in such excellent condition, and when I have given them the true solution of the difficulty most of them have put on that unbelieving smile which suggests that the important part of the secret has been withheld. And yet, if my suggestions had been given a fair trial it would be discovered that nothing more is necessary except the occasional hand washing of light plumaged birds.

For the benefit of your readers I will repeat these suggestions, and venture to say that they will have very little trouble in this direction if they are strictly carried out.

1. Use only the best food obtainable. It is cheapest and makes a wonderful difference to the plumage.

2. Scrape out the cage bottoms and clean perches at least twice a week. Remove all scrapings and sour food from the room.

3. Overhaul your cages at regular intervals to keep down red mite and disease.

4. Use the bath freely, but not after midday. Stop the bath five days before a show and gently spray the bird (using rain-water if obtainable) on three successive mornings. Never spray a bird within 48 hours of a show, nor wash within three days. This gives it time to tighten up.

5. Do not over show your birds. Five or six shows in a season are sufficient.

During my visits to shows I have frequently seen birds out of the money, which should easily have been at the top of their class, owing entirely to lack of condition.

I have two hybrids, each eight years old, and won over 80 prizes (including 3rd Scottish National 1914), which are still in the pink of condition. I attribute this success to above treatment. ERNEST COLLINS.

A Review of the Past Season in Scots Fancies.

Sir,—It is a good thing to review the past; by doing so we learn many lessons, for the mistakes we made are danger signals for us. In the future try and improve on the past, and go into our hobby with heart and hand, more determined than ever before. Any little differences we have had, bury them; and if ever we can do a brother fancier a good turn let us always do it. I might say I have bred almost every kind of Canary, but the Scotch fancy has always held the leading place in my heart. It was my first love, and I have never departed from it. I consider it one of the finest breeds of the Canary family in existence, and one of the most intelligent, as it just knows when the cage is lifted what is wanted, and to look at it showing itself is a treat. I must say it has lost a little ground; but it is coming back again to the front.

The reports you often hear of them being so delicate, and so bad as feeders and breeders, and the large sums paid for stock birds, have done the Scotch fancy a great deal of harm. But in any other variety, if you buy a good pair fit to win, you will find that they will cost as much. Then you have no colour feeding, and in many cases when colour is taken into account it is the man that wins instead of the bird. Of course, I do not object to every man having his opinion, and having his own variety, but I do object to one fancier pulling down one breed to build up another. I may also say that the breeders themselves are greatly to blame for they don't give the shows the support they should. I am only a workingman, and I send my birds to every show available. I have sent my birds to almost twice as many shows as any other breeder of the Scotch fancy in Ireland. In many cases I have stood alone in my classes, and that is a bad state of affairs. But I hope for better things in the year we are entering on. If breeders of the Scotch fancy would enlighten one another, through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, it would further the interests of our noble breed, once the pride of Scotland and also Ulster. I believe it has the leading place in a Scotsman's heart yet.

To those who have not made a start I would say get your stock at once, and remember to buy the best you can afford, for one pair of good ones is worth ten pair of middling birds. It takes good ones to breed good ones, no matter what anyone may tell you. Middling birds are dear for stock purposes, for in nine cases out of ten they never breed anything even as good as themselves. So you make a good start with light material. I hope CAGE BIRDS' Birthday Number will come up to those that are gone, and if it does it will be well worth reading, for it is the leading journal for bird breeders, and deserves all our support.

A Young Reader's Favourite Magpie.

Sir, I would like to say a few words in praise of my Magpie. Of all the birds I have had, none has been so interesting. If you train a Magpie it is possible to make him say anything, and do everything but be honest. He is a natural thief. If my bird sees a thing glitter he will have it in a moment. I have to look under stones and in holes of walls for everything I have lost. He will pick up two or three nuts while I am cleaning my bicycle, and hold them in his throat until I look in another direction, when off he goes to his lair. He has the full run of the yard, and goes to bed in the shed at night. He is no trouble. I have only to give him a bowl of water and scraps from the table. Readers should not say anything in front of a Magpie they would not like anyone to hear. When I first had my bird I put him in a cage made with bamboo canes; but he made such a mess. One day as I was cleaning him out I said to him: "You do smell," and he never forgot it. On one occasion my aunt came to stay with us, and went into the yard. The bird said: "You do smell." The old lady came in and said to my mother: "I would teach Harry his manners, if I were you." She replied: "It is not Harry; it is the bird." My aunt looked as if she could have murdered him, but just before she went home she said: "How much do you want for him?" So does everybody else who sees him; but he is not for sale. His favourite time for talking is 10 till 12 in the morning, and 2 till 4 in the afternoon. His words include, "Tommy's Tired," "Rags and Bones," "Wash your face." HARRY COX.

My Aviary and What I Keep in it.

Sir,—Although quite a novice at bird keeping, having only taken up the hobby about six months ago, I have already been very successful indeed, and find that the hobby affords me great pleasure. My aviary, which I built myself, is 14½ft. long and 6ft. in height, sloping down to 5½ft. at the back. It is 4½ft. in width. Eight feet of this forms a roofed flight, which is wired with ½in. netting. The roof, which is of wood, is covered with well-tarred felt, and found to be thoroughly waterproof. The shelter is 6½ft. in length, and is lined throughout with wood, making it very snug for the tiny inmates. The opening between the flight and the shelter has a sliding door fitted to it, and can be opened or closed from the outside of the flight by means of a string. This is found a great convenience, as it can be closed down at night, if desired, without disturbing the birds. The wire of the flight is painted black, and the inside received two good coats of pale blue distemper. This arrangement of colours is found to show up the birds very well. The shelter is lit by a skylight window, placed in the roof. A small window is also fitted on one side, so that one can have a peep in at the birds and see what is going on. Now, as to what I keep inside. I have five pairs of Budgerigars, two pairs of Java Sparrows, three pairs Zebra Finches, one pair each of the following: Black-headed Mannikins, Silver-bills, White-faced Love Birds. I have been successful in breeding Budgerigars, Javas (white) and Zebras. I find all the above agree together remarkably well. The seed is supplied by two self-feeding hoppers, found to work very satisfactorily.

The Disqualified Yorkshire at Halifax Show.

Sir, As a member of the Halifax Society I wish to protest against the conclusions you have evidently arrived at by reason of the resignation of our society from the Yorks Union. Your head-lines in this week's issue "That Disqualified Yorkshire. A Sensational Development. Halifax Society Resigns from the Yorkshire Union," over the official announcement of our secretary, would lead the fanciers outside Halifax to think that we had resigned our membership as a protest against the action of the Yorks Union in the matter of the disqualification of Messrs. Ogden's bird. That is not the case. The disqualification was only a side issue, and certainly that alone would not have decided our society in taking the step they have done. It will interest you and your readers also to know that some of the strongest advocates for seceding from the Union were members of the committee who investigated the case, and who were convinced by personal examination that the bird Mr. House disqualified had neither been trimmed or changed. Why Halifax decided to leave the Union I am not prepared at the present juncture to state, but the vital step was only taken by a majority of two (20 against 18).

And now a word on the disqualification. There is no doubt that the bare announcement that Mr. House had disqualified a bird would be sufficient to some fanciers of the country that the exhibitor had been guilty of malpractices. Such was its effect on myself. If Messrs. Ogden's yellow hen had left Halifax at the conclusion of our show I am afraid that impression would have remained with me. Happily it was left in the charge of the President of the Yorks Union, and I had the opportunity on many occasions of examining the bird, and satisfying myself that the bird had neither been trimmed nor changed.

Now Mr. House since he made his charges has had the opportunity of examining the bird, but he studiously refused to do so. His reply to Mr. H. W. Walsh this week is characteristic. He objects to the tone of his statement, and makes that his excuse evidently for not making answer to the well-reasoned and carefully detailed statement of the President of the Yorks Union. Mr. House, since he made the charges, has never laid himself open to conviction, and all his statements and so-called replies have been the parrot-like reiteration that the bird had been trimmed and then it had been changed.

Why has Mr. House ignored the fact that he is proved in the wrong by one who poses as one of his supporters? I submit, Mr. Editor, that if the bird that Mr. House disqualified could be identified as the one that was in the show-room the whole of the time, before the Council, and afterwards in the possession of Mr. Walsh for many weeks, that the whole of his case is wrong, and that, as an honourable man, he will acknowledge it. Well, such identification is proved by Mr. Nicholson. He said that the disqualified bird had a white-tipped feather in its wing. Now many green-marked yellows, especially hens, have their flight and tail green feathers tipped with buff, but you will have to search many a long day before you find a marked yellow hen that has the peculiarity of Messrs. Ogden's bird. Mr. Macpherson thus said it was the same bird, but by what process of mental gymnastics he proves Mr. House in the wrong and then poses as his supporter is best known to himself. I submit these propositions to your readers: 1st, that the bare patches about the eyes of the bird disqualified were perfectly natural (next moult examine your own bird whilst "penny" about the head), and did not cause the bird to show any appearances of feather; 2nd, that the bird was in the possession of the President of the Yorks Union for many weeks, and did not develop any evidence of having been tampered with, faked, or trimmed in any way; 3rd, that the difference between good daylight and rather poor artificial light was responsible for Mr. House not being able to recognise the bird he had disqualified, when he was before the Council; 4th, that the character and personnel of the Halifax Show officials are above suspicion, and without their connivance it was absolutely impossible for the bird to have been changed.

If Mr. House would give his attention to the merits of the case instead of quibbling about the particular rule that would have hung Messrs. Ogden Bros., even yet he may confess that he has made a mistake.

E. J. CUNDALL.

Sir,—I was very interested to read Mr. Hill's letter in defence of the Yorkshire Union in your issue of the 10th inst. I am surprised to note that he accuses you of taking sides in the matter. I have read and followed closely all the correspondence that you have published, and also your Editorial Notes, and have failed to notice any partiality at all. In the first portion of his letter Mr. Hill says, "where governing bodies who are on the spot, and after 'due consideration,'" come to a decision." Well, I can assure you that there are many diverse opinions as to the "due consideration." At the Council meeting held at the show, the discussion was limited to a select few, and anyone who tried to speak or ask questions was ruled out of order.

Mr. Hill then says that the question of rules has nothing whatever to do with the question at issue. I maintain, as must any fair-minded person, that it has everything to do with it, because, as Mr. H. H. Mitchell stated in the previous issue, it was the duty, or should have been, of the President to rule the meeting out of order until the Show Committee had dealt with the matter and given their decision, and who knows what might have been the result? I maintain that whoever should be the persons they should all be treated equally. I am not alone by any means in holding this opinion, and I can assure Mr. Hill and his council that there are scores of members of the Union who hold the same view. I am a member of the Union, although not a member of Halifax Society. I hold no brief for either side, but I emphatically disapprove of the action of the Union. I contend that it has been a good thing that this matter has been made public through the columns of the Fancy Press, otherwise the "powers that be" in the Union would have hushed the matter up, and taken good care it went no further. Mr. Hill states that it is not the direct outcome of this matter that they have resigned from the Union. Whether their resignation was pending or not, there is not the slightest doubt that this "has put the lid on it," as the saying is. They have taken the straightest course open to them, and I congratulate them on their decision, and hope the loss will not be theirs.

I quite endorse both yours and Mr. House's statement that the Union Council have broken their own rules. As Mr. House asks, "Are they to be allowed to do so by the members of the Union?" "Fair play and no favour" is the earnest desire of—

Halifax, Yorks. H. JOHNSON.

How to Make a Rough and Ready Cage.

SIR,—Those who are on the look-out for a good and cheap cage, suitable for British Finches, odd Canaries, or Mules, should try this plan: Procure from the grocer, or ask him to reserve you, 12 "Watson's Soap" boxes. These are well made, planed inside and outside, and are of a nice size, 19in. long 13½ high and 8½ wide. They make an excellent stock cage for Goldies, Bullfies, Greenies, Chaffies, Brambles, Linnets, Siskins, Twites, and Redpolls. These boxes will cost 2s. the dozen. Now 12 wire fronts at 6d., 6s., doz. seed boxes 2s., drinkers 1s., 12 lids off "Robin Starch" boxes for sand trays at 1d., 1s., perching and cage nails 6d., enamel 2s. 6d., total 15s., 1s. 3d. per cage. Cut the sand tray out of the starch lids; the piece left over, when sawn to size, will make the strip to fix the bottom of the wire front in. Cut strips of wood and nail round the sides of the tray, this keeps the sand in. Make the strip for fixing front in to reach down to sand tray. For the purpose of easy pulling out of sand tray buy a 1d. card of picture hooks from the penny bazaar. Those that screw in and leave a ring to pull out tray with are the best. The following shades show off birds to their best advantage: Dark Brunswick green for Goldies and Bullies; mid-green, Linnets, Brambles and Chaffies; pale blue, Greenfinches; dark holly green, Redpolls and Twites; dark royal blue, Siskins. When making perches, cut a little bit out of end for wire to fix in, cut to fit tight. Black looks well for the outside and wire front. When the 12 are in an interchangeable rack they look well, and are a sound investment.

Award Cards.

A Suggestion to Show Committees.

Sir,—Don't you think show committees should put the name of the bird on the award card it wins, as I am afraid that when some birds are for sale they often have a card they have not won on their cage? I hardly think it is fair to inexperienced buyers and fanciers.

A Lancashire Norwich Breeder.

SIR,—I am sorry I can't send you an advert. for your Birthday Number. I have only had two small adverts. in good old CAGE BIRDS, and I have sold more birds than I intended to part with. I am enclosing you a picture post-card of myself and my unflighted buff Norwich, with cup that he won at Clitheroe for best bird in show, also my son and his winning Linnet.

Whalley. JAMES BARNES.

Norwich at Brighton Show.

A Question of Portraiture.

Sir,—I was astonished at Mr. Gibb's letter in CAGE BIRDS. The bird shown on front page of your issue January 3, I took to be my Clear Buff, which was 1st in members' class at Brighton (colour fed). The drawing certainly did not convey to my mind as being that of my non-fed var. Yellow, which did not win. I was reported in error as winning in Class 3, non-feds, which I at once asked Mr. Gibb to correct. He did not do so until he saw your issue of January 3. Even then he did not know for certain if the bird shown was my colour-fed Clear Buff, or a non-fed Yellow, as CAGE BIRDS did not state which. Mr. Gibb has now taken steps to find out. I wish to correct Mr. Gibb's statement: "Mr. E. Olle, Lewes, did not win a 1st in any class at Brighton." This is untrue. With thirteen birds I secured nine cards—two 1sts, one 2nd, three 3rds, one 4th, he, and c. Now he personally handed me these cards and prize-money, and has his books to refer to. If Mr. Gibb had stated that I did not get any specials he would have been correct.

"'Tis better to have won, and lost, than not to have won at all."

Had I not won any 1sts at Brighton I should have at once written CAGE BIRDS to repudiate the drawing, with my name, of January 3. The tone of Mr. Gibb's letter is all sufficient.

The Value of Green Food.

Sir,—I have kept singing Canaries for years, but have never tried to breed any till six years ago. I had a couple of pairs up, but could never get any young ones. There were plenty of eggs, but none fertile. For four years it was the same luck, till I heard a workmate talking about birds, and I related my troubles. He was only too pleased to listen to my tale of woe, and then he told me of a lot of mistakes I had made, and asked: Did I take CAGE BIRDS? I had to confess I did not know the paper. From that day till this we have become great friends, always talking about getting the birds into condition, and the tips in CAGE BIRDS, and then I went right away. That was the season before last, when I put up four pairs, and then I had some luck. I managed to rear five out of 20. The hens would not feed the young at any price, so this last season I put seven hens, three cocks up, and I had 35 youngsters, and I lost two through the hens sweating. I gave her a new nest, and the two young ones, and she brought them up all right. Well, I lost another through mice getting into the cage. I brought 30 grand youngsters up all right. They have had green food every day since they were two days old, and I have given them watercress, shepherd's purse, and plantain whenever I could get it. Many fanciers told me that I should lose the lot through giving them so much green food, right through the moult up to the present, but they are strong and hearty up to the time of writing. Good luck to CAGE BIRDS. THOS. TUCKER.

HORNSEY & WOOD GREEN C.B.S.

Annual show held Dec. 6 in the splendid club-room at the Nightingale Hotel, the new head-quarters. The display was about the best the society has ever got together at an annual show, and a finer room, better lighted, more cosy and comfortable it would be difficult to find. Chairman Mr. Day is heart and soul in the success of the society, and Mrs. Day is even more enthusiastic than her husband. A more energetic and practical band of committeemen would be difficult to find. Mr. P. Brooks, hon. sec., has matters at his finger ends, but on this occasion his enjoyment of "the annual" was greatly marred by the dangerous illness of his little son, who, we are glad to say is now well on the way to complete recovery. Quality was at a high level all through, and the competition for specials was spirited and keen. Mr. P. Brooks won cup best, Ramsden's spl. and spl. best Norwich, all with a grand headed, lovely shaped, fine, silky-feathered variegated yellow. Mr. H. L. Huggins won spl. best Yorks; Mr. J. Pettit best Crest or C.-B., and Mr. E. Stephens best Brit. bird. The room was tastefully decorated with pot plants, the staging being skilfully draped; and Mrs. Day very kindly dispensed light refreshments to the committee and stewards during the judging. In fact, "Success" is the one word that has to be written over the proceedings. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged.

CHAMP. NOR. CL. OR TKD. YELL.: 1, Brooks, rare qual; 2, Pettit, fails trifle in type, else a good one. STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

Fourth annual club show, held Red Lion Hotel, Stoke, December 26. There was a nice entry, many of the best birds in the district being staged. Norwich were a nice level lot, special best in section being awarded to a smart unflighted yellow, staged by Mr. N. Leese. Yorks. were excellent in qual., competition being very keen. Sp. for best went to Mr. G. Lawton's unflighted yellow, a very promising youngster. Mr. Pitchford and Mr. Davis had the British classes to themselves, but here local fanciers had an objectlesson of what constitutes a show specimen capable of gaining honours in the keenest competition. The winning Goldie won special best Brit. The medal competition over two shows resulted in a tie between Mr. Lawton and Mr. Leese, 35 points each. The competition for a tea service also resulted in a tie between Mr. Pitchford and Mr. Salt. Other specials were won by Mr. Davis, Mr. Walker, and Mr. Roberts. Mr. F. Bate judged. From the catalogue received the principal winners appear to be: NOR.: Leese, Bagshaw, Roberts, Fox, Bowers, Pitchford, Smith, Parker. YORKS.: Salt, Hawley, Lawton, Walker, Hawley, Ratcliffe. MULES: Davis, Walker, Pitchford. BRIT.: Pitchford, Davis, Lockett.—Ed.)

PUDSEY, STANNINGLEY C.B.S.

Last show of the season, held Dec. 20, Fleece Hotel, Stanningley. The entry was fairly good, 62 birds being shown. Mr. H. J. Chittenden judged, and he got through his work in an able manner. Points winners: W. Ackroyd, 21; W. Richmond, 21; W. Forrest, 20; F. Page, 16; H. Raistrick, E. Marsh, and H. Taylor, 14 each; Towler and Hargreaves, 12; W. Winn, 6; and E. Allott, 2. Novice pts.: B. Wood, 6; C. Noble, 3. The final positions for the society's prizes are: W. Richmond, 101; W. Ackroyd, 90; H. Raistrick, 72; F. Page, 66; E. Marsh, 61; Towler and Hargreaves, 51; W. Forrest, 40; H. Taylor, 40; W. Winn, 30; J. Butler, 25; Noble and Son, 15; E. Allott, 9. Novice: H. Noble, 27; C. Noble, 21; B. Wood, 18; Towler and Hargreaves win Mr. Jeffrey's colour special.

BRECON.

Seventh annual show of the Welsh C.B.C. held Dec. 17, Parish Hall a well lighted and commodious room, quite free from draughts. The exhibits were nicely staged, and made a good display, quality being excellent, particularly in Norwich. Local classes contained some smart exhibits. There was a good list of specials, and competition for these was very keen. That for most points resulted in a tie between Mr. D. Jenkins and Mr. Muscott, and had to go to the best team, when Mr. Jenkins won with a good lot of Borders, and the winning unflig. yell. Nor. Mr. G. T. Jones held the secretarial reins and did well, and with Mr. D. H. Tedstone as show manager, everything passed off without a hitch. Mr. J. H. Payne judged.

NOR. YELL. CK. (6): 1, 2, Tedstone, grand qual., feather, nice shape, good back, head, and neck, nice flights and tail, 2 hot col., nice back, flights, and tail, not quite the subs.; 3, vhc, G. T. KENDAL C.B.S.

Sixth annual show, held Dec. 26, Town Hall, when there was a good attendance. The show was a capital one, considering the poor breeding season locally, for although entries were less than last year, there were some excellent birds exhibited. The president (Dr. Noble) is an ardent lover of birds, and he showed his interest by being present during the morning. The arrangements were carried out by a strong committee, consisting of Messrs. Thompson (chair. and treas.), Crossley, Dent, Dickinson, Mitchell, Parker, Pearce, Sumpter, Vart, Tedcastle, and Mr. W. Heywood, 4, Castle Garth, hon. sec. Mr. W. Mundell, Bradford, judged. Spl. best bird went to Dr. Allen, who also got medal hottest fed. Points prizes: 1, Dickinson; 2, Heywood.

DONCASTER.

Fourth annual show, Jan. 10, in the Co-operative Hall, an excellent place for the purpose, well lighted from both sides, but the weather was of the worst, being wet and dull, so that the light was none too good for the judging. Entries were good all through, British having the biggest classes. An unfortunate incident was the arrival of Mr. R. Gentleman's birds just as the judge had finished his last class; hard lines for this plucky exhibitor. Mr. G. Hunt, Sec., with the able assistance of Mr. G. Bescoby, had everything in perfect order, and the judging commenced in good time. The stewards kept the judges well supplied, so that judging was finished and award slips on cages in good time. The attendance was only moderate, no doubt owing to the unfavourable weather conditions. Mr. H. W. Battye judged Canaries; Mr. J. Maddison, remainder.

Interesting Forecast of the CRYSTAL PALACE FIFTY-FIFTH ANNUAL SHOW.

Schedules of the Great Annual at the Crystal Palace (The London and Provincial O.S. Show) have been issued, and we give, below, a review of the classification. The number of classes has again been slightly reduced; 143, against the 145 of last year, and the 161 of 1912, although the class for cages, appliances, etc., has been re-introduced. White Canaries again have a class, and a class has been added for Dutch Frills, this being guaranteed by Mr. A. F. Fifield. The innovations have been introduced among the show rules respecting the British classes. Hens may compete on their merits in any of the classes, whether they be eligible for the hen class or not, and in the Nightingale or Blackcap and the Wagtail class, as also in two of the classes for various small species, birds may be shown singly or in pairs, the provision made being that pairs "will not necessarily receive preferential consideration by the judge." This should add considerably to the interest of these already interesting classes, and will remove the embarrassment with which the judge was faced last year, when he found he had to deal with several pair exhibits of Tits and other small birds.

The show is fixed for Feb. 6, 7, 9 and 10, inclusive. The front page of the schedule gives the dates as "6th, 7th, 8th and 9th inclusive," but the show will, of course, remain open until the Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 10th, as usual. The inclusion of the 8th (Sunday), and the omission of the 10th, are obviously due to those slips known as "printers' errors," for the dates are made quite clear in the rules.

The 143 classes are divided among 17 judges, one more than last year, as follows:

OPEN CHAMPION SECTION.

NORWICH PLAINHEADS, 8 classes. Judge, H. W. Battye.

Entries absolutely close Jan. 24. There will be no extension, and no whip-up cards will be sent. Exhibitors are respectfully requested to send their entries as soon as possible after the receipt of the schedule, and not wait until date fixed for entries closing. They are also requested to dispatch their birds by the night trains on Wednesday, Feb. 4th, or by early trains on Feb. 5th, arriving at the London termini not later than 2 o'clock (afternoon). All birds arriving after Thursday, Feb. 5th, will have to be marked, "Too late for competition." The show officials will be at the Palace to receive birds on Thursday morning, Feb. 5th, at 10 o'clock. The entrance fee is 2s.

THE PRIZE-MONEY is as follows:—1st 12s., 2nd 9s., 3rd 6s., 4th 3s., or gold, silver, and bronze medals to value at winner's option. Extra prizes will be awarded in particularly well-filled classes. Cash prizes will be sent, unless instructions to the contrary are given within three days of the show.

ADMISSION.—There is no extra charge for admission to the show beyond the ordinary charge made for admittance to the Crystal Palace. The show opens on Friday at 3 p.m., and on other days at 10 a.m., closing each evening at 9.30, except on Tuesday, when it closes at 4.0.

SHOW MANAGEMENT.—All entries must be made to Mr. J. W. Ramsden, 11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, London, S.W., who will dispatch tickets, labels, etc., and also pay prize-money and sale money. The show will be under the sole management of Mr. Ramsden, who will accept orders for stalls and advertisements, also dispatch Birds at close of show.

Caledonian Road, London, N.

JUDGES' LUNCH.—The L. and P.O.S. annual judges' lunch will be held in the Grill Room of the Crystal Palace on Friday, Feb. 6th, Chairman, Geo. Crabb, Esq.; covers at 1.45 p.m. Tickets for the lunch (2s. 6d. each) may be had from exhibitors and friends, or the Show Manager. Lunch will be over in time for the opening of the show. Ladies are especially invited.

CAGE BIRDS will have its usual stall at the Palace, and we are making arrangements to send by telegram or postcard results of the judging; further particulars will be announced in due course.

An Expert Opinion.

Several readers have written in the past to ask whether one or other of the specialists upon our staff would for a small fee give them a private opinion upon the merits, or mating, etc., of birds they are exhibiting at the Crystal Palace Show. We shall be pleased to arrange this. Exhibitors desirous of taking advantage of the offer must send to CAGE BIRDS Offices a stamped addressed envelope, together with sixpence (postal order) for each bird (Canary, Hybrid, British or Foreign) upon which they wish to receive an opinion when a letter will be sent them in due course.

BOLTON ROLLER C.S.

Annual open singing contest held Joiners' Arms, Dec. 31, Jan. 1. There was a very fair entry, rather more than last year. The quality of the birds was excellent, the judges commenting on the high standard. The work of finding the winners was a difficult task owing to the keenness of the competition, a great number of the birds being almost on a level. There was a big rush of visitors, especially on New Year's Day, the room being crowded. Messrs. Lyons, Waring, and Netherwood judged, and their awards gave general satisfaction.

LONDON AND PROVINCIAL DINNER.

Brilliant Gathering of London Fanciers Enjoy Themselves in Holborn.

One of the most enjoyable functions we have ever attended in connection with the cage bird Fancy was the last dinner of the London and Provincial Ornithological Society, held at the Holborn Restaurant on the evening of Thursday, January 8th.

After a capital repast, served in the very best style, a programme of entertainment was gone through which has seldom been equalled in the records of the club.

Mr. George Crabb, the President of the Society, occupied the chair. Amongst the large and imposing gathering of fanciers present we noticed the following:—Mesdames Crabb, Hodder, Ramsden, Mortlock, G. Harris, Bamber, Law, Tapper, Griffiths, Oldaker, Huggins, Trower, Robson, Lamb, Davey, Cook, Litchfield, Montgomery, C. Harris, Misses N. Cooper, F. R. Cooper, C. G. Oldaker, E. Wignall, Messrs. Heath, Crisp, Carl, Hodder, Matthes, Ramsden, Mortlock, G. Harris, Bamber, Griffiths, C. W. Law, Oldaker, Gill, Huggins, Trower, Robson, A. J. Slade, Lamb, Davey, Gardner, Frostick, Allen Silver, Cook, F. J. Day, R. J. Pretty, Carter, Shepherd, Allwright, Montgomery, L. Montgomery, C. Harris, Turner, Warner, Carroll, Graham, Hutton, T. G. Tapper, T. E. Tapper, and E. Law.

The following was the menu:

Croûte-au-pot.
St. Germain.

Suprême of Turbot Garbure.

Whitebait.

Vol-au-Vent à la Nesle.

Larded Fillet of Beef Nicoise.
Château Potatoes.
Stuffed Tomatoes.
French Beans.

Roast Turkey with Watercress.
Salad.

Orange Pudding.

Strawberry and Vanilla Ice
Wafers.
Dessert.

The President's proposal of the first toast, "The King and the Royal Family," which was drunk with enthusiasm. Mr. Cook then gave "Success to the L. and P.O.S.," and commented on the remarkable energy and activity displayed by the society during its existence. There was no doubt that it was a very progressive organisation, and it had considerable claim to be considered one of the premier societies of cage birds in the world. He felt that the success of the society was due in a great measure to its association to that very important event the Crystal Palace Show, and that prince of show managers, Mr J. W. Ramsden. After paying very high compliments to their president, Mr. Crabb, and the committee, he coupled with the toast the name of the vice-chairman, Mr. J. Hodder. Mr. Hodder, responding, dealt with the programme of the Society and with its future intentions. His finances were in a most satisfactory condition, and he might justly describe the club as flourishing, as it had something like 140 members. It had made 35 new members during the past year, which was surely a record, but he appealed for a still larger membership, and gave a cordial invitation to all those present who were not within the fold to come and join them at once, and thus share in all the good things the Society had provided for its members in the future. Dealing with the fixtures for 1914, Mr. Hodder said the programme was as follows:—February 19th, pair show, judges Messrs. H. Norman and Allen Silver; March 19th, lantern lecture, "Round the Zoo with a Camera"; April, no meeting; May 21st, lecture on the Norwich Canary, Mr. J. Hodder; June 18th, questions and answers; July 16th, young bird show; August, no meeting; September 17th, lecture on British birds, Mr. H. Norman; October 15th, washing exhibition by Messrs. Hodder and Ramsden, also competition for members, medals given; October 21st and 22nd, annual autumn show; November 19th, lantern lecture, the L. and P.O.S. ramble in pictures; December 3rd, annual general meeting. Special features, March 19th and November 19th: These lectures are being arranged at great cost, therefore will members try and be present with a friend? Mr. Hodder referred also in flattering terms to Mr. Ramsden and Mrs. Ramsden, and spoke in high praise of the services rendered to the Society by Mr. C. W. Law, the hon. secretary.

Mr. F. S. Matthes was down to propose the toast of "The Visitors," but, unfortunately, being under doctor's orders, he had to retire early in the evening. In his place Mr. Crabb remarked he was delighted to see so many visitors present, more especially the presidents of other societies, among whom were Mr. R. L. Crisp, L.C.B.A.; Mr. Mortlock, North London; Mr. Shepherd, City and Suburban; Mr. Geo. Gardner, Highgate and Hampstead. He was delighted to see such evidence of good fellowship, for while it was desirable they should have a keen and friendly rivalry existing between the societies, they should one and all endeavour to avoid the slightest feeling of petty jealousy or envy.

Mr. Carl was due to reply on behalf of the visitors, but was unfortunately detained by urgent business, and did not arrive until later in the evening. Mr. Crisp said he thoroughly endorsed everything Mr. Crabb had said in regard to the question of rivalry, and that it gave him great pleasure to feel that his society and the L. and P.O.S. were on the best possible terms—(applause)—that they would see many members of the L. and P.O.S. present at the dinner of the L.C.B.A. He congratulated the Society upon the character and success of the function, and felt himself privileged to be a visitor in their midst.

Mr. Trower proposed the toast of "The Ladies." He said he thought the L. and P.O.S. was notable in three respects:—(1) It had a lady on its committee, Madame Madewell; this fact prevented members from being late on the third Thursday in the month. All the members now got home early from meetings, which fact, he was sure, made the wives feel glad. (2) It had more lady members than any other society; and, lastly, it had had a lady lecturer, Miss Durham, who was, he believed, the first lady to lecture to any cage bird society. How much they owed to the fair sex he could hardly say; the fancier's wife or sister looked after his birds, and did not forget incidentally to keep an eye on the prize-money.

Mr. Ramsden, replying on behalf of the ladies, said how very pleased they were to be present at the gathering, and what an excellent time they had had. Though the number of ladies present that evening was large, he hoped to see them still more in evidence next year.

Mr. Mortlock proposed, in eulogistic terms, the toast of "The Chairman." He was a worker of whom any society might be proud, and threw himself into his duties with all his heart. He felt also that he ought to refer to Mr. Law's connection with the Society, and to say how creditable were the results their secretary had shown.

Mr. Crabb and Mr. Law thanked the members for their generous reception of the toast, and the evening concluded with the usual chorus of "Auld Lang Syne."

During the evening the Chairman read a telegram from Mr. Madewell saying that he and his wife would unfortunately be unable to attend owing to the illness of his wife. This news was naturally received with regret.

The entertainers included Miss Florence Wetherdon, Miss Nance Haines, Messrs. Harry Kemp, George Blackmore, Arthur Drew, Fred. Gibson, and Master Fred. Pride. Every item was applauded and encored, and the programme throughout seemed to give the greatest satisfaction to all present.

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES

Important to novices, amateurs, and Yorkshire breeders generally. Age and present health condition decides me in offering for immediate sale the whole contents of two of my bird rooms, including over 100 birds, with cages and fittings. My past 35 years' experience in the breeding and keeping of Yorkshire varieties only is proof sufficient, without further comment, that purchasing clients for future stock are assured of securing style and quality in progeny, also at prices probably half that usually charged by professional exhibitors and dealers for class birds. Unrelated pairs, selected and suitably matched as for own breeding, from 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; single specimens proportionately; also few exhibition specimens, equally cheap; all approval, cash or deposit; for detailed particulars, etc., address: Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire. (1190)

double breeding cages for sale, as good as new, Hargreaves' make, all fitted with nest pans, water glass, seed troughs, at 1s. per hole, put on rail free; I have some lovely birds to part with; inspection invited. Fountain Inn, Eccleshill, Bradford, Yorkshire

L. C. CASEY

Breeder and Exhibitor of high class Yorkshires; a few for sale at 12/- per pair and upwards; all from my own strain that has won cups and numerous prizes and medals; and I have won at all the leading shows during 1913, so I think I have one of the finest strains in the world; satisfaction guaranteed: 7, Plumsoll-st., East Bowling, Bradford.

J. BROOKES

Breeder and exhibitor of high class Yorkshires, has some grand birds for sale, either show or stock birds, including winner in open competition; pairs from 10/6 upwards, cocks from 7/6; hens from 5/6; satisfaction guaranted; inspection invited: 329, Ainsworth Lane, Tonge, Bolton. (1166)

PURE YORKSHIRES

1913 Crystal Palace first prize strain, guaranteed; I don't exhibit, so you get all the choice; those that show their stocks want all the good ones themselves. Some lovely specimens, clean moulted cocks, yellows or buffs, from 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/-, 15/- each; hens, yellows or buffs, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/- each; any on approval. Scores of winners supplied. Editor has seen scores of original testimonials, where I have supplied winners. I guarantee to please you, as soon as you see them. Cages, 2/- each. Breeder 20 years: Sandiford, Canary Judge, Preston, also 80, Selater-st., Shoreditch, London.

DYKES' YORKSHIRES

Winner of the Y.C.C. Challenge Cup, 1913-14, also winner of the National Green Marked Y.C.C. ten-guinea trophy and gold medal, 1913-14, and other honours too numerous to mention; in addition to above I have won over 70 firsts this season at all the leading shows, in the keenest competition, and my customers are winning regularly with my strain. Read following samples of testimonials received this week: "Eveline-st., Glasgow. Received Yorkshire cock safe. Well pleased with him. He is no worse for the long journey. More orders will follow shortly. T. S. Johnstone." "York-rd., Battersea, London. Yorkshire hen arrived safely, and am quite satisfied with her. John Jeffrey." "Shorrolds-rd., Fulham. Received bird safely, and am very pleased with it. It is just the bird I wanted.—W. Whiteman." The above speaks for itself, the sort of birds I send out. If you want to breed your own winners try my specially matched pairs at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/- per pair. Odd cocks or hens in proportion. Travelling cages 3d. extra. Also several big winners for sale at moderate prices. Come and see for yourself who has the best collection of high-class Yorkshires. Every bird cold room bred and kept. Clears, ticked, marked and variegated, yellows or buffs. Any sent on seven days' approval at my risk; cash, or deposit with Editor. Easy payments to genuine fanciers. And remember, during the last four years I have won twice as many firsts as any other exhibitor of Yorkshires: L. Dykes, Reliable Aviaries, Shann-street, Bolton Woods, Bradford.

H. H. TOWERS

For business reasons must reduce stock at once; cocks, 6/6 to 10/-, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, and upwards; hens, similar prices; good matched pairs, from 12/6 upwards; birds suitable for exhibition or stock to suit all; this strain is one of the best in the Fancy, as proved at Manchester, Cardiff, Sheffield, Bradford National, etc.; write at once to: Glusburn, nr. Keighley.

again top of the tree, winning the Yorkshire Union competition, also winning outright the Yorkshire challenge trophy 1913, and other trophies too numerous to describe. Our winnings during the last 10 years have never been accomplished by any other exhibitor. Note, the above competitions have been won with birds of our own breeding, so write direct to the most reliable strain in the world for producing winners. For proof read the following just one out of thousands filed for inspection; can be seen any day:—"Waterloo Bakery, Dunstable. Dear Sirs,—You will be pleased to hear that in showing four birds at Luton this week I won three firsts with the birds I had from you, and cup with an unflighted bred from same.—Yours truly, H. T. Page." We guarantee same strain as our winners at 10/6, 15/6, 21/-, 30/- 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. Odd cocks or hens proportionate. BUDGERIGARS and Cockatiels are among the most popular foreign birds, and C. P. Arthur has had a lifetime's experience with them. His book, 'Budgerigars and Cockatiels," will show you how to keep them, feed them for health, how to breed them, and how to teach them to talk. The price of this valuable handbook is only 6½d., post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

PARROTS for pleasure and profit, 7d., by C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C.

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

WAXBILLS! (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20," 2½d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

NOTICE to keepers and breeders of Budgerigars; much valuable information is given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 18," 2½d., post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. (2d. from agents, a list of whom is published frequently).

TALKING Budgerigar, plain speaker, also mimic, whistles dog, calls cat, kisses, an ideal pet, invaluable for training young birds, can be seen by appointment, will not send on approval. Particulars for stamp: Weston, Hill-view, Lewisham-rd., London, N.W.

THOSE who have bought or those who are about to buy a Grey Parrot, should get "Nutshell No. 17," it only costs 2½d. post free, but the tips it gives are priceless; from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. (2d. from agents, a list of whom is published frequently).

The increasing popularity of SPRATT'S Foods for Canaries and other Cage Birds is due entirely to their superiority.

¶ Whether you keep your Birds as pets, as songsters, or for profit, always remember that it is in your best interests to give them only those foods which are sold in Spratt's original packets—packets upon which the name is plainly printed—the name which guarantees quality—SPRATT'S.

¶ Only the choicest seeds are used in the various mixtures which we supply for Cage Birds, and these are carefully blended and entirely free from dust, being treated by a special process to secure absolute purity. Further, all our manufactured foods are also of the highest quality and every ingredient entering into their composition specially selected.

Therefore always specify

THE BEARDED REEDLING (COCK AND HEN).

The Bearded Reedling (more commonly known as the Bearded Tit) is excelled by no bird in gracefulness and vivacity, while its plumage is pleasingly coloured. The black moustachial streaks of the cock bird lend it a curiously Oriental appearance; it looks for all the world as though it had stepped out of a Japanese drawing. The pair sketched were shown by Mr. J. T. CLARK, of Watford, at the Brighton Show, and were awarded third prize.

USE

Ditchfield's Bird as Supplied

LONDON ZOO.

Ditchfield's Bird Medicines have been used for over six years by most leading fanciers, and have been proved to be the most reliable. The proof of the value of our Medicines are the repeat orders and increasing sales. In 1911 we sold nearly 1,000 bottles. In 1912, over 3,000 bottles. During 1913 we sold over 5,000 bottles. Fanciers, we want a trial. We have confidence our Medicines will please you. They are not a catch penny, but a genuine article, which if given time, will almost certainly give a perfect cure.

SPECIAL OFFER.—If you have any birds you are relying upon for the coming breeding season that are not singing, or have gone into the soft moult, we guarantee you a perfect cure. We have the grandest medicine ever introduced for bringing bird into breeding condition. Mr. Hatton, Atherton, writes: "Your Medicine for soft moult is excellent stuff; it has cured me four birds in soft moult. They are now in full song." Mr. Fletcher, Chademoor: "Have used your Tonic Drops for 18 months, and they have never failed to do as advertised." Mr. W. Harris, Dorchester: "The effect of your Tonic Drops are marvellous." Major R. Horsbrough: "Your medicine is magnificent stuff." Mr. W. Reed, Greenock: "Your Medicine has been a great success, for both my birds are now singing." DITCHFIELD'S TONIC DROPS are a guaranteed cure for soft moult, not singing, going light, feather plucking, diarrhoea, and inflammation of the bowels. In 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. We guarantee every customer perfect satisfaction, or return full money.

For Bronchitis, Wheezing, and Hoarseness, get DITCHFIELD'S SPECIAL LUNG TONIC. It is the grandest Medicine ever offered for chest and lung affections in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. Mr. G. H. Wilkins, Oldham, Local Hon. Sec., Cage Bird League, writes: "Your Lung Tonic is splendid stuff. It has entirely cured my best Roller cock."

For cases of Constitutional Weakness and Debility get DITCHFIELD'S FAMOUS REVIVO. There is nothing to equal it for giving new life and vigour to the birds. As a pick-me-up for birds before and after showing, REVIVO is absolutely unequalled. In 7d. and 1/1 bottles.

Special Notice.—All our Medicines can be given in the drinking water, and the birds take them freely with marvellous results. When order Medicine, kindly mention for what complaint, as in some cases an extra bottle is required, which we enclose free.

To advertise our Medicines, we will send two 7d. bottles or any of the above for 1/-, three for 1/6, or two 1/1 bottles for 1/9, three for 2/6. All medicines are sent post free, per return. All bottles broken in transit replaced. Also two valuable Seed Recipes, "How to Feed Linnets and Rollers for Song," given free to all purchasers of our Medicines.

Perfect Satisfaction Guaranteed.

First come first served. Have some real monsters, beauties, full scarlet blaze, in the pink of health. Have sold scores of 1st prize winners this last 10 years. Price, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6; sensational winners, 8/6, 10/-; approval. Large Siberian cock Bullfinches, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 each; large Siberian cock Bullfinches for muling, a big as Thrushes, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each; any on approval. Hundreds of testimonials, where I have supplied scores of winners, including Scottish National, Crystal Palace, etc. For proof, write Editor of this journal, who has seen the originals. "Mr. J. Oxenstone, Grangemouth. Sir,—You will be pleased to hear Siberian you sent me won two firsts and second Scottish National, last New Year's day." Show cages, 2/-. Send for catalogue. Estab. 50 years.

Sandiford, Bird Specialist and Judge, Preston, also 89, Sclater-st., Shoreditch, London.

C. PRIOR

offers for disposal, at reasonable prices, and without any reserve whatever, the finest lot of field moulted British aviculturists in existence; including Goldfinches, Bullfinches, Siskins, Linnets, Lesser Redpolls, Greenfinches, Chaffinches, etc. His own wins have long since been outnumbered by those of his many clients, and a very large number of this season's winners were drawn from his former collections—one of the champions included. History will repeat itself, and every exhibitor who wants to be winning in 1914 should take the hint; state wants, enclosing stamp. Hill Farm, Ropley, Hants. (1171) for a bird is due to you. It costs no more to keep a good bird than a waster but the pleasure derived is infinit ly greater. If you are looking for a thoroughly healthy reliable bird, please give me one trial. THE OUTSTANDING VALUE OF 'CANARIES HYBRIDS and CAGE BIRDS'

WRITTEN BY MR. JOHN ROBSON. EDITED BY MR. S. H. LEWER (Feathered World.)

The outstanding value of this work lies in its immense practicability: it satisfies on every point. You learn how to breed, rear, and bring to perfection every kind of Canary. In the 41 chapters all Canary points are dealt with in graphic, clear, understandable language. It is up-to-date in its methods, and by relying on its advice, thousands of working-men have become successful Canary rearers and exhibitors, have secured top prizes, and made satisfying incomes out of their hobby. You may do so, too.

That is because the book is thorough and practical, and commonsense. It gives the advice of experienced experts. It does not leave out just those points a beginner wants to learn. It tells those secrets of the Fancy which make all the difference in success. There never was a book like it for completeness, for sound, sensible advice—it is the best work on Canaries ever produced. Remember, too, the book is profusely illustrated with colour plates, black and white reproductions and diagrams, etc.

THE SCOPE of the WORK IS IMMENSE.

HERE IS A LIST OF THE CHAPTERS.

THE WAVERLEY BOOK CO., Ltd., 7, OLD BAILEY, LONDON, E.C.

This Instructive Sectional Model of the CANARY is FREE.

FILL IN THE COUPON BELOW and get THE BOOK WHICH EXPLAINS.

ABOUT THE WONDERFUL SECTIONAL MODEL

This model will prove to be of lifelong use to the Canary lover. It instructs, guides, and helps at every step. It is printed in true-to-life colours, and the five distinct plates of which the model is composed, and the 105 named and numbered parts, gives accurate insight into and familiarity with the construction of every part of the CANARY.

To the man who means to succeed, nothing could be more enlightening as to the anatomy of the Canary.

The scientific and general names of the outer parts are all numbered and named, the make up of the skeleton and the constitution of the vascular system are also numbered and named, and further plates reveal in similar completeness all the internal organs, not only in natural colours but also in their true positions and relative sizes.

Altogether this unprecedented gift—which is neatly bound—is calculated to be of signal service to the Canary lover, who is practical and enterprising, and is keen on keeping, or winning, a first place in the ranks of successful fanciers.

GENTLEMEN, PLEASE READ THIS

It costs no more to keep a good bird than a waster, yet if you don't deal with the right man it costs you as much for a waster as it would a good bird. Any man with a lot of talk can call himself a leading dealer, but I only advertise what I have in stock, and also give 7 days' approval for cash or deposit; real giant Peartree cock Goldfinches, with deep square cut blaze, real gems, 3/-, 4/-, 5/6 each; Siberian cock Goldfinches, giants, in full song, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6 each, winners 7/6 each; Siberian yellow Greenfinches, giants, 2/- each; 200 cock Siskins, yellows, 2/6, 3/6, 5/6 each; German hen Bullfinches, 2/- each. I will give any man in England £20 who so much as saw any of the above birds before they reached my establishment. Giant cock Linnets, well pencilled gems, sure rulers, 2/- each; quality songsters taught under my Champion of England, cup winner, 2/- each; Book of Secrets, 6d.; 27 cock Blackbirds, finger tame, 1/- and 1/6 each; one on grand song, 2/6; cock Thrush, 2/6; good cock Chaffinches, gems, 1/-; and one stormer, best under wire, 2/6; H.M. Goldfinch arrived safe. Well pleased with it.—Mr. M'Lennan." "Calow Alley, Calow.—Sir, Linnet arrived safe; it is the largest I have ever seen.—Mr. Thomas." "33, Wigan Road, Ormskirk. Goldie Bullie Hybrid arrived safe; quite satisfied; will make big winner. Mr. Johnson." "North End, Portsmouth. Sir, Very pleased with bird; quite true as represented. Mr. Jewers (Tailor)." "Sir, Siskin won 1st at Workington; quite satisfied. Mr. Drabble." "Comdon House, Glasgow. Sir, Parrot arrived safe; talks freely. Enclosed M.O. £2 for another for a friend. Mr. Wilson." Now, gentlemen, if you want good birds, send to me. I am by far the leading man in Hull, and am patronised by the Hull Corporation. 2,000 birds in stock. State wants; correspondence a pleasure: Fred Aslen, Direct Importer, Porter-st. Aviaries, Hull. (1241)

Hull's Leading Bird Specialist

With over 30 years' experience as a breeder and exhibitor; not exhibiting now, hence the reason I am receiving so many testimonials every week from satisfied exhibitors. I do not publish the same over and over again, but as received week by week. I cannot give you all as they are so numerous. They arrive by every post. 21, Ward-st., Alloa. Sir,—Siberian Goldfinch arrived safe. I am well pleased with him. Thanks for sending such a good one.—John Angus, 23, Manly-st., Galashiels. Dear Sir,—Birds arrived safe; am very pleased with same.—Yours, W. Currue, Robertson-pl., Markinch. Dear Sir,—Siberian Goldfinch arrived safe. I am highly pleased with him. He is a beauty.—D. Davidson, 31, Regent-pl., Range-rd., Flemington, Motherwell, Scotland. Dear Sir,—Birds arrived safe; am very pleased with same. I thank you for honest dealing.—W. Stewart. Now, gentlemen, let me sent you a bird, and I have your testimonial. I am bound to give you satisfaction where others fail. Why, because I am the direct importer. My birds have not been picked over by other dealers. Siberian, fine Grossbeaks, feathered like wax, ready for the show bench, 4/6 and 10/6 each. Siberian Bullfinches, cocks or hens, real giants, and in perfect feather, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, and a few specials, can win all before them, 7/6 and 10/6 each. HARRY ALLEN, THE ORIGINAL LINNET KING

MY BOOK OF SECRETS, ONE SHILLING

It is the best book published of its kind; it gives you the correct rules of singing contests; it tells you the cause of soft moult, and the only cure for it; it tells you how to train Linnets, Canaries and Larks for contests, and how to make them sing at one another; it tells you how to make Larks, Thrushes and Blackbirds sing in five days, how to make Nightingales sing with full, loud voice, and all Solomis, and how to save Goldfinches from dying and make them sing; it tells you how to make Linnets sing at one another with their wings down. This book has saved thousands of birds their lives; will be sent by return of post for 1/-. Cock Thrushes and Blackbirds, singing with full voice, 3/- and 3/6; a few hand-reared ones, sing indoors or out, with quality notes, a treat to hear, 5/-; and one, a real champion, can be heard 100 yards away, 7/6. Beautiful cock Larks, finger-tame, singing with full voice, dayhght and gas-light, 1/6 and 2/-; a few hand-reared ones, right for contest singing, will sing anywhere, singing all day long, real champions, 4/6. Real Siberian cock Goldfinches, the finest I have seen this season, 5/- and 6/-, sure prize winners under any judge, 7/6; and one, fit for the Palace, with all show points, 10/-. Real English Peartree cock Goldfinches, the largest in England, grand broad heads, singing hard all day, 3/6; sure prize winners for the bench, the same that have won all over England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, 5/-; and one, a real topper, cannot beat, 7/6. Very large cock Bullfinches, splendid birds, real pictures, 3/- and 4/-; sure prize winners, 5/-; splendid hens, 2/-; Russian hens, splendid birds, 3/-, 4/- and 5/-; Russian cocks, 4/-, 5/-, 6/- and 7/-; splendid German hen Bullfinches, very large birds, finger tame, 2/6; German cocks, 4/6 each; all the above are sent out in willow cages. Chaffinches, Greenfinches, Bramblefinches, Mealy Redpolls, 2/- a pair; sure prize winners for the bench, 2/6 each. Linnets from the same place as the champion Linnet of the world, they can run as long as any German Canary in England, 1/6 each; there has one just been sold lately for £8; these are the birds that made me my name. Linnets taught by the champion Linnet of the world, singing hard all day, right for catching or contest singing, with new cage and my book of secrets, 3/6; and some real champions, with quality notes, 5/-. Splendid Siskin and Canary Mule, can win at once under any judge, a real beauty, 15/-, and he is singing with full voice. Linnet Mules, with pure Linnet song, 10/- each. Goldfinch Mules, real pictures, with fierce Finch song, 9/6 and 10/-; they are all singing mad. Beautiful Talking Amazon Parrots, real talkers, 35/-, £2 and £2 10/-; they cannot be beat at double the money. Hundreds of foreign birds in stock. Please state wants. Aviaries and Parks supplied. So send to the old original: Harry Allen, British Bird Champion, City Aviaries, 40, Beckett-st., Leeds. (1216)

AMONG SO MANY
advertisements it is rather difficult for the intending purchaser to make a final selection. However well off a man may be, he does not like the idea of not getting fullest value, does he? For many years I have publicly stated that the Leipsig Roller, as imported by myself, is far and away better value than any Roller on the market, and have invited all intending purchasers to test the truth of this statement by testing a Leipzig Roller against any other costing up to three times the price, and have repeatedly published letters from persons who have done this. I now hold an enormous stock (over 900) of genuine Weber's Leipzig Roller cocks, all in full song, day and gas light, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, sort roulades, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, gong and flute notes, etc., and guaranteed entirely free from any harsh objectionable notes whatever; price 7/6 and 8/6 each. Special bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell tours, 10/6 and 12/6 each; hens same strain, 2/6 each; 4/6 couple. I also have a splendid lot of loud, free singing Hartz cocks in full vigorous song at 5/6 each; hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple. These Hartz cocks are specially suitable for public bar or coffee house and those who like a noisy songster. Special travelling cages, 2d. extra. Singing box cages, 1/6 each. Special Roller singing cabinet cages, with folding doors and loose fronts, made specially for Rollers, 3/- and 4/- each. Kindly note full name and address, also date of following letters. I have thousands similar, open to inspection at any time:—"Kibworth, Jan. 6.—Sir,—Leipzig Roller arrived today and began singing at once. I am well pleased with him.—Yours, B. Green." "27, Porchkerry-rd., Barry, Jan. 10.—Sir,—Received bird on Tuesday in grand condition, and consider it excellent value.—Yours, M. Gibbs." "Springvale, Ballywater, Ireland, Jan. 9.—Sir,—Birds arrived safe and cock is singing splendidly.—Yours, Alex. McCormick." "10, St. Andrew-st., Dublin, Dec. 29.—Sir,—Please let me know if you have few more of your famous Rollers for friends who have heard the one I had from you four years ago. I have just sold him at double the price, and he is better now than ever.—Yours, T. Henry." "43, Talbot Grove, Notting Hill, London, Jan. 9.—Sir,—Am well pleased with Roller, and thank you very much for sending such a nice bird. He started singing soon as unpacked.—Yours, W. Burt." "24, George-st., Burnbank, Hamilton, Jan. 19.—Sir,—I got a Roller from you seven years ago, and it has just died. It was as good as ever right up to the last. Please send another. P.O. enclosed.—Yours, T. Armstrong." "22, Stafford-st., Stockton-on-Tees.—Sir,—Received Roller on Tuesday, and am highly satisfied. Please send two hens.—Yours, J. Kemp." "20, Park View, Tredegar, Dec. 28.—Sir,—Received Roller safe at 4.30 on 24th; it was singing splendidly up to 12 o'clock same night. I am more than delighted with it.—Yours, R. Lane." "Sunnyside, Whitwell, Mansfield, Dec. 24.—Sir,—Just a line to let you know that both my friend and self are highly satisfied with our Rollers. Thanking you for straightforward and honest dealing.—Yours, S. Wilson." "80, Beaumont Terrace, Westerhope, near Newcastle, Jan. 14.—Sir,—Roller you sent me is singing grand, and I am well pleased.—Yours, W. Henderson." Please note, all birds are sent on full week's trial solely at my own risk during whole time either on receipt of cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and fullest satisfaction guaranteed or money instantly refunded in full. I am sole importer of Weber's Leipzig Rollers, and all cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig." Among the advantages of the Leipzig Rollers is the fact that they retain their song for life, not merely one season, as is the case with many Rollers. The breeders of Leipzig Rollers have been improving the strain for past 20 years, and the result is round about perfection. I care not how hard a person is to please, I am convinced that I can do so. If any person would like to hear a Leipzig Roller sing and cannot call at my premises to do so, I will willingly send them one on week's approval (even if they have no intention of purchasing). I only ask that they will deposit price of bird with Editor of "Cage Birds." Let me remind you that I am sole importer of this strain, and no other dealer can sell unless he first purchases from me. GENUINE SONGSTERS

For many years I have supplied thousands of customers with the best singing Canaries that have ever been heard. If you require a genuine, reliable singing Canary I invite you to come and inspect my stock and select one for yourself, any day except Sunday. If you cannot come allow me to send you one on seven days' approval. You can see the quality and hear its song before deciding to keep it. I guarantee every customer satisfaction. I have many hundreds of unsolicited testimonials open for your inspection. The following is a sample of the many received this week:—23, Comer-terr., Cockfield, January 3rd, 1914.—I have given the Roller a fair trial and am pleased to say that we are more than satisfied. Many of my brother fanciers acknowledge he is a first-class songster at a reasonable price.—R. Heckley. Please remember that I import all my Rollers direct from the best and most reliable breeders, and can give the best possible quality for money. Every bird is tested as to its singing qualities before being dispatched, thus avoiding your disappointment. St. Andreasburg Roller cocks, with full change of song by day and artificial light, genuine, up-to-date songsters, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; a few extra good contest songsters, 15/, 17/6, 20/-; hens, same strain, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6 each (not common German rubbish). For cheap reliable songsters my Hartz cocks are uncqualled, and acknowledged by all to be the real working man's friend. Birds in full, loud, free song by day and gaslight, real loud, sweet songsters, Hartz cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3 each, according to quality of song. Matched pairs for breeding songsters, 7/6, 8/-, 8/6. Neat travelling cages, 3d. each; special quotations to clubs and dealers. Travelling cages from 2/- dozen, 20/6 per gross. All birds are on 7 days' approval at my sole risk; cash or deposit: E. L. The above is the record already secured by my birds this season, and they are still going strong. They have also won the N.F.C. Champion Trophy, the O.N.P.C. Champion Trophy, 3rd in Y.C.C. competition, also several silver cups and bowls, gold and silver medals, diplomas, and numerous other trophies. Every bird has been shown in open champion classes only, and in hottest competition. I have also a large number of letters from fanciers all over the country who are winning regularly with birds supplied by me, or bred from my stock.

These FACTS need no comment; they speak for themselves. I am now offering marvellous value in the following varieties:—

CHAMPION NORWICH, THE BULLDOG STRAIN.

Grand, short, thick-set birds, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- each upwards. Matched pairs, personally selected by me for breeding winners, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- to 100/- per pair. Blood is sure to tell in the end, and I am prepared to give a written guarantee that the above are bred by me from my noted strain ofwinners. I have also a few real good cobby birds bred from other well-known strains at the following prices: Cocks, in full song, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Grand cobby hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Matched breeding pairs, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/- per pair.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Grand, lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, with good position, and in full song, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- each. Erect, racy hens, feathered to perfection, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each. Matched pairs, personally selected, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair.

EXHIBITOIN YORKSHIRES.

I have a few specially good birds, ready for immediate benching, that can easily win their cost in prize-money. Cocks or hens, in clears, ticks, or marked, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Also a few specially matched pairs, bred from the best blood in the Fancy, and personally matched by me for breeding winners, at 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. I have also a few of this season's open winners for sale at a working-man's price. Write for particulars.

CRESTS AND CRESTED-BRED.

I am offering wonderful value in this variety, as follows: Crested Cocks, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Crested Hens, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- 25/- each. KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES

Important to novices, amateurs, and Yorkshire breeders generally. Age and present health condition decides me in offering for immediate sale the whole contents of two of my bird rooms, including over 100 birds, with cages and fittings. My past 35 years' experience in the breeding and keeping of Yorkshire varieties only is proof sufficient, without further comment, that purchasing clients for future stock are assured of securing style and quality in progeny, also at prices probably half that usually charged by professional exhibitors and dealers for class birds. Unrelated pairs, selected and suitably matched as for own breeding, from 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; single specimens proportionately; also few exhibition specimens, equally cheap; all approval, cash or deposit; for detailed particulars, etc., address: Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire. (1190)

WELLS AND CLEMPSON

For business reasons must reduce stock at once; cocks, 6/6 to 10/-, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, and upwards; hens, similar prices; good matched pairs, from 12/6 upwards; birds suitable for exhibition or stock to suit all; this strain is one of the best in the Fancy, as proved at Manchester, Cardiff, Sheffield, Bradford National, etc.; write at once to: Glusburn, nr. Keighley.

OGDEN BROS.

again top of the tree, winning the Yorkshire Union competition, also winning outright the Yorkshire challenge trophy 1913, and other trophies too numerous to describe. Our winnings during the last 10 years have never been accomplished by any other exhibitor. Note, the above competitions have been won with birds of our own breeding, so write direct to the most reliable strain in the world for producing winners. For proof read the following just one out of thousands filed for inspection; can be seen any day:—"Wat tloo Bakery, Dunstable. Dear Sirs—You will be pleased to hear that in showing four birds at Luton this week I won three firsts with the birds I had from you, and cup with an unflighted bred from same. Yours truly, H. T. Page." We guarantee same strain as our winners at 10/6, 15/6, 21/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. Odd cocks or hens proportionate. All birds sent seven days' approval at our risk; inspection invited: Dudley Hill, Bradford.

DYKES' YORKSHIRES

Winner of the Y.C.C. Challenge Cup, 1913-14, also winner of the National Green Marked Y.C.C. ten-guinea trophy and gold medal, 1913-14, and other honours too numerous to mention; in addition to above I have won over 70 firsts this season at all the leading shows, in the keenest competition, and my customers are winning regularly with my strain. Read following samples of testimonials received this week: "Eveline-st., Glasgow. Received Yorkshire cock safe. Well pleased with him. He is no worse for the long journey. More orders will follow shortly. T. S. Johnston." "York-rd., Battersea, London. Yorkshire hen arrived safely, and am quite satisfied with her. John Jeffrey." "Shorrolds-rd., Fulham. Received bird safely, and am very pleased with it. It is just the bird I wanted.—W. Whiteman." The above speaks for itself, the sort of birds I send out. If you want to breed your own winners try my specially matched pairs at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 60/- per pair. Odd cocks or hens in proportion. Travelling cages 3d. extra. Also several big winners for sale at moderate prices. Come and see for yourself who has the best collection of high-class Yorkshires. Every bird cold room bred and kept. Clears, ticked, marked and variegated yellows or buffs. Any sent on seven days' approval at my risk; cash, or deposit with Editor. Easy payments to genuine fanciers. And remember, during the last four years I have won twice as many firsts as any other exhibitor of Yorkshires: L. Dykes, Reliable Aviaries, Shann-street, Bolton Woods, Bradford.

PLEASED WITH THEM

writes Mr. B. Gallagher, 53, Bowring-st., Dingle. "Dear Sir,—Received birds safe and pleased with them. Many thanks." One from many satisfied buyers. Testimonials received this morning's post. MUSSELBURGH O.S.

Annual general meeting held at Cafe Tea Rooms, Jan. 1. Mr A. Mohat presiding. Report and balance-sheet were received with satisfaction, and adopted. Agreed to have our annual show Dec. 5 and 6, at Town Hall, as usual. Office-bearers for the existing year were elected: Pres., Mr. A. Mohat; vice, Jas. Sinclair; sec. and treas., A. Hoyle; committee, Messrs J. Lawson, J. Little, D. Blodell, C. Watt, J. Sykes, R. Lees; auditors, Messrs. Jas. Spenton, Jas. Skinner. A. Hoyle, Sec.

SPRINGBURN (Possil Pk.) C.B.C.

Annual meeting, held Reid Hall, Jan. 14, Mr. A. Sloan presiding. Sec. intimated that he was forced to give up office owing to increased duties with Union; his resignation was accepted, and a vote of thanks awarded him for past services. The following office-bearers were elected: Pres., Mr. A. Sloan (re-elected); vice-pres., Mr. J. Swan; vice, Mr. T. Penman; committee, Messrs. J. McLeod, J. Crawford, M. Donaghy, T. C. Burns, W. Downie, W. Dunlop, J. Dunlop, J. McNeish, D. Hunter, and P. Braid. Rules were passed as read, with the exception of Rule IV. T. Penman moved the adoption of closed rings to be of a visiting committee. F. Taylor moved the amendment that they be not adopted. The latter was declared, and on the vote being taken carried in favour of the amendment. This leaves closed ring optional, as last season. Challenge cup and gold medal's won at annual show were presented as follows: Best Young Bird Cup and medal, J. McMillan; Young Border Cup and medal, J. Crawford; Mule, Brit. and For. Cup and medal, D. F. Webster; Novice Cup and medal, R. Terney. A new cup promised for Yorkshire section, to encourage new members in this section. A vote of thanks to the Chairman finished the meeting.—T. Penman, Hon. Sec.

ISLINGTON F.A.

Annual general meeting held Jan. 5, when room was packed. An increase in members, and a balance in hand of £5 10s. 9d. proved the year a great success. Agreed that shows for this year should be—First season show July 11, young stock Sept. 26, and our grand annual show Nov. 28. No change in the two chief offices, the secretary being Mr. G. Wainwright, and his assist., Mr. H. A. Brown, who are hoping to do great things for the club by the end of 1914. Pres., T. Wiles, Esq.; vice-pres., De Graff, Esq., B. Harris, Esq.; hon. vet. surgeon, Marcus Stevenson, Esq., M.R.C.V.S.; chair., A. King, Esq.; vice-chair., F. W. Wardell, Esq., G. Emury, Esq.; auditors, J. S. Jackson, Esq., R. Thompson, Esq.; treas., A. King, Esq.; committee, Messrs. Wearne, Amery, Inn., Holmes, Fellows Bassitt, Smallman, Esqs., S. Wardell, Cresswell, Bibb, Langden, Payne, Sandbel, Bartlett; hon. assist. show sec., M. G. Jennings.

READING C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Jan. 7, before very good attendance. Mr. Ront elected a member. Balance-sheet for year was brought forward. After a very expensive year, we have a balance of £7 13 9s., which was considered very satisfactory, and congratulations were handed round that made the hon. sec's ears burn. Mr. G. H. Acton, with his usual kindness, offered to provide the honorarium for him to save the funds, which was thankfully accepted. Sec. read a letter from Mrs. G. W. Palmer, consenting to become president in succession to the late Right Hon. G. W. Palmer; unanimously elected. Other officers: Vice-pres., L. G. Sutton, J.P., W. H. Palmer, J.P., S. Pike, Esq., G. H. Acton, Esq., H. D. Astley, F.Z.S., Alfred Palmer, J.P., C. E. Keeper, M.A., J.P., H. W. Sutton, J.P., F. Cowslade, Esq., Capt. Leslie Wilson, D.S.O., M.P.; chairman and treas., Mr. J. Brooker; committee, Messrs. Vince, Yates, Avis, Munday, Dearlove, Tremlett, Laurence, Meadowcroft, E. J. Smith, Hayward, George, Eggleton; auditors, Messrs. J. P. Laurence, E. J. Smith; hon. sec., W. H. Pyke; assist., O. C. Smith. Decided to hold annual show on Nov. 11 or 18, providing we can get judge; pair show for March, and lecture afterwards; also decided that all birds entered for cups, except points cups, must be rung with rings purchased through hon. sec. Next meeting will be a novelty: What variety shall I take up, and why? Papers will be given on Norwich (O. C. Smith), Borders (P. Meadowcraft), Mules (W. H. Pyke), British (S. H. George), Foreign (G. H. Acton), Yorks. (H. F. Chubb). Best paper will win a book prize at winner's option. This ought to be a record meeting. W. H. Pyke, Hon. Sec.

LOWESTOFT AND DIST. C.B.S.

Show of Canaries and Brit. on Jan. 8, at meeting room, at Mr Lowe's, in Tonning Street. The entries were far below the average, although quality was well maintained, and I hope all members will try their utmost to increase the membership in the coming year. A lot can be done in this way by visiting fanciers' rooms and giving a few useful hints during the breeding season, and introducing CAGE BIRDS to young fanciers, which gives them an increased interest in the Fancy, and they will count upon Friday coming, which brings them their old friend CAGE BIRDS to help them over many little difficulties. The principal winners were: Mr. Kirk, cup most points in champion section, with a team of very nice Plainheads. Mr. Castleton and Mr. L. Lowe had out some nice exhibits. In the novice section Mr. Hutchings won cup for most points with a really good team of very nice colour and quality. Mr. Blackburn, Mr. Butcher, and Mr. G. Lowe were well up in the list. Many thanks are due to Mr. Lowe, the secretary, for the way in which the show was managed, and I hope local fanciers will rally round him and give him plenty of work when the show comes round again. Mr. W. Harl, of Norwich, kindly made the awards, with every satisfaction.

HASTINGS & ST. LEONARDS C.B.S

14th annual general meeting held Jan. 14, at headquarters, Royal Oak Hotel. There was a fair attendance. Mr. F. Slack occupied the chair. Owing to secretary's absence from home, Mr. A. F. Godden kindly made the arrangements. Balance-sheet showed cash in hand £4 17s. 2½d. We started the year with a deficiency of over £1, and it is the first time for some years that the balance has come out on the right side. During the year we have made a number of new members. The first feather shows proved a success, and the evening show and lecture by the president (Rev. T. M. Paterson) created a record attendance. As a number of specials—given by Mrs. Kirk Bullock—were held over from the annual show, and will be competed for during the early shows, it is earnestly hoped there will be a record number of entries. The three most important items of the year were the local pageant (the society obtaining 1st prize), the annual open show (larger entries than last year, and exhibits better in quality), and the presentation of prizes, a record attendance (over 60) being present, and many turned away, also for the number of special prizes, most of which were given by Mrs. Kirk Bullock. Balance-sheet and report adopted unanimously. In future the society will be known as the "Hastings and St. Leonards C.B.S." Will members please note alteration in Rules 3 and 6, which will be sent out shortly. Carried that following should be included in Rule 12: "The Kirk-Bullock trophy for best unflighted bird at annual show, to be bred by the exhibiting member, to be won three times in succession or five times in all, before becoming the sole property of winner. The runner-up for trophy same conditions. Silver sugar bowl, for best hybrid bred by exhibiting member, to be won three times before becoming sole property. Officers for 1914: Patrons, Lady Webster, Mrs. Kirk-Bullock; president, Rev. J. M. Paterson; vice-presidents, The Mayor, Mrs. Frank Shaw, Mrs. Herbert, Fleetwood Ashburnham, W. Ruskin Butterfield, F. Slack, T. G. Coombs, B. Jarrett, J. Booty; hon. auditors, Messrs. A. E. Godden and W. Ellis; hon. sec. and treas., Miss Kirk-Bullock. Committee, A. E. Godden, R. Craggs, A. George, T. Veness, B. A. Greengrass, W. Ellis, J. Dawson, E. Olle, H. Pennells, M. Wilson, W. Elliott, J. Stevens, N. F. Cheal, G. Barham, Mrs. Crofts. Feb. 18, pair show matched for breeding, at 7.30; at 8.30, a lecture on bird breeding, by Mr. W. Ellis. It is hoped a lecture on Yorks. will be given during March by Mr. F. Wraight. First feather shows, May 27, June 24, and July 15. Mr. J. Stevens again elected as judge. All shows and lectures are held at the Royal Oak Hotel, Castle Street, except where otherwise stated. The chairman presented our former secretary and treas., Mr. T. G. Coombs, with a silver-plated cake stand on his recent marriage, as a token of our appreciation of his past services, and wishing him every happiness in the future. The secretary would like to take this opportunity of expressing her appreciation and thanks to Mr. Coombs for the kindness and courtesy shown to her during their term of office. Notices of shows, meetings, etc., will be given in CAGE BIRDS; will members please look out for same?—Miss J. Kirk-Bullock, Hon. Sec.

GAMBORNE F. & H.S.

Annual general meeting held Tehidy Working Men's Club, Jan. 9. Sec. gave his report and balance-sheet, which showed an increase of 72 in the membership for the year. Total income for the year was £81 12s. 3½d., and expenditure £60 3s. 2½d., leaving a credit balance of £21 9s. 1d. Mr. John Davey was elected pres., Mr. H. H. Berriman chair., and Mr. W. Harvey vice-chair. Messrs. W. A. Luke and F. J. Lee, the retiring auditors, and Mr. W. Lidgey, treas., were all thanked for services rendered, and by a perfectly unanimous vote were re-elected. Unanimously decided to ballot for a general sec. There were only two nominations, and Mr. A. Scoble was re-elected by a majority of 38 to 7. Messrs. A. Ford, W. A. Luke, J. Howard-Temby, R. Lowry, and B. Nicholls were elected to form committee, which, acting in conjunction with chairman and sec. of each section, and the general chairman and sec. would constitute a finance committee. Members of various sections decided to meet during next week and each form their own committees. Meeting adjourned until Friday, 16th inst., when it will be decided what radius the membership will be open to.—A. Scoble.

WOLVERHAMPTON C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held Jan. 15 at the Duke of York. Mr. T. J. Weaver presided over a good attendance. Sec. presented balance-sheet and report of the past year's work which showed a level balance. When the few debts are paid up there will be a balance in hand, with assets valued at £3. During the past year the 12 showing members have worked wonders, having won the Midland Inter-Club cup for the first time in four attempts, but the first year it was put up we were only beaten by 1½ points; this speaks well of a society which only has 18 members on the books, but every member knows what a bird is, and how it should be looked after when at a show. The report met with unanimous approval, and was adopted with a vote of thanks to the sec. and other officers. The election of officers for 1914 was postponed until the next meeting as the annual show was more important; the date for this was fixed for Nov. 13 and 14 so as to avoid clashing with other Midland shows, show to be held in the Co-operative Hall, Mr J. Robson judge. The society also accepted the offer of Mr. W. Harrison, one of the committee, to erect an illuminated lamp outside the show room, which will be a good guide to visitors. Sec. read points for the cup as follows: Messrs. Gough and Leach 36 points, J. Gibbons 33, E. Hall 29, F. J. Weaver 29, G. Harris 27, Robinson 26, Crundell 26, Hinton 24, Hampton 18, J. A. Tonks 18, F. Garfield 17, G. Raby 14, Rowley 6. Every one has a chance of winning it, as this coming show is the one when the top sawyers fall. Classes for members' show Jan. 31 are Nor. cl. or ticked yell., ditto buff, variegated or gr. yell. or buff, hen yell. or buff, unflig. yell., ditto buff, unflig. hen; Yorks, yellow cock, ditto buff, variegated or gr. yell. or buff, hen yell. or buff, unflig. yell. or buff, Goldie, Linnet, Bullie or Greenie, unflig. yell. or buff, Goldie, Linnet, Bullie or Greenie, unflig. yell. or buff, Redpoll, Siskin, or Twite, A.O.V. Brit., Nat. Col. Canary; fee 4d., 1d. deducted for judge's fee. Our programme for the year is a very good one, and we cordially invite fanciers and friends to visit our final cup show at the Duke of York, Princess Street, Jan. 31.—J. Gibbons, retiring sec.

The date for Bathgate and Dis. C.B.S. annual show has been fixed for Feb. 28, writes Mr. Alexr. Nicols.

The Penicuik O.S. we are not certain of carrying on, unless we get a stronger local membership, writes Mr. J. Weir (Hamilton-place). Now, fanciers, rally round.

I have found that "Nutshell" No. 11 is a very great help to me for Bullfinch keeping in captivity, for I have lost none since I received this book.—W. D. Cox (Shipton).

In the foreign bird advertisement of Mr. W. Rudd (Norwich) our printer last week made him speak of "rare" Cockatoos, which should have been Rose Cokatoos.

All prize-money was paid out on the second day after the Sunderland show, writes Mr. J. Peacock, hon. sec., and any fancier who has not yet received his money should make enquiry at once.

Mr. W. Tallantyre, hon. sec. Haltwhistle C.B.S., writes that the date of the annual show is fixed for Nov. 20, 21 (see show dates fixture column). Will other secs. please note, to avoid clashing?

I have resigned the secretaryship of the Chatham and Dist. F.A., and my successors are Messrs. J. Jolley and A. Wyatt, 81, Charter-street, and 25, Listmas-road, Chatham, writes Mr. H. Wray.

I have resigned the secretaryship of the Brechin C.B.S., writes Mr. Geo. Mitchell, and all communications should now be made to my successor, Mr. John Grabb, 120, Montrose Street, Brechin.

I have changed my address, writes Mr. J. G. Cowlty, from 49, Warner-road, Hills-bro', to 58, Bellhouse-road, Shiregreen, Sheffield where I shall be pleased to see any of my birdy friends whenever they desire to give me a call.

I have sold my champion non-flighted Buff cock, 1st prize winner at Truro, matched to a lovely Yellow hen, to Messrs. Badcock Bros. (Holsworthy), and I wish their new owners every success, writes Mr. T. H. Boundy (St. Teath).

Kindly state that the City and Suburban C.B.S. annual show, writes Mr. Wynn, the hon. sec., is again fixed for the same dates as for many years past, on account of our being able to have the hall only on those dates each year, viz., Nov. 13 and 14.

Morpeth C.B.S. next open show will be held on October 10, writes Mr. Wm. Summers. Will secretaries please note; also that I have been elected secretary, so all correspondence should be sent to me at 82, Newgate Street, Morpeth.

Palace Show: Post your entries to-day. Price your birds at the lowest price you are prepared to accept. There is a big demand at this show for decent birds at reasonable prices. It will pay breeders to enclose an advertisement for the catalogue with their entries.—[Advt.]

Our first annual dinner, social, and distribution of prizes, writes Mr. C. E. Hylton, 2, Croft Top. sec. Idle and Dist. C.B.S., will be held at the White Bear Inn, Idle, on Jan. 28, at 7 p.m. sharp; tickets, 1s. 6d. each. All fanciers welcome; if coming please notify the secretary at once.

Kindly announce, writes Mr. F. C. Sims, that I have resigned the secretarial duties of the Barnsley and District C.B.S., and have handed over the society's books, etc., to my successor, Mr. E. Tomlson, 102, Cope-street, Barnsley, to whom all communications regarding the society should in future be addressed. Secs., and others, please note.

Dutch Frills at the Palace.

I notice in your review of the Palace schedule, writes Mr. A. F. Brooks, you state that the Dutch Frill class is guaranteed by Mr. Fifield. That is not quite correct, as, although the schedule does not say so, the class is being guaranteed by Mr. Fifield and myself.

We are informed that Mr. J. C. Barnes, Sheffield, has been appointed to judge at Lincoln Show, Dec. 5.

We hear that Mr. W. P. Barnes, of Grantham, is engaged to judge the pair show, Feb. 28, and the F.F. show, July 4, of the Lincoln and Dist. C.B.S.

All prize-money and specials won at Doncaster show have been paid, writes Mr. C. Hunt, Hon. Sec., 19, The Crescent, Balby-road, Doncaster. Anyone overlooked kindly apply.

We hear that at the Sheffield O.S. open show, Nov. 6 and 7, all prize-money will again be guaranteed by those two prominent keen blades, Dr. W. Craig and Mr. T. Dawn.

Would fanciers please note, writes Mr. G. Harrer, hon. sec. Blaydon-on-Tyne C.B.S., that we have booked those popular judges, W. A. Cowgill, Bradford, James Maddison, Newcastle, and T. Dixon, Bedlington, for annual show, Nov. 13 and 14.

We are asked to state that Mr. B. Bailey has resigned the secretaryship of the Rotherham C.B.S. Communications regarding the society should be addressed to Mr. J. E. Taylor, 26, Tusmore-street, Rotherham, who has taken over the office. The club-house has been removed to the Mail Coach Inn, Wellgate. The annual show is fixed for Nov. 20-21. Mr. J. C. Barnes, Sheffield, judge.

Will Mr. H. Lomas, who forwarded to Mr. C. S. Kent, Hendon, two birds to be exchanged for a Roller cock, as advertised, please send his address to the advertiser? No address was sent with the birds.

One of the features of the recent fine special issue of our interesting contemporary, "Fur and Feather," was a most life-like and lovely coloured plate of Mrs. Slingsby's famous Blue Persian cat, the work of that talented and versatile artist, Mr. E. G. Wippell. Mr. Wippell (The Homestead, Winchcombe, Glos.) is prepared to undertake the painting in oils or watercolours of pets of all kinds.

Under the auspices of the Edinburgh and Dist. C.B.S., a grand smoking concert is to be held in the Old Union Hotel, Lothian Road, on Jan. 24, writes Mr. J. C. Charlton, sec. (33, Watson Cres.), when it is hoped there will be a large turnout of members and fanciers. Fanciers should not miss this night's entertainment as it promises to be one of the best. Chair to be taken at 7 p.m.; tickets, 6d. each.

We, along with others who have been in the Fancy about two years, would like to know about the Blackburn Club, if it is still in existence. It seems to us, judging by the number of birds sold this last month, about 600, there must be some fanciers somewhere and we don't see why Blackburn shouldn't have a good club. Hoping some Blackburn reader will reply.—T. Duckworth, M. Berry.

All steps will turn towards the City and Suburban's Pair, British and Foreign Bird Show to-day (Saturday), when you will see perfection in the art of pairing, besides the well-known quality of their famous British Birds. The splendid hall, the Church Institute, 60, Paddington-street, Marylebone, is five minutes' walk from Baker-street (Metropolitan) and Regent's Park (Bakerloo Railway) stations, and Baker-street 'buses pass the street. Admission 6d., including catalogue. —[Advt.]

The many friends of Mr. H. J. Chittenden, writes Mr. H. Hill, Bradford, will regret to hear that he is suffering from a very severe illness, and confined to his bed. As he has been unable to reply to several invitations for lectures, etc., which have come to him during the past fortnight, he asks me to give this explanation. I feel sure that all readers will join me in wishing Mr. Chittenden a very speedy recovery from his illness, and sympathise with him in his enforced absence from our midst.

CLOTH THAT WEARS LIKE LEATHER.

A marvellous holeproof cloth that will not tear, and yet looks exactly as the finest tweeds and serges, has been discovered by the Holeproof Clothing Co., 51, Theobald's Road, London, W.C. They make from these wonderful cloths a well-cut man's suit for only 19s. 9d., breeches 6s., or a pair of well-fitting trousers for 4s. 6d.; and if a hole appears within six months another pair is given. See advertisement on page 23, and write for patterns, etc.

Alteration of Folkestone's Date.

Compelled to postpone date of Folkestone show to Feb. 6. Entries close Jan. 30, writes Mr. J. W. Gambrill, hon. sec.

A Club for Beckenham.

An association has just been formed, we are requested to announce, called the Beckenham and District Fanciers' Association. Full particulars can be obtained from Mr. Howard (sec. pro tem.), 2, Grace Villas, Anerley.

Foreign Bird Classification at the Palace.

We are asked to point out to foreign bird exhibitors that all Weavers except Orange, Red-billed, and Napoleon go into Class 136.

In the event of the weather being exceptionally severe at the time of the show, and provided that the F.B. judge and the show manager are of the opinion that any of the more delicate of the soft-billed foreigners would be exposed to undue risk by remaining in the show, the Crystal Palace authorities will allow such birds to be removed for good at the closing of the show on the Saturday night. This concession will not apply to any birds other than the delicate soft-billed foreigners.

OBITUARY.

Mr. J. Naden, Rochdale.

It is my painful duty, writes Mr. R. Blincoe, of the Rochdale O.S., to announce to you the death of our president, Mr. John Naden, who has been associated with this society for over 30 years, and was well known as a breeder and judge of Lancashires. He was a popular president, and always to the fore in all our undertakings, and his assistance and advice will be greatly missed. Many local fanciers and also members of the Rochdale Angling Society, of which he was secretary, attended at the cemetery, a striking testimony to the respect felt for him by those who came in contact with him.

Mr. Todd, Darlington.

It is with regret that I have to announce the death of that well-known Northern fancier and exhibitor, Mr. Todd, senr., Darlington, which took place on the 20th inst, writes Mr. J. Foster. Mr. Todd had been suffering from a painful illness for some time, consequently the well-known name of Todd and Son has not appeared in the front as much as usual. He was chairman of the Darlington C.B.S. for some years, and in his time bred and exhibited several well-known Hybrids and Mules. He was 65 years of age, and the interment will take place on Saturday at 2.30 p.m. His widow and family would like to see any old friend or fancier who can make it convenient to attend. I am sure fanciers in general will join me in expressing our deepest sympathy with Mrs. Todd and family in their sad bereavement.

In the Novice unflighted class at Doncaster, Mr. W. J. Dean was 3rd not Smith.

North London C.B.A. Concert.

An excellent Bohemian concert is being held by the North London C.B.A. to-day (Saturday), Jan. 24, in the Library Hall, Church-street, Stoke Newington, commence at 7.30 p.m. The members hope to see a good attendance of friends; all will be welcomed. A number of very talented artists will, we hear, provide the entertainment. Tickets from 6d. each.

Dysart and District C.B.S.

With reference to the Club Report published by us on December 27th, under the heading of Dysart and District C.B.S., we are informed by Mr. J. Hutchison that the matter forms the subject of a dispute between himself and the Dysart and District Cage Bird Society pending in the Kirkcaldy Sheriff's Court, Mr. Hutchison is of opinion that the terms of that notice are injurious to himself. We wish to state that the notice was published by us in the ordinary course of our business and we had no intention whatever of hurting Mr. Hutchison's feelings or inserting anything in the slightest way injurious to him. If there is anything in that notice which can be construed as a reflection upon him we are sincerely sorry, as nothing could be further from our intention.

MAKE SURE OF IT

Don't Let Slip YOUR CHANCE in Our Competition at the Palace.

ENTRIES for the great show at the Crystal Palace close this week-end, certain—there is no extension—and intending exhibitors should post them to reach the show manager, Mr. J. W. Ramsden (11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, London, S.W.) on Saturday. Mr. Ramsden does not undertake to accept entries after that date. Any received after Monday's post (Jan. 26) will have to be returned.

Those exhibitors entitled to compete for Cage Birds Championship Competition special prizes (a full list of which appears in the schedule and in last week's issue) should adhere carefully to the simple rules we have adopted, which we also printed last week. Fanciers entering in the Novice section should be quite clear that they are still entitled to compete therein according to the terms of our Novice rule (this, by-the-way, is the same as that adopted by the officials of the Palace Show to define a Novice) which is as follows:—

A novice is a person who has never won a first prize for Canaries, or Mules and Hybrids, or British, or Foreign birds, in a class at any show other than one confined to club members, or residents in the town or county where the show is held, or limited as to the price at which the exhibit is to be sold (price not to exceed £5), or three first prizes in open novice classes. All members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them may have to compete.

We hope that competitors in our scheme will take the fullest possible advantage of their opportunity of securing their share of the valuable cash and other prizes we offer. The wisdom of entering the largest possible number of birds allowed by our rules should be obvious, for one cannot be certain which bird will "catch the judge's eye," and the bird you think your best may not be so in the view of the judge, but be placed by him behind a member of your team less favoured by yourself. Take the tip, exhibitors, and enter every possible bird; then you will have no cause to waste time in vain regrets after the results are known at having missed nominating the very bird that would have brought you a splendid cash reward.

(For Rules See Last Week's Issue.)

"I have had the greatest of satisfaction with my advertisements in CAGE BIRDS."—E. ROWE (Chatteris).

"I find no difficulty in clearing surplus stock when I send advert. to CAGE BIRDS. The difficulty is to supply all enquirers. Wishing your next and al future numbers increased circulation."—W. H. HARRIS (Dorchester).

ANOTHER SHOW EXTRA.

To clear from off our Editorial table a large number of arrear show reports we have again devoted Four Extra Pages to these interesting Fixtures.

LLANELLY.---GREAT SHOW OF BRITISH.

Held Jan. 12 in The Market Hall, undoubtedly the finest hall in Wales for a show; the only drawback being it is rather cold, otherwise it would make an ideal place for an exhibition. The society this year fell back on their old date and were well rewarded by having a bumper entry. The exhibition did not open as well patronised by the public as usual, due undoubtedly to the being such an intensely cold day; still, we understand a tremendous amount of tickets have been sold, and the society should have a good balance on the right side when accounts are made up. Everything was done for the comfort of the exhibits, their wants being well attended to by a hardworking band of stewards headed by the genial show managers, Messrs. T. J. Gregory and D. H. Davies. Our old friend, Mr. Dan. John, though far from well (he having barely recovered from an illness extending over four months), stuck to his post manfully, and we very much regret to hear that it will be impossible for him to continue in office another year, a decision that will be heard with regret by all Welsh fanciers. Norwich did not come up very well in numbers, still some really good exhibits were staged. Yorks. made a fine show, nearly all the cracks throwing down the gauntlet, attracted, no doubt, by the cup offered. The judge had great difficulty in these classes owing to the birds being affected by the cold and later in the day many awards could have been changed. Borders were good, Messrs. Harry, D. Jenkins, Allen and Johnston staging some real gems. The Hybrid section contained some well-known crack exhibits, and most of the found their way to the front. British was par excellence the great feature of the show. A splendid classification was given, and magnificently responded to. The entries were nearly doubled this year and Mr. Boulton found a very stiff day's work to get through; all through this section the exhibits were of the very highest class. Foreign birds in two classes were good, but not numerous. Mr. H. Siddall's birds only arrived in the show room about 5 o'clock in the afternoon and were thus too late for competition. CAGE BIRDS champion 10s. was by Mrs. Longden's Red-naped Lory, in the pink of condition; 10s. novice champion F. Samson, with a grand Yellow Norwich of very high merit. Diploma winners were: Best champ. Hyb., Mr. E. J. Lumb; novice, Hughes Bros.; champ. Hardbill, Mr. J. E. Jeffries; novice, S. S. Brooks; champ. Softbill, S. Jones, jun.; novice, J. Abbott, jun.; champ. For., Mrs. Longden. Mr. J. W. Battye judged Canaries, and Mr. C. Henlton the remainder.

DENNY AND DUNIPACE.

Seventeenth annual show, Jan. 17. Entries exceeded last year's total, which was very gratifying, as it was only at the last moment that the show was got up, but it would pay them to advertise a little more, both in the Fancy Press and by issuing more schedules. The date is a very suitable one, as there is practically no opposition. The hall is very suitable, having plenty of roof light, and very cosy and free from draughts. The committee being fanciers of the right sort, and management was all that one could wish for, the they did everything in their power to make the show a success. See. Mr. A. France is the right man at the helm, and is ably assisted by Pres. Mr. R. Anderson, and Mr. D. W. Herd; vice-president. Mr. Jas. F. Dewar, Edinburgh, judged, and his decisions were well received. The show was well patronised by the public.

CREST CK.: 1, 2, Donaldson, leader, wing mkd. D.C., lovely formation, neat centre; 2nd, variegd., nicely rounded Crest, capital feather; 3, M'Intosh, nearly gr., large-sized Crest, nice veiny feather; 4, Hood. BURNHOPE C.B.S.

First annual show held Rifle Range, Jan. 17, many good birds being staged, and over 80 entries. The Range is a good place for a show with very good light, both at sides and top. Mr. J. Riseborough, Sunderland, judged, and gave everyone satisfaction, and everything went off without a hitch. The officials were congratulated by the visitors on the way the show was carried out.

THORNTON.

Eighth annual show, held Public Hall, Nov. 29. Entries were down, many of the classes being cancelled. In the 41 classes provided there were a little over 150 entries, a state of affairs which could be remedied by a little more advertising; a great many fanciers round about the district never knew that the fixture was taking place. The exhibits might have been better staged, some of them being on the floor, while nearly all were staged with the backs of cages to the light. Judges were Mr. R. Menzies, Edinburgh, and Mr. G. Arnott, Sinclairtown.

GAINSBOROUGH C.B.S.

Annual members' show held Dec. 6 in the Co-operative Hall. Mr. G. Harland judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction. 120 birds were staged, and qual. was very high. The show was greatly appreciated by the public, the gate receipts being £7, speaking well for the prospects of the society when it ventures on an open show in the near future, which is the members' desire.

SHEFFIELD O.S.

Annual members' show held Jan. 17 at Montgomery Hall. The entry was not quite so large as expected, quality and variety were superb. Yorks were the feature, with Norwich and British good, Foreign gave tone. In the "long and slim" section Dr. W. Craig benched a wonderful team, gaining special for best in show with an "eye opener" of a yellow cock; while amongst the "short and thick 'uns," Mr. A. H. Waters claimed the biggest plums with gems. In Crest and C.B. Messrs. J. Evans and J. M. Memmott put down characteristic specimens. British claimed many admirers, Messrs. P. Walsh, G. Fletcher, J. Milne, and F. Bearder staged charmers, strenuous battles being fought. Foreign beauties were those owned by Messrs. Colton and Dawn, G. Fletcher, and W. Baxby. Specials went as follows: Most entries, Yorks B. Porter, Nor. A. H. Waters, Crests J. Evans, Brit. and For. G. Fletcher; most points in show G. Fletcher, 2nd A. H. Waters; most points sectional, Crests J. Evans, Yorks Dr. Craig, Nor. A. H. Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

PELTON FELL.

Annual show held Dec. 6, Colliery Inn, in a large room kindly lent by Mr. E. Waugh, a very generous patron of the society. Entries came up splendidly, totalling 243, easily constituting a record for the society, and it must have been very gratifying indeed to the chairman, Mr. J. Stanger, and sec. Wm. Forster, to find their united and untiring efforts to bring forward the cage bird fancy in this district so well rewarded. Norwich and Bord. were strong in numbers, and competition was very keen. Brit. made a fine display, the quality of many leaving nothing to be desired. The genial and obliging sec. had everything in grand order. Mr. Stanger is grandly supported by a hard-working committee composed of such sterling fanciers as Messrs. W. Davidson, R. W. Boyd, A. Forster, R. Ward, J. McDonald, T. Elliott, S. Lindsay, L. Redpath, R. Foster, J. H. Elliott, and R. S. Bewick, all keen and willing to give of their best. Special winners: Most entries, also most points Stanger, best Crest or C.B. Bewick, Nor. Lindsay, Yorks. Ward, Bord. Stanger and Elliott divide, Brit. Boyd, most points Nov. Gladstone, best For. McDonald. The show was well attended, and there is every prospect of its turning out a financial success. We were informed by Mr. Forster that an effort is to be made to form an amalgamation of all local societies, comprising Pelton Fell, Birtley, Chester-le-Street, Beamish, and hold a big show annually. Judges were Mr. J. Hands, Canaries; and Mr. J. Riseborough, the remainder.

Unfortunately we were unable to obtain notes of the Canary classes, but the awards were:

LINGFIELD F.S.

Quite a nice collection of cage birds were got together in the Victoria Institute, Jan. 14, and 15. Mr. John Stone, the hon. sec., is a host in himself, having mastered every detail of a show. He is backed by a committee of splendid fanciers, with whom no item is too small to attend to. Mr. Geo. Gardner judged, and the quality all round was good. Goldfinches were a fine lot for quality, and took some sorting. Mr. C. W. Silk won members' special in Canary section, and Mr. Potter that for British.

NOR. (5): 1, 2, Kilby, grand tick necked yell., in fine trim 2 buff, c'ose and compact, good type; vhc, sp, c, Silk; hc Potter. NON-FED. (3): 1, vhc, Ollie, leader, variog. yell., nice qual. and good shape; hc, Potter. YORKS (3): 1, Nicholls, nice positioned buff, good feather and straight. IPSWICH.

21st show of the Eastern Counties C.B.S. held Jan. 26 and 27, Social Settlement. Entries were about the same as last year. Mr. C. Simpson judged. Quality created a record, and Mr. Simpson had considerable difficulty in adjudicating upon many of the classes. Sir Daniel Goddard's cup for best bird fell, for the second year in succession, to W. Gunn with a typical crested Canary; second best a beautiful glossy Starling, shown by Andrews Bros. Best novice, Mr. Bloomfield. In foreign small Andrews Bros. secured the first three awards for birds with a Paradise Whydah, Superb Tanager, and Black headed Mannikins; 1 and 2 in A.O.V. with a Glossy Starling and Blue faced Barbette. The Mayor opened the show, and in doing so said that he did not believe a better exhibition of cage birds had ever been seen in Ipswich. There were two hobbies which anyone could take up with satisfaction to themselves, and their friends one was the growing of flowers and the other the breeding of cage birds, and more harmless hobbies could not be imagined. He then handed Mr. Simpson a mahogany chimney clock and an illuminated address as a slight token of the members of his efforts during the past twenty-one years. A vote of thanks to the Mayor and Mr. Simpson concluded the proceedings. The arrangements were, as usual, of a high order, thanks to the energy of the secretary, Mr. W. Barritt, and a strong working committee under the chairmanship of Mr. C. Mouser.

JERSEY.

Although the cage bird fancy in Jersey is not so strong as it used to be a few years since there was quite a nice little collection of good class exhibits on view at the exhibition of the Jersey Poultry and Ornithological Society which was held in the Prince of Wales Rooms on Jan. 7 & 8. Mr. C. A. House had been engaged to judge, but owing to some misunderstanding in reference to his engagement at The Hague he was unable to be present, and Mr. G. H. Billett very kindly stepped into the breach at short notice, and his awards were well received. The exhibits were nicely staged, and all their needs well looked after by a most excellent committee at the head of which was that good fancier Mr. S. Sinnott. Mr. J. P. Laurens made a splendid secretary and he received most capable assistance from Mr. A. C. Walker.

YORKS. CL. (4): 1, sp, Picot, very long, straight, stylish, close feathered yell., of good col. and position; 2, Hodgetts, hardly so tight in feather, but a long, reachy, stylish yell; 3, res, Bree, nice col. and feather, not quite so thin and straight. VARIEG. (3): 1, 2, Hodgetts, long racy, close feathered tkd. yell., capital wings, as straight as a dart, 2nd buff of lovely qual. and style, plenty of length, a shade stout; 3, Picot, grand stylish yell., well shown, hardly so clean cut. HEN (5): 1, hc, Hodgetts long slim, shapely tkd. yell., capital legs, wings, and tail, full of style and nerve; 2, Bree, long, racy yell., not quite so neatly shaped, but a good shower; res, hc, Picot. NON-FED (7): 1, Bree, clinking yell., lovely shape and length, rare carriage and feather; 2, 3, Hodgetts, very smart, well feathered buffs of grand style, not quite so slim in waist; res, hc, Le Rossignol, very smart Green, of good shape; vhc, Renouf. CREST: 1, Le Poidevin, very neat grizzle, nice frontal; 2, 3, Mrs. Bray, heavily variog., and a clear, not much between them, neat, but not so much headgear as 1st; absent, Gendewar. NOR. SUNDERLAND SCORES A SUCCESS.

EIGHTY MORE ENTRIES THAN LAST YEAR.

The Celebrated Hybrid Wins Special for Best Bird in the Show.

24th annual exhibition, held Jan. 16 and 17, in every way one of the most successful shows ever held in the town. The Miners' Hall was again the venue, and is in every way splendidly adapted for the purpose, the only difficulty being that the light is not quite ideal on such dull days as were experienced during the time of the show. Entries came up splendidly, 570 open and 120 members, about 80 more than last year. The new staging was beautifully arranged, and looked very neat, while a liberal display of charming plants and flowers gave the hall a delightful appearance. The management was a treat, not the slightest hitch occurring during the show. In Mr. John Peacock the society possess an ideal secretary, and he spared neither time nor effort to make the show one of the best ever held. All his work is done with methodical precision, and a glance through his well-kept books showed that he has nothing to learn in secretarial work, while his courteous manner and willingness to oblige make it a pleasure to meet him. Mr. F. Riseborough, the assistant sec., rendered great assistance, getting through a large amount of work with every credit. The genial chairman, Mr. John Farrer, is still at the head of the workers, and that means everything. Quiet and unassuming, he is yet firm, and everything under his care must be done thoroughly and well. He was well backed up by a splendid body of fanciers: vice-chair., Mr. C. Waters; treas., Mr. G. Davidson; and Messrs. A. Elliott, J. Machin, T. Davison, T. Gray, T. W. Smith, A. Walker, W. Reid, J. Riseborough, J. M. Walker, and Mr. John Hutchinson, the genial secretary of the Northern Crest Club, who rendered every help during the first day of the show.

Norwich were a nice lot, averaging about 10 per class, and many of the birds were real toppers, Mr. W. H. Butler's nuffighted yellow taking diploma for best in section. Crests averaged nearly 7 per class, and though not quite up in numbers the quality was all there, Mr. Geo. Dobson taking the diploma for best. Yorks. came up well, over 14 per class, quality throughout being superb. Mr. L. Dykes took diploma for best. Borders were a grand lot, and about the best section in show, 1st in 9 classes, and the judge had his work cut out to select the winners, so keen was the competition, one class including 5 Scottish National winners. The best in section went to Mr. J. Nicholson's Cinn. mkd. yell., and it wasn't Jimmy Johnstone's fault that the bird didn't get diploma for best bird in show, for he made a grand fight for his selection. Lizards were good, 20 in two classes, Mr. W. P. Barnes taking most of the plums. Mules and British also made a fine display, quality being well to the fore. The celebrated variegated Canary-Bullie was again on view, and attracted a great deal of attention. It stood first in its class, and won diploma for best bird in show, Mr. Wilson and Mr. Cowgill both deciding in its favour against the yellow Border already mentioned. We heard only one fancier who declined to accept the Canary as one of its parents. Some thought the bird somewhat lucky to beat the clear Goldie Mule in the same class, but Mr. Wilson stated that he put the bird up solely on account of its rarity, it being the only specimen of its kind in existence, which could not be said about the clear Goldie.

The show was grandly patronised, the takings exceeding by several pounds last year's amount. Very few birds, however, changed hands, and the receipts from sales was not so high as usual. Diploma winners were: Best in show, R. D. Parlett; champ. Nor., W. H. Butler; nov., H. D. Pyman; Crest or C.B., Geo. Dobson; champ. Yorks., L. Dykes; nov., S. Knowles; champ. Bord., J. Nicholson; nov., Wm. Howe; Liz., W. P. Barnes; Mule or Hyb., R. D. Parlett; Brit., R. D. Parlett; For., P. Arnot; Bord. F.C.C. medal, W. T. Wilson; most points in Brit., R. D. Parlett.

In members' classes Mr. W. F. Swan won the Hunter cup, Mr. T. Riseborough Davison cup for 5 nominated birds, also Thompson cup for most points in members' classes; this he has now won outright; best bird in members', Sandiford's medal, E. Kennerson; most points in novice and open members' classes, T. Smith. We must not forget little Miss Kate Walker, who looked extremely pretty in a dress made of CAGE BIRDS coloured plates, the design being very neat, and arranged to the best advantage. Judges were: Mr. W. A. Cowgill (Nor., Yorks., Crests and Lizards), Mr. J. Johnstone (Bord. and Sell.), and Mr. Geo. Wilson (Mules, Brit. and For.).

GRANGE-OVER-SANDS.

First open show held Jan. 8 in Victoria Hall. The society may be proud of their first venture, and it is only a just reward for the grit shown by all the members, especially to those who stayed up all night unpacking and re-arranging the staging, which proved too small for the 851 entries in all sections. These enterprising fanciers are headed by the Rev. Ivor Farrar, who is a worker indeed and a great enthusiast in cage bird circles. Our section was in the hands of the Misses Thomas, Mr. Storey, and a gentleman whose name we failed to catch. The sec., Mr. J. C. Mossop, worked like a Trojan, and although this was his first attempt he seems to be able to give lengths of start to more experienced secs. Everything was ready in good time, awards up at once, and all his instructions were received willingly by a whole-hearted band of stewards. His assistant, Mr. W. J. Shepherd, gave admirable help. Quality was very high, some startlers being on view. We noticed a lot of fanciers from a distance. All exhibits were away for the mail train. With a little more advertising our section should provide a show second to none in North Lancs. Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, Liverpool, judged, and his awards were well received.

ST. JAMES' GATE (Dublin) F. AND I.A.

Sixth annual show held Dec. 13, at the Workmen's Rooms, Bellevue. The weather was all that could be wished for; attendance was very good, and exhibits in good form. British led the way in number and some very fine specimens were among them. A few good Yorks. and Norwich made up the Canary section, and there were some capital hybrids staged. Mr. P. Mulcahy won the sp. best bird with his grand Chough, adding another prize to its long string of honours. The hall is the finest in Dublin—it is large, well lighted, and free from draughts. The management was all that could be desired. Mr. C. H. Heaslip, the hard-working sec., had everything in apple pie order, assisted by hon. treas., Mr. T. S. Carey, and the stewards, Messrs. Buckley, Fiddes, Malone, and Brady, worked well too, as could be seen by the way everything was carried out. Mr. W. C. Shedden judged, and his awards were well received.

YORKS. (5): 1, 2, sp, P. T. Farrell, cinn. mkd., good head and neck, nice long wings, close to sides, fine feather, good leg, rather cobby, not quite in full feather, long tail and wing tip, tail a bit rough on the edges; vhc, he, G. A GROUP OF BEAUTIES FROM FOREIGN CLIMES.

The Occipital Blue-Pie (Urocissa Occipitalis).

THIS is a creature of size, its length being 24ins., of which the tail measures 16ins.; its beauty is undeniable, and the gracefulness of its form and deportment is above the average. The sexes are alike in plumage, but the beak of the male is a little longer and more slender than that of the female, and a detailed description of the plumage is uncalled for save such as is given in the following note by the Revd. J. M. Paterson, which I quote from "Bird Notes," the journal of the Foreign Bird Club:—"I am afraid I know very little about Urocissa occipitalis, though I have seen him often enough in the Himalayan forests, as every traveller does, for as he rises and flies high up into the trees he is a most conspicuous object. He is a ground feeder, and spends a good deal of his time on terra firma, and as he rises from his feeding ground—the top of some tall tree being his objective—he always attracts the eye with his brilliant colouring. His whole upper back and wings and tail appear to be bright blue, but when he settles high up he only shows a bright coral-red beak, set off with black head and neck, and silky white waistcoat and under-tail feathers distinctly barred. His nest is generally built in the topmost fork of a high tree, strongly and compactly built of twigs. The bird is a bold one, and fearlessly approaches villages and the habitations of mankind, though he is a true forest bird in his habits. The natives frequently keep it in a cage, and it becomes very tame."

In captivity it soon becomes tame and makes a charming and beautiful pet, for this bird is fully as fearless, impudent and mischievous as the English Magpie, and very strongly resembles it in his general habits and deportment. But it is on the wing that it is seen to the best advantage. Some few years ago several Occipital Blue-Pies occupied one of the aviaries on the North bank of the Regent's Canal at the London Zoo, and I spent long periods watching their beautiful plumage, graceful wing evolutions, etc., both from the upper and lower paths—the memory is green still; in fact, I shall never forget the sight from the upper path as they flew up and down with their long tails and beautiful wings outspread.

Their requirements are easily met; a large cage or roomy aviary (the netting could be of fairly large mesh, say, 1in.), and nothing much seems to come amiss to their large appetite. A good coarse insectile mixture will form the staple dietary, the bulk of which could be swelled with table scraps, e.g., bread, cake, potato, salads, minced meat, etc. Boiled rice is also eaten and any kind of live food obtainable, also any small mouse or similar mammal which, with chopped lettuce and other green food, will supply an ample and varied dietary.

The Triocoloured Tanager (Calliste Tricolour).

I shall not attempt description with this species, sometimes called the Green-headed Tanager, for Mr. Goodchild's drawing of the bird on the wing portrays so clearly the plumage pattern, and colour arrangement, that nothing more is necessary; though the colour process does bare justice to the intensity of the glistening hues that make up its complete satin-like garment. It has been known to aviculture for many years, but has never been so common as the well-known Superb, and according to my experience, is not quite so robust as the last-named species. I have, however, had specimens which have lived several years (four to six), and one is before me as I write this, not in life, unfortunately, for he met with a tragic end at the hands (beak) of a pet Shama, a tap on the skull and all was over, nothing left but the body with plumage in exhibition trim. Out of doors from May to end of October, indoors for the other period, once acclimatised, they do well, and amid the living green of an outdoor aviary are a dream of beauty and interest while the outdoor days last. It has not yet been bred in captivity in this country; personally, I am not sure of ever having possessed a true pair; at the same time, one must be careful how one mixes up Tanagers, even in a roomy garden aviary, for there are many mischievous and unamiable individuals among them, but a few odd cocks can be included in most series.

As to cage-life, Tanagers are apt to die from over-eating and lack of exercise, so be lavish in the cubic capacity of your cages, and tolerate nothing less than 24 ins. long by 15 to 18 ins. high, and about 12 ins. deep; use natural branches as perches, and keep them to each end of the cage so that the bird must fly from one to the other, and if possible let it have a fly round the room periodically. As regards their menu, this is simple, viz., ripe fruit ad lib., insectile mixture, and occasional live insects—my birds always have access to milk-sop, and I always think are the better for it, but many birds are kept in cages without it and do well.

The Master Singer of the Canary Tribe

By J. TOMLINSON.

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

TWO separate definitions may be placed upon the term novice; it may mean one that is not experienced in the rudiments of canary keeping and breeding, while from a show secretary's point of view a fancier is a novice until he has won two first prizes, no matter how experienced he may be from a breeder's point of view. In this case I am assuming that the term applies to my first description of a novice.

This question will appeal to the majority of new fanciers, so I will endeavour to point out the cause in the majority of cases, where the novice procures good bred stock, and their progeny fail to realize his expectations. The experienced will accept a good singer, without questioning about its pedigree. The song is to him the "hall mark" of good breeding, and as the particular bird is capable of rendering a good song he accepts the possibility that it will be capable of transmitting to its progeny its own good qualities. On the other hand, take the bird of moderate quality offered for sale in the open market, where nothing can be learned regarding its parentage, then also the value is set on its song. Traces of good breeding may be apparent from the bird's ability to sing one or more tours in good style, and this fact would enhance its value accordingly.

Again a bird may come from the stock of a breeder who procures the best money can buy; he will, so to speak, obtain what he requires first, and ask the price afterwards; his sole ambition is to maintain, and better, if possible, the quality of his birds. He uses his fine judgment in tutoring, using only the best of any that may be suitable. The weeds receive a strict and prompt dispatch, I mean by "weeds" the very inferior singers, these are not offered for sale in the usual channel. Oh no! the breeder with a reputation to uphold does not send anything out that is likely to bring discredit on himself. You may ask "What becomes of them?" Some are sent "home," others are given away as pets, while the rings may be removed from others, and the birds sent to a dealer to lighten the seed bill.

This stock is well bred, and is usually fit to be in the money at the shows, and in this case surely some account can be taken of the bird's parentage in addition to its quality of song in fixing a market value. Of course, this decision would be applicable where the breeder has preferred to build up a stud of his own in preference to obtaining the ready-made article, and where his birds have attained such merit that they are qualified to compete at the exhibitions.

It is certainly to be recommended that good quality birds should be used for stock purposes, i.e., to breed from, but the best youngsters are not always bred direct from the prize winner. Many well bred, though faulty, birds are equally as capable of producing a prize winner. Take the bird that was a good quality bird in its younger days, and has become faulty with advancing age; mate this bird to a suitable hen, and it will produce youngsters of as fine a quality as it would have done in its prime. Yet were nothing known of what the bird had been its value would be in the quality of its song. If we place this class of bird or any other well bred though faulty singer in the hands of an experienced breeder, he would use the cock only for breeding purposes and provide a suitable tutor for the young birds.

The new fancier breeds from the faulty singer, and afterwards uses it for a tutor, and the result from an exhibitor's point of view is not satisfactory. I am inclined to think that this has been attributed to the raising of the question "Shall we pay for pedigree or song?" Consideration is not given to the value of the stock bird, which in many instances is only one quarter or one half the value of its sire, the contest singer.

It would be very difficult to set the price the fancier should pay for a stock bird, as the quality of its song and its breeding would vary in nearly every case, as would the opinion of the seller. I think the novice will see the error of his ways, and it is "up to him" to rectify his mistakes, and procure a suitable and qualified schoolmaster to tutor his young birds.

A suitable bird would be one that sings a similar style of song to his own birds, and qualified by its variety of good tours, with the faults at a minimum. For instance a bird singing four or five tours that may be termed of just a moderate quality, and, in addition to these, a couple of faulty tours, would not be of sufficient merit to use as a tutor, whereas one with five or six, or maybe more, good tours, with one fault would probably be acceptable. A great deal would depend upon the quality of those good tours, and to the extent the faulty passage would jar on the ear.

The song of our birds varies so much that it is difficult to define a suitable candidate, but from the above meagre instructions it will be ascertained that good qualities must compensate for the inferior. In some instances the suitability would only be ascertained by noticing whether the youngsters have made any attempt to copy their master. Some birds will be able to produce each other's song to a nicety, so long as they only hear birds of their own strain, whereas the different style of singing appertaining to other strains would be too difficult for them.

THE ART OF STAGING BRITISH BIRDS.

By C. PRIOR (Ripley).

ANY of the various shades of pure green will serve for the display of whatever excellence of colour your bird may possess, while if his colour is wrong, no colour that you put on his cage can make it right. Two colours in green, then, will cover the whole ground, and a few exchange sets of perches, varying just a trifle in thickness, will be a much more profitable investment than the laying in of a stock of enamels to carry out hypothetical colour schemes.

Having chosen your colour, the next thing will be to get it on to the cage. Enamels, if put on too thickly, will trickle down the back and sides; hence two coats thinly spread will leave a much better finish than the same quantity laid on all at once. If a start is made on naked i.e., unpainted, wood, the first coat should be flatting or priming, obtainable at any oil and colour stores. This should be rubbed smooth with fine sandpaper and all dust brushed away before applying the two coats of colour, and each coat must be perfectly dry before the next is applied. A flat brush should be used, and the finishing strokes should be firm, light sweeps, always in the same direction. A perfectly dry atmosphere is indispensable if the best results are aimed at. Paint, thinly covered with one or two coats of the best varnish, is rather easier to manipulate, and will make as good a job as enamel; a far better one, in fact, than enamelling carelessly done.

The whole of the inside, including the edges of the door and the wires, should be coloured, and the top and bottom rails of the detachable front may also be coloured to match the inside or they may be blacked to match the outside. If the paint and varnish method is adopted, a little of each should be well mixed together to cover the wires only; that being better than using them separately on the wires. The whole of the outside will be blacked, and the edges of the top and bottom and two ends will make a neat black framing for the picture inside.

Shellac, dissolved in methylated spirit, and mixed with lamp black, makes a very quick-drying "spirit black," suitable for application to raw wood. Bicycle enamels give a very good finish and dry quickly, but many of them are apt to crack and chip off. Japan black and Aspinall's black enamel are the real goods, drying with a surface like polished ebony, and never cracking or showing marks of usage. Like other enamels, however, they require care in spreading, and a dry atmosphere until thoroughly set.

The tin or zinc drinker should be blacked (or may be coloured to match the inside of the cage) on the outside only; the inside of it should be left plain. If it is desired to renovate the show cage after a little service, without change of colour, all that is necessary is to thoroughly clean it all over and apply a thin coat of good varnish.

One other point is material for the cage bottom. Some exhibitors leave it bare; others, possibly those who have fowls at home, litter it with seed. My own predilection is in favour of a little fine cokernut fibre, slightly damped and firmly pressed in. Sawdust is sometimes used, and so is sand; but neither of these is recommended.

The round-topped or bow-fronted show cages which now and again enjoy a little vogue have nothing to commend them over the ordinary square-topped pattern, and more than one objection. The theory is that the rounded top renders inspection of the bird easier to the judge. The fact is that he can see all that is necessary without it. One drawback to the half-open rounded top is that it is not in the least suited to birds at all inclined to be nervous, as will be forcibly apparent when, for instance, the lights suddenly go up just as they are settling themselves for the night. Another drawback is that it (the round top) admits dust, seed husks, and other refuse from the higher tiers of cages, which the square top keeps out. Either of these objections is sufficient to condemn it. Besides, you don't want to show your bird in a blanky tunnel, as one exhibitor said to another.

Questions and Answers.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

AILING NORWICH HEN (J.T.).—You ought to have said how the hen has been fed and treated hitherto. See that she is quite free from cold draughts and extremes of heat and cold, and treat as follows for a fortnight, and if she is not well in that time please write again, and give fuller particulars, and I will advise you further. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed only. In addition to this give half a teaspoonful of scalded rape, and either a small spray of watercress or a morsel of banana every second day. On the alternate days give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar. Limit the diet to this for the time named. In the drinking water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece for three consecutive days, and after this give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid every second day for the remainder of the fortnight.

A SQUEAKY NOISE (A.B.).—Possibly your treatment has failed because you have not removed the exciting causes of the complaint. See that the bird is not exposed to any cold draughts or extremes of temperature. Keep in a fairly cosy place, though you need not overheat it, but let the warmth, whatever it is, be fairly constant, and do not keep it where it will be exposed to the heated and impure fumes from burning lights in the evenings. Give a staple diet of a mixture of three parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it every second day for three weeks, and on the alternate days give a morsel of green food or a little banana. Also make a paste by well mixing on a hot plate a teaspoonful of pure honey, ditto of cod liver oil emulsion, as much chlorate of potash as will cover a shilling, and the same quantity of grains of paradise, adding whilst mixing sufficient finely powdered biscuit to make the whole into the consistency of soft cheese. When cold it will become harder and may be cut into cubes and stuck in the wires for the bird to peck at when it is so disposed. Keep a little of this past in the cage and renew when necessary for the next two or three weeks. In the water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece every second day for a week, and afterwards 20 drops of the following mixture every second day, for three weeks, if necessary. Mixture: Two drachms each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one drahm each of chlorodyne and ipecacuanha wine, and eight grains of iodide of potassium.

STARTED SINGING AND MOULTING (Constant Reader). Glad to hear the bird has recovered sufficiently to commence to sing. It is most likely that it did not complete its moult in the autumn, and is now just finishing up. Keep it in a tolerably warm place, but do not overdo it, and see that it is quite free from cold draughts. Continue the same dietary as advised in last reply for another month. Add 20 drops of Chemical Food to the water daily for a week, and after this dissolve half a drachm of ammoniat d citrate of iron and quinine in one ounce of sherry, add a teaspoonful of glycerine, and give 20 drops of this mixture in the water two days in every three until the feathers cease dropping. In ordinary circumstances the bird should be in good condition to start the breeding season at the proper time.

LOOSE IN FEATHER (R.C.C.).—In addition to the staple seed diet, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion and four of sherry mixed in it every second day for a fortnight or three weeks, as may appear necessary, and on the alternat days give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazel, and broken groats. Give also a morsel of banana about three times a week. In the drinking water give the quinine mixture as advised to "Constant Reader" in this issue for two or three weeks.

MATE FOR BORDER FANCY (Cinnamon Mark).—A clear yellow pink-eyed hen for one, and a cinnamon eye marked yellow for the second, would be the most suitable mates for the cock you describe, as true colour is concerned; but you must, of course, see that they are a suitable match for him in other respects, such as type, quality of plumage, etc. It will not matter if the yellow marked bird is also ticked or frilly on the wing with cinnamon colour, but try to avoid head, breast, shoulder, and back markings. From these a bird you should get some nicely ticked and marked birds, with a fair chance of a decent yellow marked one here and there.

INCREASE THROBBING (S.B.R.). It depends upon what is the cause of the heavy throbbing of the breast whether it would be safe to breed with it or not. It may be nothing at all important, or it may be as likely be due to bronchial trouble, or it may be merely the result of overfeeding. Keep it in a cosy part of the room out of the way of draughts; give a diet of plain canary and rape, in which add three times a week for a fortnight half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny piece every second day for a week, and after this give 20 drops of Chemical Food every second day for a fortnight. Report result of this treatment, and I will advise you further if necessary.

KEEPS LOSING FEATHERS (C.H.S.).—Please see reply to "R.C.C." in this issue, and follow the advice given therein, which will be quite suitable for your bird. It is very probable that the bird is exposed to cold draughts or extreme and rapid fluctuations of temperature. In either case you must take the necessary steps to remove these setting causes. Keep the bird in a cosy but not necessarily overheated place, and do not allow it to hang near or over a burning light in the evening.

NORWICH CRESTBRED CROSS (F.W.).—If you have a fairly decent type of Norwich I should advise you emphatically not to think of mating your small non-feathery Crestbred hens with the Plainheads. Although the Crestbreds may, as you say, be lacking in feather properties, there is certain to be an innate disposition to produce a greater abundance of feather than is at all desirable in the Plainhead. In addition, there is probably a certain amount of "browiness" and tendency to long flights and tails, as well as other physical properties which are not wanted in the Plainhead. These things may not be at all pronounced in the imperfect Crestbreds you suggest using, and yet come out in their progeny to an extent which would give you much trouble to breed out in future years. Altogether it is not worth taking the risk. Far better discard the hens or relegate them to the "feeding" class at once.

A YORKSHIRE TRIO (C.L.F., Finchley). (1) I presume the feathers are always sticking out at the sides, as you describe, when the bird is active and hopping about as well as when it is at rest. In this case, it is due to the bird being naturally long and heavily feathered, and there is nothing you can do to cure it. The remedy is to mate the bird with a very trim and closely feathered bird, and one for preference that has been bred from parents that did not show this fault. You might do something to reduce the loose appearance by keeping the bird in a larger cage and allowing it to have a free use of the bath. Freedom to bathe at will, and a more liberal amount of space for exercise would do much to induce it to pull itself together and keep its plumage in a trim condition. You may give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it daily for a week. (2) No, the position of the cock will not be likely to bring it into breeding condition too early. About the middle of March, however, you should place him where he can see the hen for a time before putting them together. (3) Provided the cages are kept quite clean it is not necessarily harmful to keep birds in brass cages. But if such cages are neglected, they are most liable to form verdigris about the wires, etc., which, if pecked off by the bird, is most poisonous.

CHRONIC ASTHMA (Iredale). If, as your letter suggests, the bronchitis has become chronic, I am afraid there is very little hope of any real cure taking place. Temporary relief is all that can be expected in such cases. As you seem satisfied that it is not exposed to any draughts, see that it is also protected from extremes of heat and cold, from the impure fumes of burning lights in the evenings, and do not allow it to hang high up near the ceiling, nor in a dusty atmosphere. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed, and every second day give half a teaspoonful of summer rape separately, and on the alternate days give a quarter teaspoonful of maw. Twice a week give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with maw. Keep a little of the paste advised to "A.B." in this issue in the case for it to peck at. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece every second day for a week, and after this go on with the chlorodyne mixture advised to "A.B." also in this issue, and continue this for three or four weeks. Report result at end of this time, and I will advise you further if necessary.

COVERING AND CONDITION (J.W.).—(1) Your birds are in a totally different condition from those in the reply to which you refer, but even in your case, if you took the same precautions to have the cages placed at night in such a position as would afford protection from the prevailing winds in a sheltered corner, I should say they would do better without a cover than with one. Indeed, birds kept under the conditions yours are, should be, and doubtless are, quite capable of withstanding life in an outdoor aviary permanently. Covering the cages is apt to encourage red mites, and unless the flimsiest material is used is also apt to cause the air in the cages to become stuffy before morning. A thin gauzy cover which did not prevent the free passage of air could, however, do not harm, and would be quite sufficient to shield the birds from the artificial light. You might treat the Birds that are soft the same as advised to "Constant Reader" in this issue for a fortnight. (2) The best way of telling when the cocks are ready for mating is by their generally high condition and behaviour. They will be singing violently, so to speak, and frequently calling out frantically to the hens, and responding to the calls of the hens, and making determined efforts to get to them, or craning their necks to see them if they happen to be out of direct sight, and now and again they will be seen picking up any trifle they can get hold of and carrying it up to the perch, or attempting to "feed" their own feet, or placing half digested food on the perch. If a hen is within reach they will be frequently feeding her with tit-bits through the wires which separate them, and singing at them.

HEAVY BREATHING (H. L. W.).—I am inclined to think the birds are a trifle overfed. See that they are free from cold draughts and damp, and then try the following treatment for a fortnight, and if the heavy breathing and noises are not better in that time, stop this treatment, and go on for the next two or three weeks with the treatment advised to "A.B." in this issue. For present treatment give a staple diet of plain Canary seed only, and twice each week give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. If the weather is mild give a spray of watercress daily. Limit the diet strictly to this. In the water add during the first week six drops of syrup of rhubarb, and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence every second day, and in the second week give instead 20 drops of chemical food every second day.

REASON FOR EGG-LAYING (A Novice).—The only reason that can be assigned for a hen laying a casual egg in the flight at this season is that the ovary has been roused to temporary activity by some means. With prolific hens it is by no means uncommon for such a thing to occur occasionally during the winter season, and no importance whatever is to be attached to the occurrences. The eggs are, of course, useless, and may as well be destroyed when found. It might help to keep such hens back a little if they could be kept out of sight and earshot of lusty cocks. The very mild intervals we had up to quite recently are doubtless responsible for many similar happenings.

SEEMS TO BE COLD (B. B.). Is the bird a cock or a hen? If the former, does it sing at all? In either case does it appear to be in good health generally, or does it wheeze, or show any difficulty in breathing? You see, you really ought to have given some few particulars. Many birds may sit a little puffed out as though they were cold at this season, when they have so little else to do, but eat and "rest upon it" without anything being materially wrong with them. Your dietary might with advantage be a little more generous. Try the following for a fortnight, and if not then quite well, write again, and give above details. In addition to the staple diet, give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut, with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it, and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day, and twice a week a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, and teazle, and a morsel of banana or sweet apple about as often. Dissolve a pinch of Epsom salts in the water for a day, and for a few days afterwards substitute 20 drops of chemical food. Keep in a bright, healthful place, free from draughts.

YORKSHIRE NORWICH CROSS (A Constant Reader). Your birds are simply cross-breds, and of no material use for breeding back either to the pure Yorkshire or Norwich. They are only of value as songsters, or for breeding more singers of the same type, so if you wish to keep up the improved appearance of the birds, and also retain a fairly good type of song, you should mate these birds with two first-cross Roller-Yorkshire hens. Two pure Roller hens of a good singing strain would be the next best thing, but the young may not be quite so good looking.

MOULTING STOPPED (E. L.).—Thanks for your letter. Very glad to hear that the moulting has stopped, and that the noises in the throat are much better. The bird will doubtless resume its song in the course of a few weeks, but is not very likely to do so until it is in a fair condition of health. You may now treat it as advised to "A. B." in this issue, giving it the paste referred to for a month or so, and the mixture in the water also for that length of time. I think this should be sufficient to set matters quite right again.

A CURIOUS CASE (Dundee, New York).—I do not know which, if either, portion of your pseudonym indicates your locality, and I'm afraid I cannot assist you much on the particulars given in your letter. It is certainly somewhat curious that all your stock should become affected in the same way, and go bald about the eyes and around the beak from no apparent cause. How many birds have you, and are they kept in a room by themselves, and had you introduced any fresh birds about the time the stock became affected? Also, did the eyes appear inflamed, or discharge at all, and do they seem normal now? If the eyes are still swollen, get a few chamomile flowers from a chemist, place half a dozen in a teacup, and pour on them a cupful of boiling water, cover, and allow to infuse for 15 minutes, then strain off the clear liquid, add 30 drops of tincture of opium, and bathe the eyes once daily with a little of this liquid, using a little fresh liquid and a clean dossil of cotton wool for each bird. Anoint the bare skin twice a week with boracic ointment until you see the new quills sprouting. Give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar twice a week, and a pinch of mixed seeds on two other days. If the birds do not quickly improve under the above treatment, please write again, and give full particulars as indicated above, when I shall be only too pleased to assist you as far as I can.

DOUBTFUL SEX (Puzzled).—A mistake may be made in the sex of a given bird occasionally by even the most expert, so it is quite possible that the bird you bought for a hen may, after all, be a cock. I hope you do not mean that you have actually put the birds together for breeding yet. It is a great deal too early for that. Cage the supposed hen alone for a few weeks, and give, in addition to the staple diet, a little egg food twice each week, a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts of hemp, niger, millet, and teazle on two other days, and a morsel of banana or sweet apple three times a week. This will give an opportunity to exert itself and show its sex more definitely by the time it is seasonable to commence breeding—ab, say, the end of March. Meantime remove the partition and allow the hens to have the whole of the double breeder for exercise until ready to begin breeding.

GETTING YOUNG COCKS ON SONG (Ranzo).—Seeing that the youngsters have the privilege of hearing an older bird singing constantly, they should, if in sound health and condition, have been in good song by this time without any forcing at all. Still, you may try what this treatment will do for them in the course of two or three weeks. In addition to the staple diet, give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed every second day, and on the alternate days give a similar quantity of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and broken groats. Also keep a little of the paste advised to "A. B." in this issue in the cages for them to peck at. Add ten drops of glycerine and ten of lemon juice to the water for a week or so. It is not possible to name the breed of the other bird which sings from your description, but I should imagine it to be a Roller. As regards breeding, you do not say what you wish to breed, whether Canaries or Mules. The cages you mention, if they have partitions fitted to them, would make four excellent breeding cages in which you could breed with four hens, either with as many cocks, or by running one cock with two hens. The best thing you could do would be to get a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," post free 7d., from our Manager: or, if you are thinking of going in for Mules, "Secrets of Hybrid-breeding," 1/2 post free from the same source, and be guided by the advice you will find therein on their respective subjects. It is much too early to begin breeding yet, so you will have plenty of time to read up the subjects before starting.

MATING RELATIONS (W. M.).—Such close inbreeding as the mating of brother and sister, or father and daughter, is always more or less detrimental to any stock, and should never be resorted to, unless there is some very definite object in view, and even then it should be limited to none but strong and robust specimens, and such as have not previously been inbred to any great extent; and it should never under any circumstances be repeated as close as this one year after another. There is, as a rule, a distinct loss in size and stamina in birds so bred, and whilst it is of great use in fixing any given point in a strain of birds, it is just as potent in fixing and exaggerating either typical or physical imperfections, consequently it must always be used with the utmost discrimination, and it is rarely that inexperienced fanciers have any likelihood of carrying it on with beneficial results.

PROPERTIES AND EFFECTS OF SEEDS (Hay Mill, Birmingham). I doubt if anyone knows completely all the precise effects of each particular kind of seed upon Canaries. You see, these seeds are not generally fed to the birds as their sole food supply for a considerable period, as they would need to be to give such details as you suggest. The question can only be answered in a general way, and what applies to one variety of Canary, such as the Norwich, will apply equally to any other, not excepting the Roller. British, German rape is a food rich in oils and fatty substances of a very nourishing nature. When well ripened and in good condition, it has a rather acrimonious effect. It may still retain a little of this quality when cut green, or even more so if ripening in the sun, but in that case it is often of great benefit in cooling the blood. It is also of great benefit in moulting time. It is used in excess all the year round it is apt to set up skin and feather troubles. Hemp, on the contrary, is exceptionally oily, and stimulating, and is not suitable for extensive use as part of the regular diet. It is said to be slightly laxative. Maw is an oily, but innocuous seed full of a bland oil, which seems to have a soothing effect upon the stomach and bowels, and is of service in correcting diarrhœa. Except during intervals of sickness it cannot be said to form a material portion of the regular diet.

MAKES HUSKY NOISE (A Novice).—It is probable that the bird has been kept hitherto in a warmer room than yours, as you say that you are keeping it in a cold room. Try moving it to a cosy place where the temperature is fairly equable and free from cold draughts, but do not overdo the thing and keep the bird too warm. You only want to keep it away from the quite cold chilly side. In addition to the staple of plain canary seed give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of summer rape, and twice a week a pinch of mixed seeds, and for the next fortnight give on the days intervening between the giving of rape half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod-liver oil emulsion and four of sherry well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw. In the drinking water during the same time add 20 drops of whiskey, five each of oxymel of squills and ipecac. wine, and two of eucalyptus oil, shaken well together, every second day. If the dose not quite set matters right write again and I will advise you further.

LIZARDS AND YORKSHIRES (Novice).—(1) Concerning the lizards your ideas are evidently all at sea. They were clearly not in a fit condition for breeding last season, and are not so as long as any of them are losing feathers. Moreover, it is months too early to think of breeding yet, so that the hen which will not begin to attempt nesting shows at least some discrimination. Then, why do you think the cock is a faked Silver Lizard? It is not at all uncommon for Lizards to moult into a lighter plumage after the first adult moult. The cock is clearly a Silver, and as you say the hens are Golds; this is as it should be, and you would do wrong to replace him with a Gold cock for mating with these hens. The proper and orthodox way of mating Lizards is Silver to Gold, which is completely analogous to mating yellow to buff, as is done in other varieties. My advice is, seeing that you are evidently quite a tyro in this matter, that if you purchased these birds from one breeder or dealer as matched birds for breeding you should let things remain as they are, and not attempt to alter it to suit your own fancy, and breed with them when the proper season arrives, if they are then in the proper condition. I see no reason to doubt the silver being a cock. (2) Your query about Crested Lizards is rather vague. Do you want to know whether you can purchase Crested Lizards? If so, I can only say I do not at present know of the existence of any. I have no doubt such a variety could be built in the course of time, but it would be a distinctly new creation, which would require both much time and skill. You will do well to master the breeding of Lizards without crests before attempting to produce Crested Lizards. Get Part 12 of "Our Canaries" for full details of Lizard breeding. As I really cannot advise you to breed with this bird, as even if you do manage to raise some young the sex of which is doubtful, they would, almost to a certainty, be congenitally predisposed to troubles similar to the cock, and sooner or later—and it is generally sooner—they would become physical wrecks, which can never be much pleasure to anyone, besides which, it is, to my mind, refined cruelty to assist in bringing such birds into existence. Only strong, healthy stock should be used for breeding. The bird may yet have a number of years before him if kept singly as a songster. Keep him in a fairly warm and equable place, quite free from draughts, but at the same time do not overheat him. Give a staple diet of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. Give a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar twice a week, and on two other days a pinch of a mixture of equal parts maw, sesame, gold of pleasure, and teazle. On each of the remaining days give a morsel of watercress or some kind of sweet fruit. In the water add six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a threepenny-piece every second day for a week. After this give 20 drops of the mixture named below every second day for two or three weeks, and on the intervening days in the first week give four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and aromatic sulphuric acid. Mixture: Two drachms each of glycerine and oxymel of squills, one drachm each of chlorodyne and ipecacuanha wine, and eight grains of iodide of potassium.

GROWTHS ON HEAD (Scaasi).—Without the advantage of seeing the bird I am inclined to think that the substances are abnormal feather growths. Treat as follows for a month, and if the bird is not well in that time, write again and say what (if any) change has occurred. Keep perches as clean as possible, and see that they are of soft material and smooth, so as to avoid irritation as far as possible when the bird rubs its head on them. Also remove the cuttlefish until the head is better, as it will only help the bird to irritate its ill whilst in its present condition. Give a staple of three parts canary to one part summer rape mixed together. In addition to this give a small teaspoonful of the mixed seed you have already been using twice a week, and on two other days each week give a morsel of bread and milk slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and then sprinkled with soft sugar, and two or three times a week a small spray of watercress or a morsel of banana. In the water give as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece, twice a week, giving this on the days following those on which you give the bread and milk. Allow the bird to bathe freely if it desires to do so in mild weather, and anoint the bare places on the head every third day with sulphur ointment. Just moist in the skin and the substances with the ointment without unnecessarily daubing the bird, and before releasing it dust the moistened places freely with boracic acid.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BIRDS FOR AVIARY (Keen Amateur).—I gather from your letter that your object is to keep British birds in your aviary for the pleasure of hearing them sing and not for breeding purposes. I would therefore advise you to have all cock birds, for although they will occasionally have a "scrap up" between them, you will not find so much real quarrelling as when the hens are there. On the other hand the hens are quite as interesting as the cocks, and if they pair on properly you may have a peaceful collection. Without any prevention to breeding you could keep thirty birds in your aviary. You could have all the finches and the Buntings, and a few Canaries. I do not think the Greenfinches were responsible for the death of your Goldies, the fact of the new one being in with them for the last six weeks is almost a proof of it. You may have turned them out just before a sudden snap of cold weather came on, when they would probably catch cold, and without proper remedies would soon go on. The book I would recommend is "The British Bird Manual," published at this office in two parts, "Hardbills" and "Softbills." It deals with each bird in a state of Nature, and also in captivity, cages, food, etc.

LINNET BARE (R.W.).—Probably your bird has insects either among his feathers or in the cracks of the cage. Examine him carefully for the former and if present dust thoroughly with insect powder every four or five days until clear of them. Thoroughly scrub the cage with "Lifebuoy" soap, drying it properly before returning the bird. Although you give your seed diet you say nothing of greenfood, and it is very essential that the Linnet should have a fair supply of chickweed, groundsel, and watercress, particularly as you say he is very fat. Give him an aperient as advised to others for Finches. Let him have a cage large enough to exercise in, and don't forget the bath. When you get some of the fat off him I have no doubt he will improve. Just smear the bare places with a touch of warm Kerol ointment. He would be just the bird to run with a good yellow Norwich Canary hen, if you have one, if not, you should procure one at once.

SHRUBS, ETC., FOR AVIARY (T.F.).—(1) You should furnish your aviary in the following manner: Procure some very coarse wire netting and fix it up rather loosely at the back and sides of the aviary, then fasten in among it, somewhat thickly, some heather and gorse; if you do it properly it has quite a good effect. Here and there you must work in a small branch for perches, or they will use the heather and soon mess it up. If you are blessed with a little artistic taste you could fasten up some Virginia cork by means of wire, which the birds would probably make use of as a foundation for nesting purposes. As regards green shrubs I do not think you can do better than use box, although whatever you use some of the birds are sure to peck it, particularly the Bullfinches. Plant two or three of the box trees in large flower pots, or tubs, keeping one of them outside to exchange with one that is not doing well in the aviary. (2) Winter-caught birds that have been kept in a quite cold place could be turned out as soon as there is a change in the weather. Be sure and place the seed and water so that the birds can easily find it, anyway for a time, until they get used to the place. (3) The three pairs you mention would do very well, and as they have all bred in captivity you stand a fair chance of being successful. Yes, you can breed with Linnet and Canary in a cage. It is not a difficult cross. Let them fly together until March, then part them for a time, and when both are ready you can place them together again for breeding. (4) The Bullfinches should be fed upon a staple food of 2 parts canary, 1 each of rape and linseed, with a spoonful of Finch mixture twice a week, and sunflower seeds on other days. The Goldies can have equal parts teazle and canary with ¼ part summer rape, and the Finch mixture and sunflower every day. The Greenfinches same food as the Bullies, without the linseed. Give all of them a spray of watercress, chickweed and flowering tops of groundsel. If you watch this column you will see more detailed methods of feeding each variety. (2) Inga and niger seed are the same. (6) Hen hybrids are practically of no use, but fortunately the majority of hybrids turn out to be cock birds.

PROPOSED AVIARY (A Young Reader).—You omit the most important item when asking for advice about the birds for your aviary, that is the size of it. All I can tell you is that Canaries and Goldfinches can be turned into the same aviary in the spring. If you will send particulars as to size of aviary, and if you want birds for breeding or simply for song, or anything else you wish to know I shall be pleased to advise you.

ANOTHER PROPOSED AVIARY (R.S.T.).—Your proposed aviary would comfortably hold thirty birds, but as you think of trying to breed with them I would advise you to have as few as possible. The following cock birds would possibly suit you: Linnet, Goldfinch, Siskin, Greenfinch, Redpoll. You would not be able to turn in more than one hen Bullie with any safety, and the remainder could be Canaries all hens if you want hybrids. If you cared to you could have some of the birds in pairs, such, for instance, as the Greenfinch and Redpoll, as Canary hybrids from these are, as a rule, not so valuable. Have plenty of nesting boxes; it prevents quarrelling among the hens for choice of site, if two select the same you must remove one of the birds, as it is generally a quarrel to the bitter end, with disastrous effect to the nest and eggs. Don't apologise for asking questions; we expect them, and the more you ask the better we can fix you up.

SEX OF GOLDFINCH (Goldie).—It is just possible that your birds are both hens. The blaze of the cock Goldie should come well past the eye; the head is inclined to flatness, with the beak fairly strong at the base; the shoulder butts are greenish-black. If you particularly want a pair of Goldfinches you must try again and buy one that is unlike the birds you have, in the point I mention; or you could retain the two hens and put in the aviary with them a cock Linnet and a cock Greenfinch, and try to breed some hybrids. Many Goldfinches are in song now, and if you go somewhere where a stock is kept you could possibly detect one singing a bit; this would assist you in making your choice.

TROUBLE WITH TISRUSH (R. Hutson).—You had better give your bird a change of food. To keep even the commonest redpoll in captivity in good health requires a variation in diet. First of all, give him an aperient, dissolve a much smaller salts as will cover a shilling in his drinking water, and give him a couple of days, allowing a clear day between them. Then procure some high-class insectile food, as used for the more delicate birds, and feed him on this for a time, mixing it with scraped raw carrot, boiled potatoes, or minced watercress. He should have an occasional change by using the food you mention, or any other good brand, or crush some puppy biscuit, soak in hot water, and give as it is, or mix a spoonful of meat-meal in with it. Offer him three or four mealworms or cockroaches, and sometimes a small portion of scraped raw lean meat. This change should prevent a further loss of feathers. You might just touch the bare spots with a smear of warm Kerol ointment. Let the bird bathe on fine days, and be careful to keep his perches perfectly clean.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

ZEBRA DOVES (B. K. G.).—This species does not call for any special treatment; they do well on the seed menu of any hardbill series, but of course a small tin of Dove mixture kept up is cheaper than all canary and millet. This species has been fairly frequent in many aviaries, for many years past, but not so frequently of late years, only isolated cases having occurred. The female is a wee bit smaller than the male, and also slightly paler in colour, more particularly on the crown. If they do not nest, the males would display at certain periods, and the difference in demeanour of the respective birds would enable you to decide—if the attitude and demonstrativeness of the two birds are exactly similar, then you have two cocks. If you have a pair I can only counsel patience. I may say, however, that too many species of Doves kept together is not wise; they frequently interfere with each other's breeding. The cold and sunless character of a good portion of last summer caused much disappointment and failure to many aviculturists.

PROCURING A GREY PARROT (No Talkee).—I am rightly not allowed to express any opinion respecting respective traders, and I can only say that in general it is best, if possible, to procure from your local dealer, where you can see the bird, even if his prices are a little higher. A young Grey is always a more or less risky purchase, and you cannot consider yourself safe with it for six months, at least; thus the advantage of seeing it and being able to judge by the clearness of its eye and general demeanour as to its being fairly healthy will be at once apparent to you. A young Grey should be kept warm at first, and you should ascertain how it has been fed and continue this for a time, even if the dietary is not orthodox; any necessary change made should be gradual. If you have not our Nutshell, "The Grey Parrot," you should get it—2½d., post free, from our manager. It will help you.

BIRDS FOR BREEDING AVIARY (Foreign, H. R. Y.).—(1) Not more than twelve pairs, but I must tell you no man living can give a selection of birds that will all breed in the one year. It is impossible to deal with foreign species as Canaries; they are erratic, a species that will breed freely one year will not do so the next. (2) I can only name species that usually breed freely, placing the more regular ones first in each group:—Zebra, Ribbon, Bib, and Red-head Finches, White Java Sparrows, Rengalese, Silverbills, Magpie Mannikins, Grey Singing Finches, Common Avadavats, Long-tailed and Rufous-tailed Grassfinches. The following are all probable breeders:—Alario, Cuba, Diamond, Gouldian, Olive, Parrot, Saffron, and Scaly-crowned Finches; also St. Helena and Gold-breasted Waxbills. (3) There is no reason why the cock and two hen Canaries should not do well with the rest, and if one of the hens was neglected it would not be of much account, as some odd foreigner would probably mate with it, for you cannot stock an aviary without losses, and odd birds are sure to crop up sooner or later. (4) Mice in their depredations vary in respective aviaries; if they get access to nests, etc., they often scare the parent birds off at night, and eggs are spoiled or young perish. A mixture of eucalyptus oil and carbon powder about the cycle-shed, renewing it as it loses its pungency, should help to keep them at bay. (5) It will be best to keep only one pair of Bengalese; if you keep more they usually all crowd into one nest, and many eggs are spoiled. You could keep a pair each of Bengalese and Silverbills together, and both would probably breed, but I must add again that foreign species take their own time to settle down. You must give them the best arrangements you can and chance your luck.

WHAT BIRDS? (T. H.).—Your birds are Avadavats, and you are treating them correctly, though you might keep a millet spray in the cage for them, also a coconut shell nest or a rush nest as a sleeping place for them, the latter for preference. The temperature of an ordinary sitting-room will suffice for them, but their cage must be kept below the level of any gas fittings. Our Nutshell No. 16 (Avadavats), 2½d., post free from our manager, would assist you, and tell you all about these charming sprites.

ZEBRA FINCHES (Yorkshire Bite).—The Zebras should do well in your roomy cage; use only twiggy branches as perches, and keep these at each end of the cage, leaving the centre open for flight exercise. When procurable, a piece of turf, similar to a lark turf, put in will tend to their well-being, especially if you are able to get it yourself and cut one that has the grass in flower or seed; besides, they get many small insects and earthy matter from round the roots, which will be to their benefit. Either a rush nest, husk, or a box-nest will suit them well, and fine and coarse hay and long grass will be all their require for nesting material. You can keep the cage out of doors from May 1 to Oct. 31, but you must put some kind of a curtain before the cage front, which will admit a little light and air, to prevent them being scared at night by cats and other vermin. Your cage is hardly large enough for them to be out of doors summer and winter in Yorkshire.

The Blue "Magpie."

Sir,—Your coloured plate of Foreign Birds is, without doubt, the best plate issued yet with any fanciers' paper. It is specially welcome to me, as the Blue Magpie seems to have been painted from life from my poor old bird that won so many firsts and medals, including gold medal at Taunton. It is exactly as my bird was at his best, but, alas! he is gone the way of all flesh, after being my pride and delight for over seven years. The Fruitsucker is also grand, and exactly as I have my old winner mounted. All "Foreign" fanciers' best thanks are due to you.

An Appeal to Crest Breeders.

Sir,—Allow me to thank you for your 12th birthday issue of CAGE BIRDS; it is a masterpiece. Also the 16-page illustrated supplement. I was very pleased to see you gave half a page of it to a splendid drawing by your artist, H. Norman, of a Crestbred and Crested Canaries. I do wish breeders of this variety would come forward and give us their experiences on the management of this breed. We get plenty of advice on Yorkshires and Norwich, but Crests seem to be left quite out of it. I do believe a few letters from Crest breeders would help this variety a good deal. Young fanciers would take more interest in it.—From one

JUST STARTING THE CREST FANCY.

Aged Goldfinch as Mule Breeder

Sir,—These few lines may be of interest to Mule breeders in giving their old Goldfinches a chance. I had a British Goldfinch that bred 12 Mules with two hen Canaries at eleven years old, but he unfortunately died this year aged 12 years. He was in fine condition. I have had him in my possession since a greypate, and also while I am writing would like to ask if it is a record for one pair of Canaries to hatch and rear 20 young ones in one season. I could not possibly keep them from breeding. I put them up last April 1, and by the end of July had hatched and reared the 20 young ones, and at the present time they are in first class condition, and would nest now if I would let them. I may say the cock would feed the young as soon as hatched. I never saw or had a better pair for breeding and feeding, and what makes it more wonderful, they were hanging in my shop, which is a boot repairing shop, and customers would stand and see them feed the young in the nest, so you see by the above results the banging and hammering which I do did not affect the eggs in any way.

A Rare Visitor to Scotland.

Sir,—To Mr. C. Sykes, the well-known Musselburgh naturalist and bird fancier, belongs the credit of recording the appearance of an exceptionally rare visitor to Scotland, viz., Richard's Pipit. The bird, in an injured condition, one night in December, crept into the doorway of the house occupied by him, where it was picked up by his son Joseph. Mr. Sykes at once recognised that the bird was something out of the common, and finally identified it as above. Richard's Pipit is a soberly-clad little bird, and considerably resembles the Rock Pipit, though it is somewhat larger. It is an Eastern Siberian species, and has appeared in England on several occasions. Though it has been known to science for over one hundred years, this is, however, only its third recorded appearance on the mainland of Scotland. The bird, unfortunately, succumbed to the injuries it had received (possibly from coming in contact with telephone wires in the vicinity). The body was forwarded for preservation to the Royal Scottish Museum, where the correctness of the identification was confirmed by Mr. Eagle Clarke, the eminent ornithologist. Mr. Sykes, naturally, greatly regretted that he was unable to save the life of his distinguished visitor. One imagines that the little bird must have chosen where it would be well looked after.

How to Make Shows Pay.

Sir,—On reading Mr. Pope's excellent letter re how to make shows pay, I notice he gives Carlton as having an average of 1½ per class at Novice Yorks classes. The Cardiff show had 96 entries in five classes. We had at Norwich 1 Novice Border, the total entries being 16. We find by carefully checking the movements, our membership has increased through it.

This Unflighted Buff Norwich Plainhead, a bird of grand type, but very oddly marked, has met with considerable success on the show bench: 1st, Clapham, 2nd Wimbledon, etc., for its breeder, Mr. Frank Cole, of Dulwich.

Failure of Yarm, Eaglescliff and District C.B.S. Show.

Value of Our Fixture List,

Sir,—Will you permit me, through the medium of your popular paper, to explain to your numerous readers the reason of our abandoning this year's show? The date originally fixed, viz., the 10th inst., was our usual date, or, to be quite exact, the second Saturday in January, when, to our dismay, the committee found that that date had been fixed for the holding of the Doncaster Show, and under the impression that Saturday, the 17th, was clear in the North-East District, that date was fixed upon, and then we found that Sunderland Show clashed with us, which was far more serious than to clash with Doncaster. The committee felt they were quite justified in expecting bumper success with their efforts for this year's show from the fact that their past record had assured the confidence of exhibitors, as all prize-money had been posted to successful exhibitors on the date of the show. Every care was taken of exhibits, and no complaints have been received from exhibitors. You may judge of the concern of our committee when they found out that through our clashing with Sunderland the number of entries was so small that they reluctantly had to decide to abandon the show, and return the entries to the exhibitors, as the only honourable course open to them. We are of opinion that more care should be taken by committees promoting their annual shows, in having the same duly announced in your columns in good time, so that the possibility of two or more shows in any one district being fixed for the same date would be reduced to a minimum. It will be quite clear to any unbiased reader that by abandoning our show for this year our society suffers a loss, but had we persisted in still holding the show under the adverse conditions above mentioned, the loss would not only have been much more serious, but in all probability our society would have been utterly ruined.

I therefore appeal to your readers to extend their sympathy to us under the circumstances, and as true bird fanciers to rally round us when we again make an appeal to them.

THOMAS F. WILSON, Secretary.

Railway Arrangements for the Palace Show.

Sir, Mr. J. A. Turner, of the Midland Railway Company, writes me to say that in connection with the Palace Show, bookings from Bradford to St. Pancras for ones, three, four, or six days can be made per train leaving Bradford Midland Station at 10.45 p.m. on Friday midnight, February 6, and if those who intend to travel by the Midland will kindly write Mr Turner at the District Superintendent's Office, Midland Railway, Bradford, he will be delighted to make all necessary arrangements for their comfort en route. Intending visitors to the Palace Show kindly bear this in mind.

H. HILL.

The Southern Norwich Club and Its Affairs.

Sir,—Mr. Tomsett is incorrect in the deductions he draws from my previous letter in your columns, and unjust in the suggestions he makes based upon the views I expressed in it. I yield to no one in my desire for fair competition and "clean" showing, but he should remember that in matters affecting the club, like those now under discussion, there are many who may hold views like himself, while others, with equal integrity, may have entirely opposite views, and it is only by fair and friendly discussion, and a little accommodation on both sides, that a working basis can be arrived at. I am ashamed neither of my name nor my opinions. You, sir, have the former, and can substantiate my claim to be what I represent myself to be—"Yet Another Member" of the S.N.P.C., and it is immaterial to the present discussion whether I disclose my identity or not. What difference does it make to the force of my arguments?

The opinions I gave are briefly these:—(1) That it would be more reasonable for members to bring their complaints and views before the management in the first instance than to disseminate them in the Press. (2) That, although there is much more credit in members breeding their own winners there is no reason why they should be debarred from purchasing them and from obtaining the best returns possible from such purchases. (3) That it is immaterial to us, as a specialist club, whether a member rings his birds or not; and (4) that there is no reason why he should be coerced in the matter.

Whether, when I temperately express these views, it is fair and friendly in your correspondent, and shows no trace of the "acrimony" which he disclaims, to at once announce that "my bump of fairness is strangely developed," and to insinuate that I might as well (to put it shortly) suggest the lending of birds for exhibition, I leave your readers to judge.

I strongly urge members to think twice before introducing unnecessary coercion into the club, particularly in the matter of the ringing of birds, or they will be much more likely to see the writing on the wall than by following a fair and broad-minded policy in the matter. STILL THE SAME MEMBER.

[With these observations this controversy may very well conclude. We do not see that anything will be gained by pursuing the matter further.—ED. "C.B."]

A Class for Hen Mules.

Sir,—In reply to "Interested," re hen Hybrid classes, I should like to point out that the Cardiff Cage Bird Society provided a class for hens, Mule or Hybrid, at our 1912 also at our 1913 show. We intend to give this class again this year; we believe that the class will pay, as now it is often asked what has become of all the hen Mules, and it is very rare that a hen has the slightest chance against cocks. If societies will provide this class it will, I am sure, encourage the Mule and Hybrid breeders, as it will create a value on hens.

Some Seasonable Advice to Fanciers.

Sir,—In the spring-time the Fancier's thoughts turn to getting his stock ready for the coming breeding season. What aspirations and resolutions he makes for the show season that is to come! His sole aim (whisper) is to make some of the B'hoys sit up, by producing something in the way of a phenomenon. In the first place, might I be allowed to sympathise with the artisan or workman on the way he is handicapped (in many cases) for want of time, money, and accommodation to give full attention to his pets, while others in a better position, financially and otherwise, are enabled to give them perfect attention?

To be successful in the Fancy nothing must be done by proxy; personal attention (as in any other business) is the secret of success. No one knows the needs, etc., of his pets like the owner himself. We will take the hens for example. Don't force them into breeding condition by feeding on egg food, etc. If they are healthy stock they will come naturally into condition themselves and at the right time. Same applies to the cocks. Have both in perfect condition at the time of pairing; the cocks in full song with flights going, showing them to be in full vigour; hens calling with flights going when cocks are singing.

Now, re breeding cages. In my humble opinion, I think there is nothing to beat the open wire cage with detachable wooden bottom, my reason for this being cleanliness and freedom from red mite pest.

There is no doubt that wooden box cages painted in various hues inside show your birds off to better advantage, and tend to enhance a bird-room, but give me the old style wire cage for sanitation and good sound health. Another idea of mine is not to have too many pairs together in the one room or apartment, as this has a tendency to foster restlessness in the hens when sitting, and causes over rampness in the cocks.

In conclusion, let me advise regularity in the bird-room as regards feeding and cleaning. Disturb as little as possible, and spare time in the evenings devote to reading up any wrinkles that may be sent in to CAGE BIRDS by honest Fanciers. On the show bench lose and win with good grace. Reserve your opinion. Accept the judge's decision, and, win or lose, come up again smiling next time.

The Three Wild Caught Liverpool Hybrids.

Sir,—I here send you a few notes about the three "wild caught" Liverpool Hybrids, if you consider them worthy of the trouble to publish in "C.B." Since I wrote you to record these captures I have had the pleasure of thoroughly examining them. Mr. J. Metcalfe has the one that was exhibited at the Liverpool B.B. Annual Show by Mr. Lloyd, Liverpool's enthusiastic British bird specialist of Wellington-road Aviaries. This hybrid (I will call it No. 1) is certainly a difficult bird to identify, about the size of a Siberian Goldie, a dark Goldfinch-like Mule showing a slight black bib, this suggesting Redpoll as one parent. The other bird (No. 2), caught at Wallasey, now in the possession of Mr. Barker, the British bird fancier and botanist of that district, is certainly either a Linnet-Greenfinch or Greenfinch-Linnet. It shows both parental characteristics, beautifully and distinctly. At first sight it appears like a big, sturdy brown Linnet, but at closer inspection its sturdiness and strong beak leaves no doubt as to its Greenfinch qualities. Its colour above is Linnet, breast Greenfinch, wing bars yellowish, tail Greenfinch shape, upper sides yellow, under side white (that is the outer web of feathers are yellow, inner web white like Linnet). It is a fine example of the cross. Mr. Barker kindly brought it across for my inspection.

No. 3, which was caught at Flint by that veteran bird-catcher, Mr. Craig, of Brainard street, I have identified as an Argentine Seedeater, "a small Serin" now classed under the genus Sycalis. Unfortunately this died on the 10th inst., whilst in my possession: it was a hen bird. The question that suggests itself is: "Were these Hybrids produced in the wild state?" I think not; there are so many bird-keepers unknown to the Fancy world who may have bred them and let them out because they were useless as songsters.

A Club for Parkhead.

Sir,—I have to inform you of a proposal for a new club for Parkhead and district. Any fancier wishing to join might communicate with Mr. Matthew Kean, 1332 Duke-street, Parkhead. Now, old Parkhead fanciers, gather round. Here is another chance for us having a good club in Parkhead.

Special Prizes at Federation Show.

Sir, -My attention has been drawn to a letter in CAGE BIRDS, of Jan. 17th, signed by C. Roberts, of Bayswater, referring to special prizes at the Federation Show, held last January. The prize-money was paid and specials sent off early last spring. I have looked up the slips and find that Mr. Roberts tied with Mr. and Mrs. Salter for special No. 3, and as Mr. Salter took most prize-money the special went to him, there being no rules to the contrary. Special No. 22 was sent by parcel post with others last March. I have not received any communication from Mr. Roberts on this matter.

J. W. DEWHURST, Hon. Show Sec.

The Sensational Hybrid at the Scottish National.

Sir,—My attention has been drawn to a letter over the signature of the present owner of the much-boomed Hybrid. In his letter he attacks the Scottish National Committee and the judge—the former for allowing fanciers to handle the cage containing this wonderful gem, the value of which remained unappreciated for a year and a-half, although it had been seen by a number of our best known fanciers and judges, who evidently failed to discover anything remarkable about it, which, of course, proves their ignorance, and to return this bird home from a show with the cage bottom wet. Dear me, what a shame! I sincerely hope that a new and more efficient committee will be appointed for the next Scottish National Show, or we may be deprived of the pleasure of seeing such rare mysterious Hybrids, but mentioning rare Hybrids reminds me that Mr. Parlett also complains of not winning the rarity special, which I understand is given for the rarest Hybrid. Now, if the mystery is a genuine Canary-Bullfinch, how can it be a rarity, when a hundred or more Canary-Bullies have been bred. A Greenfinch-Chaffinch was awarded the special, only three of this cross have been staged, so why the growl? Mr. Parlett also draws attention to the deep yellow bar on the flight and tail feathers, and says that no other Canary-Bullfinch shows it. That is exactly what has created a doubt in many fanciers' minds, coupled with the fact that the beak, head, and body are not like any other Canary-Bullfinch, and that except for the light feathers it could not be distinguished from a Greenfinch-Bullfinch; all the dark feathers on back, breast, flights, and tail are decidedly Greenfinch-Bullfinch in colour, and the only trace of Canary in the whole bird is the light feathers. If the owner is so positive of its bona fides, why does he not show it in a class for light Canary Mules? Has he also a doubt? His threat to boycott judges who dare to put it lower than first may help it to win. We will wait and see. I notice it was second in a class of five entries at Guildford last week, another dark Canary-Bullfinch beating it, which adds another poor judge to the black list, but they who have yet to be honoured with the privilege of judging it will have to be careful, and put it on top, or their reputation will be utterly ruined. I regret to have to take any part in this controversy, but when the owner of a bird writes to the Press in the middle of the show season praising his own bird, and condemning other fanciers' birds, and threatening judges and secretaries, I think anyone is justified in showing their disgust at such conduct.

SCOTTIE.

Sir,—On my return from Scotland, where I spent the New Year holidays, I was agreeably pleased to get your beautiful Diploma and 10s. special for honours won by my Goldfinch-Bullfinch in the CAGE BIRDS championship competition at Kingstown.

Also permit me to thank Mr. Norman for his clever sketch of my bird which appeared in your issue of last week. I had this same bird at the Scottish National, when he topped all the specimens of the same cross in his class, and just missed the money by the wholesale honours shouldered on the Canary-Bullfinches.

I saw the light-feathered Hybrid around which so much controversy has raged, and am satisfied that it was right classed as a Bullie-Hybrid, but it probably is an Albino, which I think would account for the abnormal markings that are not clearly traceable to Canary parentage. If it were not for the assurance of the breeder I would class it as an Albino-Greenfinch-Bullfinch, but to say that it is only a rare-feathered Bullfinch is sheer nonsense.

SIR,—It might interest your readers to know four Waxwings have been shot at Oulton Broad this last week; by the papers this seems to be an exceptional year for these birds.

B. YOUNGS.

The Disqualified Yorkshire at Halifax Show.

Sir, Seeing that this matter has been dropped by the Yorkshire Union, I may as well give you a little idea of how I feel about it. In the first place, when Mr. House disqualified the bird, I thought, and also did the others who were present, that he had every reason for doing so. The bird was penny about the cheek, and there was a bare place and it was very red. He did not know whose bird it was till after I followed him down the room and took the cage number. Well, everybody knows what happened in the Council room. The first resolution was that on the evidence in respect to the exhibit No. 3, in class 12, as given before the Council, they could not uphold the disqualification; 2nd, that Messrs. Ogden Bros. be exonerated from all blame of showing a bird for any fraudulent purposes at Halifax show; and 3rd, that the Halifax Show Committee be also exonerated from all blame. Now between this meeting and Mr. Hill's letter of Jan. 10, I have been told personally that we (the show officials) were not called into the room to give evidence on the disqualification, but only to own the bird. Now Mr. Hill in his letter gives an invitation to any person to attend the council meeting with evidence bearing directly on the disqualification. Well, can anybody tell me what was the matter with the Halifax officials' evidence? If they won't accept theirs, it looks to me the Council is asking for something it is impossible to get. Now in Ogden's letters they said they found the Halifax officials very courteous, but one of the partners had to bamboozle me the Saturday following our show in a room at Bradford, amongst a lot of fanciers, and wanted to know what I had to say about the bird; and also at the Bradford National show he called me all sorts of names. I wonder what Mr. Hill would say if Mr. House carried on with him like that. You see what you get for being secretary of a Yorkshire Union show. I know Mr. House was not a liar about the disqualification. Now in Mr. Walsh's letter of Dec. 20, he says the Halifax Show Committee, however, did not deal with this case, they never attempted to do so, and then he goes on to say that the Halifax sec. engaged the room for the Council meeting. But he did not tell the reason why the sec. engaged the room. I will tell you. I received a telegram from the Yorkshire Union sec. asking me to get him a room. Now if this is not taking the case out of my hands, I don't know what is, and so I kept Ogden's prize-money back, pending the Council's decision. In Mr. Cundall's letter of the 17th inst., he has to mention the result of the voting on the resignation, which I think is very bad taste on his part. The meeting was called in a proper manner, and every member was notified, and when he wanted to put it as a unanimous vote, his partner said he should propose that we send the result to the press, so we let it drop. I will ask the fanciers at large if they think I have been treated in a proper way over this business by the Yorkshire Union, because I have been completely ignored altogether by them.

Who Judged Garston Show?

Sir,—In this week's CAGE BIRDS Mr. A. G. Davis-(Manchester) states that he judged our annual show held December 6, and not Mr. Thornton. I beg to correct his statement. It was Mr. J. Thornton, 19, Agnes Grove, Liscard, Cheshire. I should be obliged if you would kindly correct Mr. A. G. Davis's error in your next issue.

Cage Bird Society for Spalding and District.

Sir,—I notice in CAGE BIRDS that Messrs. Murrell and Anton are trying their very best to get a cage bird society for Spalding and district, and I heartily appreciate their efforts in doing what they are for local exhibitors and fanciers. I will help these two gentlemen all that I possible can, and trust others will follow suit; and I am writing to them on the subject. Now, fanciers of cage birds, hurry up and let us get to business at once. Messrs. Murrell and Anton are fanciers well known, and will, I am sure, do all in their power to help one and all.

Success After Prospective Failure.

Sir,—On behalf of the members of Llanelly Society, I wish to thank you for the grand whip up you gave towards our late show. Up to the advertised time of closing of entries, we were in doubt whether we could have a show, but Saturday, Sunday, and Monday's post, along with the local entries brought us to a position which taxed our worthy secretary, Mr. D. John, to the utmost; in fact he broke down on the day of the show. He has sent in his resignation, but the members are refusing to accept same. We held a meeting on Saturday evening last at our headquarters, when the matter was again placed before the members with a similar result. Every effort is being made to retain his services, as everyone here is fully aware of their value to the society and the Fancy at large. By the time this appears in CAGE BIRDS, all prize-money will have been paid, and specials will be sent out in the course of a few days. I should be glad if anyone overlooked will apply to us without delay. We are holding a meeting again on Saturday, when we should be glad if all members will bring all monies belonging to the society. By so doing it will greatly assist the secretaries to finish the accounts, and will, I think, also have a tendency to get our sec. to alter his decision. I should also be glad if you would, on our behalf and the members of the society, kindly thank the exhibitors for their patronage and support.

A New Society for Bristol.

Sir,—The following is the name of the new society formed: The Bristol East and Dis. C.B.C.; headquarters, Glass House Hotel, Lawrence Hill. Meeting held first Monday in the month. Mr. Bull will give lectures on the breeding and exhibiting the Yorkshire Canary; also British monthly table shows will be held during the year.

A New Society for W. London.

Sir,—It has been felt for some time past that a fanciers' society has been needed in West London. With that end in view, a meeting is being held on Jan. 29 at 8 p.m., at 235, Portobello-road, Cornwall-road, W., when all fanciers will be welcomed. Messrs. H. Goldsmith, A. J. Davis, and others are giving their support. I shall be pleased to hear from any fancier wishing to join.

The Radius of Luton Society.

Sir,—I have followed with interest the correspondence regarding the affairs of the Luton Society. In one issue your correspondent points out to one of the old members that, having won a cup twice, and through no fault of his own he is not allowed to compete the third time, he suggests a way out of the difficulty to Mr. Watts—to return the cup, which he has won in a fair and square manner. To quote the passage referred to: It would look well, etc., etc. Presented by Mr. Watts. Now to analyse this. Would it be right, seeing that even though the cup was returned it would only be done so under protest and compulsion? Would it not be more truthful to say: This is the cup, etc., etc., returned by an old member much against his wish, and so forth? And, further, how many Fanciers would care to become the possessor of that or any other trophy, who knew the history of it and knew, to all intents and purposes, it was the property of another Fancier? No, Mr. Editor, I venture to suggest very few would care to treasure it.

All we need and expect is fair competition, and let the best win. One learns a good deal by being fairly beaten. In the latest issue I see another old member has been treated, I consider, shamefully. A thousand pities he had not got the cup in his possession, seeing that he also had won it twice. Surely there must be some undercurrent behind all this? Is there no law by which one can obtain justice and their rightful property? Surely a club cannot make its own laws. However, as another correspondent points out, as this is the season of goodwill I hope matters will take a turn for the better in the society referred to and the old members given an unfavoured opportunity of righting the wrong done them, and the matter settled amicably to all concerned, as two blacks do not make one white.

Wishing CAGE BIRDS continued success, and all fanciers a prosperous season.

WRITE FOR A COPY TO-DAY.

A PATIENT and his physician have jointly discovered a wonderful self-acting all night cure for Catarrh and Nose Breathing Difficulty. They have published a book which explains how everyone may, with the aid of a scientific mechanical and medicinal self-treatment, cure any of the following variations of catarrh and nose breathing troubles:—

1. Discharge of thick or watery mucus from nose.
2. Sneezing, itching, or hot (forming hard crust inside nostrils, or soft sore places) nose.
3. Spitting of phlegm.
4. Spluttering noises in ears.
5. Occasional deafness in one or both ears or difficulty of hearing.
6. Stopped-up nose feeling.
7. Yellow coated tongue.
8. Unpleasant breath.
9. Feeling of tightness on chest.
10. Watering eyes.
11. Inability to breathe freely through nose.
12. Mouth-breathing.
13. Snoring.
14. Discharge from (or wax in) ears.
15. Uncertain, husky, or weak voice.
16. Stuffy feeling in head and inability to think, concentrate or continue mental effort.
17. Sleepiness, or Lack of Energy.
18. Dullness, Fearfulness, Depression, and Pessimism.

The new Rhycol self-acting all-night catarrh and nose-breathing treatment alters any of the foregoing for the better. It will immediately improve your nose-breathing, and the increased breathing power will quickly enliven and enrich your blood, freeing it from sluggishness and the catarrhal accumulations which are clogging and slowly poisoning your body and brain alike.

A. B.

The Patient and Physician's Book (gratis) is full of most remarkable illustrations.

A. Shows how the Rhycol Inspirators re-open nasal air passages.

B. Shows how the walls of the nasal air passages collapse, or close in, causing nose-breathing difficulty and catarrhal complaints.

The immediate effect of the Rhycol treatment is wonderful! It is just as if you were brought out into the fresh air from a stifling room.

Clergymen, Ministers, and Singers Praise and Recommend It.

Clergymen, ministers, singers, actors, actresses, and speakers are praising and recommending it to their friends for the way in which the Rhycol Inspirators have helped them to overcome voice and breathing troubles.

Men and women whose lives were made miserable by constant sneezing, "running from nose," coughing, and irritating desire to spit are telling their friends of the extraordinary way in which the Rhycol Inspirators and Tampons have freed them from their trouble.

Douching, spraying, cauterising, and surgical operations are now no longer necessary in 99 out of every 100 cases.

The "Open Nostril" is Nature's own cure. Breathe through your nose and none of the troubles really caused by a stopped-up (or partly stopped-up) nose can continue to exist.

Liquid or oily douches or sprays and irritating snuffs are the worst things possible. They only make matters worse.

"Wear" Them In Your Nostrils.

Open up the nose-breathing passages with the extraordinarily ingenious Rhycol Inspirators, and you feel like a new man or woman at once. You can "wear" the Rhycol Inspirators in your nostrils all night, and day, too, if you like. No one will notice them. And yet all the time you will be breathing more deeply, fully, and efficiently than you could after a year's training in "breathing exercises." The cost of the Inspirators and Tampons is within the reach of all.

And the Rhycol Inspirators train you to breathe more fully and deeply, too. Why, you could not (after using the Rhycol Inspirators) breathe as shallowly as you are now breathing even if you tried. The Rhycol Inspirators train you to breathe more air—afterwards you cannot do with less.

SMALLBRIDGE C.B.S.

Fourth annual general meeting and election of officers for 1914, held at headquarters Jan. 5, Mr. Atkinson presiding over a fair attendance. The balance sheet and secretary's report for 1913 were considered very satisfactory. Officers appointed: Chair, Mr. Atkinson; vice, Mr. Bamford; treas., Mr. Coupe; sec., Mr. Cheetham; committee, Messrs. Hartley, Bamford, Lord, Frost, Johnson, Mayers, and Shore; Messrs. Bamford and Hartley, auditors. Mr. Atkinson moving a vote of thanks to treas. and sec., for services rendered during the past year, brought the evening to a close.—J. T. Cheetham, Hon. Sec.

LONG EATON C.B.S.

Annual general meeting, held Jan. 10, at headquarters. Mr. W. R. Hexter presided over a well-attended meeting. The Hon. Sec., Mr. G. T. Wall, presented the balance sheet and report for 1913, and it was accepted without dissent. Officers elected: Chair, W. R. Hexter; vice, A. B. Bancroft; hon. treas., E. Wilcox; hon. assist. sec., E. Barker; hon. sec., G. Baines; committee, W. Beers, S. Bevan, F. Freebury, A. Horwood, F. W. Jackson, R. Sharp, E. Stafford. In sending this, my first report, as sec. of the society, I appeal to all members to attend the monthly meetings as regularly as possible, and to give to me the support which is necessary for the successful carrying on of the society. The duties are all new to me, and my predecessor has left behind him such a high standard of efficiency, that we must all regret his decision not to take office again. However, I hope we may have a successful year, and I am sure, if we all work in harmony, the time spent in attending meetings and other duties will be profitable to ourselves and the society also.—G. Baines, Hon. Sec.

NORTH WALES C.B.S.

Committee meeting, held Jan. 8, Assembly Rooms, Market Street, Carnarvon. Present: Chair, Mr. J. Jones; vice, Mr. G. Jones; hon. treas., Mr. R. T. Edwards; Messrs. J. Pritchard, J. W. Jones, J. W. Parry, E. Jones, J. O. Parry, R. Green, and R. E. Griffith, hon. sec. A record attendance, only two absent. On the proposition of the Chairman, votes of thanks to the committee for their duty on day of show, and to Messrs. Harrison and Morris, stewards. Re prize moneys was the first point. Decided, owing to loss on show, and through having to withdraw the Christmas draw, amounting to about £4 5s., that the committee take 25 per cent. off all prizes won Dec. 26 show. Decided that a copy of balance sheet should be printed and sent to each member. A vote of thanks was passed to those who refunded draw money, as this just clears the expenses of printing. Decided to have only one show yearly, and prizes, say, 10s., 6s., 4s., 1s. 6d., fee 1s. 6d.; the show to be held in middle of week, so that we can have entries from all parts. I hope that this be well supported. All prize-moneys and all accounts will be paid by end of Jan. I thank prize-winners for their kindness in waiting. A vote of thanks to the hon. sec. for his hard work in erecting staging, and other duties, concluded the meeting. Next committee meeting, Jan. 16, at 8, Assembly Rooms.— R. E. Griffith, Hon. Sec.

ABERTILLERY C.S

General meeting, held Jan. 10, Prince of Wales Hotel. Mr. J. Parfitt presided over a good turn up of members. Four new members were made. Balance sheet was read, and showed a balance in hand of £14 16s. Mr. H. Campion was present, and was appointed to make the presentation of the McInnenary trophy to the winner for 1913, Mr. J. Parfitt. Mr. Campion, who was elected president, made reference in a neat speech to the good work of Mr. A. Monk as a canvasser for the society in collecting all the money for trophy, also other money. This was appreciated by all. Mr. Campion stated that he intended to have a good run for the trophy this year, which caused an outburst of applause. Officers elected: Chair, J. Parfitt; vice, J. Probert; treas., J. Pritchard; assist. sec., H. Mortimer; sec., Geo. Broome; committee, G. Thomas, A. Monk, A. Parfitt, R. Richards, and W. Cooper. Decided to write judges for our open show, Oct. 22, also to have a washing exhibition by J. Parfitt next meeting, Feb. 14. I hope that all novice members will take advantage of this, and make an effort to be present. A vote of thanks to Mr. Campion terminated the meeting.—Geo. Broom, Hon. Sec.

CLYDEBANK.

Monthly meeting held Jan. 15, Mr. Morton presiding in the absence of Mr. McGown. Arrangements for pair show, Feb. 21, were made. Classes: Crests, Norwich, Yorks., Bord., A.O.V. Muling pairs, Hybrid pairs. Birds staged 2.30 p.m., judging at 3. Any one joining up to date of pair show to be eligible to compete, sec. to settle about judge. Agreed to have a social after pair show at the same place. Members intending to be present at social night kindly notify the sec., so that final arrangements can be made. Tickets 9d.—Wm. Kane, sec.

KELTY AND BLAIRADAM C.B.A'

Monthly meeting held Jan. 13. Agreed to hold open show Nov. 7, and to engage Co-operative Hall if possible. Next meeting Jan. 27 to discuss what would be best classification as it is the opinion of some of the members that great alterations could be made. —A. Dickson.

BUGLE F.A.

Annual meeting held Jan. 12, when Sir William Sergeant, K.C., on behalf of Bugle Fanciers, presented the secretaries each with a beautiful oak inkstand, suitably inscribed; Messrs. Pearce and Gregor, replying, thanked the members for their kindness, and said they would accept the gift as evidence of their appreciation. Balance-sheet was presented and passed, income £135 0s. 6d., expenditure £117 3s., balance in hand £17 17s. 6d. Decided to hold next show July 15.—Alf. L. Pearce, A. C. Gregor, Hon. Secs.

AMALGAMATED YORKSHIRE SOCIETIES.

Annual Dinner and Prize Distribution.

The committee for the above event held a meeting at Market Tavern, Bradford, Jan. 10, to make necessary arrangements. Mr. H. W. Walsh was elected to the chair, and Mr. H. Hill was again re-elected secretary to the committee. The balance-sheet for the last annual prize distribution was passed as read. Unanimously decided to have a dinner and social evening in connection wit hthe prize distribution at the Market Tavern, Godwin Street, Bradford, March 7, at 5 o'clock, and a social evening to commence at 6.30 prompt, price 2s. per head. Sec. was instructed to ascertain the cost of engaging a concert party for the prize distribution. A ballot for the order in which prizes shall be given resulted as follows: (1) Yorks. and Lancs. B.B. and M.C., (2) Yorks. C. C., (3) Open Nor. F.C., (4) Cinnamon Mkd. Y.C.C., (5) Yorks. Union of C.B.S., (6) CAGE BIRDS prizes, (7) National Green Marked Y.C.C. Proposed that Mr. H. H. Towers be invited to take the chairmanship of the dinner and prize distribution. It is hoped to make this the most successful prize distribution yet held, and as last year's effort was a pronounced success the committee feel sure of giving complete satisfaction. Tickets may be obtained from any of the specialist club secretaries or from myself at 15, Settle Terrace, Thornton Lane, Bradford. An early application will enable the committee to make suitable arrangements for everybody.—H. Hill.

CRYSTAL PALACE DISTRICT AND PENGE C.B.S.

Enthusiastic meeting held at the Alexandra Hotel, Penge, on January 14, this being the first general meeting of the society which was formed a month previously. Among those present were Messrs. Avery, Britten, Baker, Bunch, Drake, Foxen, Freyett, Gmies, Hammead, Hutson, Legg, Mead, Towen, Rogers, Standage, Verrall, Whippen, and Allen Silver, who promised to give two silver medals —one for British and one for Foreign Birds, for competition at the large show to be held at the end of the year. It was proposed to hold a pair and finch show at meeting for February.—H. Legg, Sec. 756, The Pavement, Penge).

OXFORD AND DISTRICT C.B.S.

4th annual general meeting, held Old Masonic Hall, Jan. 14, with a good attendance. Balance sheet for 1913 was presented and passed, which showed a balance in hand of £8 18s. 2d., a slight increase on last year, notwithstanding a heavy loss on open show. Officers elected for 1914:—Pres., W. F. Cross, Esq.; vice-presidents, Viscount Valentia, C.B., M.P., Major Henderson, M.P., Captain Williams, and W. B. George, Esq.; hon. auditors, F. Wilsdon, W. B. George; hon. treas., J. A. Lees; hon. sec., C. F. Homday, 58, George Street; assist. sec., and Press correspondent, A. T. Fifield, 6, Buckingham Street; committee, J. Gough (chair), A. Lewen, W. H. Simms, A. Tombs, F. Wilsdon, H. E. Wood, and T. W. Wren.

CARDIFF C.B.S.

Monthly meeting held January 15. Mr. W. Fulton presided; 21 members present. Mr. W. J. Merry was enrolled a member. Mr. J. H. Payne was elected to judge annual match pair show, February 18. Decided to add two classes to novice section, also to give four classes for Borders. Messrs. Weeks, Pearce, Merry, volunteered to act as stewards; birds staged by 6.45. Show closes 10 o'clock. Mr. Ball gave special value 2s. 6d. for best matched pair; Mr. Weeks, 2s. 6d. for best single exhibit. Resolved that members' cup be competed for, to new rule to be for most points gained by six birds, 2/- entry fee. Members wishing to compete must pay 2/- for each variety, points to be kept separate. Will members who are in arrears of contributions please try and clear up at next meeting, as I have to present balance-sheet at the March meeting? Members must clear contributions to enable them to compete for members' special. Sec. was instructed to write to several gentlemen re judging open show. Nomination of officials for 1914 at next meeting, also judges will be elected for open show, Nov. 18 and 19. If fanciers in this district would care to join our society I should be pleased to supply them with particulars. —E. Thomas, Sec., 48, Craddock Street, Cardiff.

LONDON AND COUNTIES A.C.B.

Annual general meeting held headquarters, "Globe," Maple-st., Tottenham Court-rd., Jan. 17. Mr. E. Pretty presided over a fairly good muster. Balance-sheet was brought forward and accepted, showing a balance in hand of £7 14s. 3d. Officers elected for 1914: Mr. E. Pretty, pres.; Jacob Mackley, vice-pres.; R. J. Pretty, treas.; G. G. Stubbs, hon. sec.; committee, Messrs. Harrison, Green, Ayris, and Durham. Hearty votes of thanks were passed to the late Treas., Mr. Ransby, for his services during the past year, and to the Sec. Our pair show will take place Feb. 28. Will fanciers note, we still have room for more members, and Sec. would be pleased to supply information to any intending member. We have decided to keep the subs. at 3/- yearly, and 1/- nom. fee. Handsome silver cup will again be up for competition this year, and diplomas will be given to best exhibitor in each section, to be won right out during the year. Will members rally round and make 1914 our most successful year?—G. G. Stubbs, Hon. Sec.

NOTTINGHAM AND NOTTS O.S.

Annual general meeting held Jan. 13, Mechanics' Institute. The following officers were elected: Chair, Mr. R. Rhodes; vice., Mr. G. C. Ley; committee, Messrs. Bowler, Brown, Cooper, Cottingham, Hill, Hodgkinson, Hayter, Ley, Rhodes, Sharpe, Saywell, Tranter, Woolf, and White; joint hon. secs., Messrs. Wilkinson and Royce; auditors, Messrs. Woolf and White. The accounts of the late show and balance sheet for the year were passed. Decided to run another show, but date was left over until next meeting, when we hope to have a big attendance. Secs. will be pleased to hear from any fancier who may wish to join the society.—J. G. Royce, 29, Tennyson Street.

COWDENBEATH C.B.S.

Meeting held in Waverley Rooms, Mr. A. Simpson presiding. The balance sheet was read and turned out to be better than expected. Office bearers for incoming season: Pres., J. Sneddon; Vice-Pres., A. Simpson; Treas., T. Menzies; Assist. Sec., J. W. Holmes; Sec., vacant. Next meeting and table show in Smith's Hotel; 1 class for Linnets; Mr W. Stewart judge. Final arrangements were made for annual club show, Masonic Hall, Jan. 24, instead of 31, as we could not get the hall for that date; Mr. G. Bishop, Stirling, judge; Stewards, A. Harris, W. Stewart and J. Smith. J. Paterson and C. Clayton at the door. Judging at 12 o'clock. Entries taken at the door. Schedules will be sent out to all members.—J. W. Holms, Assist. Sec.

BORDER CITY (Carlisle) O.S.

Annual meeting held at headquarters Jan. 7, Mr. G. Higgins, chair. Balance-sheet for the past year, which shows a sum of £14 5s. 8d. on the right side, was adopted. Major S. C. Ferguson was unanimously re-elected as president, as also were the vice-presidents, sec., treas., and committee. The date for the open show was fixed for Oct. 28 and 29, and on a ballot being taken Messrs. J. Robson, London; H. W. Battye, Huddersfield; and Wm. Nicholson, Stockton, were proposed as judges from the nominations of six. Mr. Isaac Robson, senr., was elected an honorary member for life. At the close of the general business interesting presentations took place to the sec., treas., and show manager as a mark of esteem from their fellow members.—John C. Bell, hon. sec.

HALIFAX O.S.

Meeting held at the Plummet Line Hotel, Jan. 3, Mr. J. J. Dunn presiding over a fair number of members. Mr. J. Pilling gave a splendid lecture on "Mimicry in Bird Plumage"; he was listened to very attentively and at the close he ably answered questions. Mr. F. Lee, in a few words, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Pilling, Mr. E. J. Cundall supported; Mr. Pilling briefly replied and thanked the members for listening to him. Decided to alter the date of our tea, social, and whist drive to Feb. 21, at West Ward Liberal Club, tickets 1s. 6d. each. Members please notice alteration. H. Clegg, sec.

GREAT HORTON O.S.

Meeting held Jan. 10, Butcher's Arms. Mr. Fred Self chair. Decided to hold nine members' shows during 1914. Sixteen classes at old feather shows, 14 Yorks., and two Nor., and two classes at f.f. shows, 10 Yorks., and two Nor. Two silver cups will be competed for, one champ., one nov. A medal value 21s. will be given with each cup. Champions and novices show together, their points counting separately for all specials. The following specials will be given at the end of the season: 15s. cash 1st most points in each section, 10s. 2nd ditto, 5s. 3rd. 2s. 6d. 4th; also 5s. for 1st most points in marked classes, and 2s. 6d. for 2nd. The cups can only be competed for with starred birds, each competitor may star four birds at each show. Each cup must be won three times (not necessarily in succession) before it becomes the absolute property of any competitor. Fanciers wishing to compete for these specials are invited to join at once. Sec., J. Holroyd, 27, Kingswood Street, Great Horton, Bradford; assist. sec., B. Hainsworth, 5, Druid Street, Clayton, near Bradford

LITTLEBOROUGH C.B.S.

41st annual meeting held on Wednesday, Jan. 7, in the Coffee House, Littleborough, when Mr. E. Hartley presided over a good number of members. During the meeting much amusement was caused by one of the members (who signed himself "Yorkshireman") handing in a note, the contents of which ran as follows: "I wish you all a Happy New Year and good luck during the next breeding season, and I should like to know who the member of Littleborough Cage Bird Society was who went up to Wardle to see if Mr. Hucks, the aviator, who arrived there stranded on Sunday last would sell him his bird so that he could show it at the next first feather show—Rather witty, Eh." The late treasurer read the balance sheet which was considered very satisfactory, showing a small balance in hand. It was also decided to have a meat tea and social on Tuesday, Jan. 20, to commence at 7.30 p.m., and it was earnestly desired that all members should attend, and to give in their names to the secretary at once. There will also be a very interesting ceremony to take place at this meeting, so let us have a good turn up. The following gentlemen were elected as officers for the year 1914: Chairman, Mr. J. R. Crossley; vice-chairman, Mr. E. Hartley; secretary, Mr. J. R. Wradle; treasurer, Mr. H. W. Woodhead; committee, Messrs. E. Hartley, E. Bamford, J. W. Fielden, and J. R. Mayers, along with the secretary and treasurer. The passing of a vote of thanks to the Chairman and all retiring officers brought a very pleasant and enjoyable meeting to a close.—Jno. R. Wradle, hon. sec.

CITY OF BIRMINGHAM C.B.S.

Annual meeting held Crown Hotel, Hill Street, Jan. 7, with a large attendance. Mr. Broadhurst chair. Messrs. Bastock, Hill and Swindon, were elected members. Correspondence was read and approved. Mr. de Maillet reported that the hamper belonging to Mr. Lucas, which was wrongly sent to another exhibitor owing to the label being missing, had not been returned to him, and suggested that the easiest and cheapest way out of the difficulty was to refund the cost to Mr. Lucas and refuse future entries from the defaulting exhibitor. This was agreed to. Mr. de Maillet gave his figures for the inter-club cup competition, showing Birmingham winners with 272 points against 271½ by Wolverhampton and 134½ by West Bromwich, but same are open to correction on examination by the secretaries of the other societies. Officers for 1914 elected as follows: Pres., Mr. J. A. Eckersley; Vice, Messrs. W. W. Butler, J. Webb, H. C. Wilkins, A. Broadhurst, J. H. de Maillet, W. C. Wells, E. Fordred, and G. H. Smith; Hon. Auctioneer, Mr. R. Nicklin; Chair, Mr. A. Broadhurst; Vice, Mr. J. H. de Maillet; Treasurers, Messrs. J. H. Allen and H. T. Collier; Auditors, Messrs. J. Clay and T. Jones; Hon. Sec., Mr. J. H. Jones; Committee, Messrs. Burke, Child, Derry, Dipple, Fessey, Jeffrey, Raby and Tomkins. Judge for open show, Dec. 2, 3, Mr. J. Robson. A proposal that the election of judges should be on the same lines as for officers and members, namely, nominated at one meeting for election at the next, was defeated, but the meeting decided that when notifying members of any special meeting the Secretary should state the purpose of that meeting on the notification. Sec. hoped to produce the accounts duly audited at Feb. meeting; owing to a family bereavement he had been unable yet to complete them. Hearty votes of thanks to the officers for their services during the past year and to Mr Webb our host, for use of rooms, wound up the meeting.—J. H. Jones, Hon. Sec., per J. H. de Maillet.

SHETTLESTON C.B.S.

Annual meeting, held Johnston's Hall, Jan. 10, Mr. S. F. Wood presided over a well-attended meeting. Sec. presented balance sheet, which was accepted unanimously. The club is in a flourishing condition, this being a record year. Office-bearers for the ensuing year: Pres., S. H. Wood; vice-pres., J. Hood, E. Taylor; committee, J. Baird, A. Hendrie, T. Forrest, N. Yule, W. Carrick, and K. Picken; auditors, T. Jackson, and W. Williams; sec., A. Berry. Agreed to alter our meeting to the second Wednesday of each month, instead of Saturday. Table show of matched pairs will be held Feb. 11, judging 7.30. Classes: Crest, Plainhead, Yorks., Bord., Scotch Fancy, Muling pairs; Bullfinch, Hyb., A.O.V., Hyb. Annual social, Feb. 11. We extend a hearty invitation to all fanciers in the district. The four cups competed for at annual show will be presented to winners. We are now open to enrol fanciers wishing to join. For full particulars apply A. Berry, Sec., 30, Balgair Terrace.

DERWENT VALLEY C.B.S.

Meeting held Jan. 3, at Mr. Geo. Barkess's, High Westwood, Mr. G. Barkess chair. Three new members were enrolled: H. Oxley, W. Yetts, and W. Creswell. In respect of his valuable services rendered during the past year it was decided to give our worthy vice-chairman, Mr. M. U. Gardiner, a small present. Mr. J. Lindsay, our late sec., in handing over to Mr. Gardiner his present, spoke very highly of this gentleman's work ever since he became a member of the society. Mr. Gardiner, in receiving his present, tendered his very best thanks to all, and said that although giving up bird-keeping, he would always do his best to keep up the name of the Derwent Valley C.B.S. Mr. Geo. Barkess also spoke of Mr. Gardiner's value, and hoped that he might wear the studs presented to him that night for many years to come. Next on the programme was a good spread, which, during the meeting, had been prepared by the following ladies: Mesdames Barkess, Curry, Tomlinson, and Lindsay, and everyone seemed to do themselves justice. After supper Mr. and Mrs. W. Tomlinson rendered a few songs, which were very warmly appreciated, this item bringing to a close one of the best meetings that has been held for a long while.—Jameson and Johnson, Secs.

ROCHDALE (Amalgamated) C.B.S.

At the above amalgamated socities' meeting at Rochdale, Jan. 10, every Society was represented, and Burnley O.S. sent delegate to get particulars. A great deal of business was got through, allotting a grand list of specials, etc., and everything points to a good entry. Members must make their entries to their own society's Sec., who will then forward them to the Gen. Sec. At the time of printing schedule specials had not been allotted, members will get the list at their meeting. Afterwards the delegates visited the show room and expressed their opinion that the room was a very suitable one.—Wm. Adams, Gen. Sec.

THATTO HEATH O.S.

Fourth general annual meeting held Jan. 5th, Railway Hotel, when a fair number attended. Mr. H. Enever chair. Show business was gone into, distribution of schedules, etc., date of show fixed for Jan. 24. Mr. Chas. Houlton judge. Officials for 1914: Pres., Mr. J. Ashton; Vice-Pres., Dr. Cotton, Dr. Wilson, Mr. T. Birchall, Mr. Grecnall, Mr. Whitley; Chair, Mr. H. Enever; Vice, Mr. J. T. Greenall; Tres., Mr. J. Leather; Hon. Sec., Mr. H. Cuttler. Special meeting was arranged for Jan. 19 to allot specials for show; members will oblige by making it convenient to attend, as this is most important. Subs. are due at this special meeting. Mr. J. France was elected a member.—H. Cuttler, Hon. Sec.

FIFE AND KINROSS N.P.C.

Annual meeting held Jan 10, Thos. Wildridge (Pres.) in the chair. Balance sheet approved. The following were appointed office bearers for 1914: Pres., Thos. Wildridge; Vice-Pres., Wm. Grewar; Sec. and Treas., A. Dickson; Auditors, J. W Hodgis and A. Watt. Alterations in rules were made. Rule 3, 12 on Committee instead of 9. The following were appointed: Messrs. Strachan, Barclay, Spence, Watt, Langan; Scrutineers, M. Smith and Jas. McLeod. Alteration in Rule 15: Members can nominate all their birds at shows; but the three birds to count for points to be nominated F. and K.P.C. cup or Novice, as the case may be. Points to count as formerly—6 for first, and so on. Five members to form quorum. Prizes won during the year were presented. On a discussion on how to increase our membership, it was thought it might be advisable to grant our patronage to 6 shows instead of 4, and also to distribute patronage to a wider area. The President then presented the Sec. with a token of esteem subscribed by the members. Balance from club show, 9 6. Norwich Plainhead breeders in Fife who are not members should now make an effort to join and help to bear a share of the work which, after all, is for their benefit. Information can be had from A. Dickson, 37, Adam's Terrace, Kelty.

BOSCOMBE'S OPEN SHOW.

A Nice Array of Quality, but No Foreigners on View.

Mr. Martin Cook and his hardworking committee of the Boscombe and District C.B. Assn., are to be unreservedly congratulated on the result of their labours in connection with the show of cage birds held in that delightful venue, The St. John's Parish Hall, Boscombe, on January 20th and 21st. The society is a most progressive one, and made special efforts to cater for all fanciers in the liberal schedule provided. The greatest possible care was taken of the exhibits, and the management throughout left nothing to be desired.

The list of officials includes Mr. H. Page Croft, M.P., president; Mr. F. H. Loveless, chairman; Mr. H. Meager, vice; whilst the committee comprises the names of Loveless, Cook, Basten, Butler, Calvert, Airs, East, Hinves, Hutchins, Matcham, Hames and Sims; the hon. treasurer, W. Basten, and auditor, A. T. Stainer. A particularly strong classification for British and Foreign was given, whilst in the Canary section the Norwich, Yorks., and Borders received special attention.

Unfortunately the whole of the Foreign classes had to be cancelled for want of support, a rather surprising fact, considering that no other show was being held on the date, but, notwithstanding the loss of the entire foreign section, entries came up well as a whole, the Canary and British classes being strong all round, and competition was exceptionally keen. The hon. sec., Mr. M. Cook, had all arrangements well in hand, and everything went smoothly, excepting that the light prevailing on the day was rather bad, and rendered the judge's task no easy one. In consequence, that well-known and popular judge, Mr. J. Robson, had a very hard day's work, which, however, he discharged with his customary care and conscientiousness.

CHESTER C.B.S.

Members' old show held in the Assembly Rooms, a capital hall for exhibits and visitors alike. A record entry greeted the judge, Mr. J. W. Metcalfe (Liverpool), whose awards were well received. Norwich were a hot lot, and would have done credit to an open show. Yorks. were not up to previous standard, but a very level lot were staged. The society is in a sound financial position. We notice some well-known all-England exhibitors on the committee. The four silver cups, which are won outright every year, provided very keen rivalry. Mr. W. H. Williams, Llangoed, won champ. Nor. cup; Yorks. champ. cup was won by Mr. E. Richards, Chester, a very popular win; novice cup went to Mr. Helsby Frodsham; and Brit. to Messrs. Harrison and Rogers, Shotton. The hon. sec., Mr. Simpson, is the right man for the job, being a wholehearted fancier, who knows his work. He was paying out at 4 o'clock. With a little advertisement say, for a fortnight before the show, no doubt the Welsh fanciers would come down for the half-day, and a few extra pounds would be taken at the gate.

CLACKMANNANSHIRE C.B.S.

Show held Co-operative Hall, Alloa, Dec. 6. Entries were about 300, considerably in excess of recent years. The hall is an ideal place for a bird show, being well lighted and free from draughts. The society is to be congratulated on having such a fine lot of officials; at the head of which is the sec. Mr. W. W. Duncan, who kept everything up to time. He was well assisted by a hard-working committee. Mr. P. Arnott won rose bowl for most points in Brit. and For., and medal, most points in show; cup most points Canary sec., A. Moir. Messrs. Clubb, Hutton, and Rodger put down some extra good Nor., and Mr. D. Cock in Borders had a field day, he was simply unbeatable. Perhaps the most attractive were the British and Foreign. Mr. Arnott's beautiful Sugar Bird came in for a lot of admiration, as did the winning Goldie of Mr. Allan, a perfect picture. The show was visited by a good crowd, who seemed highly interested. Mr. J. M'Lay judged Canaries, and Mr. R. V. Raine Brit. and For., and they seemed to give every satisfaction to a crowd of the most sportsmanlike fanciers one could wish to meet.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM C.S.

Show, held Jan. 3, Marlboro' Hotel, Small Heath. Entries fell about 15 short on last year's, but 100 birds made a fine display, and, with the weather ideal (unusual for our day), the room was well filled from opening till closing. Yorks. again topped the tree, all classes being well filled, especially the novices, and Mr. Luckman, one of the society's youngest members, did well by securing two specials for best novice and best unflig. buff. Mr. Twist exhibited a fine Siberian Bullfinch which was much admired. Special winners, Harding, Burke, Murray, Bayliss, Swindon, Raby. For the first season cups J. Burke secures champ., Swindon and Twist again tied for Nov., Mr. G. Raby won Brit., Mr. Swindon the dinner service, and Mr. Baylis president's sp. The officials gave great help in having all ready for the judge, Mr. J. H. Roe, Handsworth, whose awards met with satisfaction; judging was completed by 1 o'clock and all specials dealt with ready for show time opening. Great praise is due to Chairman Mr. Willmott, and Messrs. H. Barron, G. Raby, G. Swindon, W. Harding, G. Constable, A. Leonard, who were the principal officials, and the sec. tenders his very best thanks for their help, while the members thank most heartily the host of the Marlboro' Hotel for the way he catered for the interest and well-being of all.

RHEUMATISM

February 7, 1912.

Dear Sir,—To-day you see me as fit as a fiddle, and this I owe to Dr. Eric Hoff's "U.A.E.," a remedy which I consider the finest in existence for uric acid diseases. Never felt better in my life, am quite free from pain, and though the weather for weeks has been fearfully wet, yet I am not feeling the slightest twinge. I get up at 5 a.m., put in a good sound day's work, and feel more than indebted to "U.A.E." for all the good it has done.

Faithfully yours,
RICHARD ELLAM.

Kiln Cottage,
Bangor Isycoed, Wrexham.
December 16, 1912.

Dear Sir,—I am very glad to say that I found your remedy a success in my case. Trusting that your work will succeed to the relief of many.

Yours truly,
C. JOHNSON.

WELL-KNOWN DOCTOR'S TESTIMONY.

I have every confidence in Dr. Eric Hoff's Uric Acid Treatment known as "U.A.E." (Uric Acid Expeller), for, from an intimate knowledge of its elements and their amalgamation I am convinced it is the most effective dissolvent of uric acid excess.

My experience has demonstrated its great value, even in confirmed and obstinate cases of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, and allied complaints.

(Dr.) J. ROBERTSON WALLACE, M.B.

A TYPISTS'S TROUBLE.—ELECTRICAL MASSAGE NO GOOD.—"U.A.E." A RECORD REMEDY.

20, Knightland-road, Upper Clapton.

Dear Sir,—For over four years I have been a continual sufferer from rheumatic neuralgia, in various stages, according to the state of my health. I attribute the commencement of this most painful complaint to working in a draughty office. After enduring most violent pains all over my head, and having experimented with a hundred and one "advertised cures," but without any good result, I determined to give up my situation, for I was not compelled to work. I rested at home for three months, but the complaint had got such a hold on me that I did not obtain any relief from my rest.

I then visited a specialist, as my nerves were breaking down, and I felt it a misery to live. I was advised to undergo a treatment of electrical massage. More expense and no relief.

My next move was a change of air, so I went to Bournemouth, and here I found my best friend, a lady who had been suffering like myself, but had been completely cured by Dr. Eric Hoff's "U.A.E." She had a few tablets left, so I commenced taking them at once, and anxiously awaited the arrival of a full box, for my pain was relieved in two days. By the time I had taken half of the quantity in the new box I felt a new woman, and was practically cured—but to make sure I continued until the box was empty, and since that time I have not had a single pain in my head. I keep the empty box as a souvenir, and now feel proud to write a word of praise in favour of Dr. Hoff's wonderful discovery.

I have now obtained a new situation, and feel wonderfully well. What a pleasant change!

Yours faithfully,
LAURA BUSBY.

A GUARANTEED REMEDY FREE.

1,250 4s. 6d. Treatments of Dr. Hoff's U.A.E.

To be given away FREE.

Dr. Hoff's U.A.E. (Uric Acid Expeller) is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Gout, Stone, and all complaints caused by an excess of Uric Acid in the blood. To secure recommendations I have decided to distribute 1,250 full-sized 4s. 6d. Treatments FREE.

Dr. Hoff's U.A.E. dissolves and drives the Uric Acid which causes Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gout, etc., out of the system. IT IS THE ONLY KNOWN MEDICINE WHICH ACTS IN THIS WAY, and THEREFORE THE ONLY CERTAIN CURE. I do not care what remedies you have tried, how many magnetic belts or other appliances you have worn, or how many years you have suffered without relief. U.A.E. will cure you. Many thousands have been cured after trying all sorts of so-called cure-alls, remedies, appliances, belts, and after undergoing treatments in baths, spas, hospitals, etc.

Remember!

The cause of Rheumatism is in the blood. You cannot coax it out through the skin with plasters or belts. You cannot tease it out with oils and embrocations, or burn it out with impregnated wadding, or wash it out with medicated waters. YOU MUST DISSOLVE AND DRIVE THE URIC ACID—WHICH CAUSES THESE COMPLAINTS—OUT OF THE BLOOD. This is just what Dr. Hoff's great remedy does: it expels the cause, and drives the Uric Acid out through the natural channels of the body. That is why it cures Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Gout, etc., and why I CAN GUARANTEE THAT IT CURES RHEUMATISM.

I Will Prove it to You at My Expense!

Simply fill in the coupon at the foot (or write mentioning "Cage Birds") and post to me to-day, and I will send you a 4s. 6d. box of Dr. Hoff's U.A.E. to try, together with Analyst's certificate of purity, doctors' opinions, and a book entitled "The Origin, Nature, and Treatment of Uric Acid Disorders," also a few extracts from the many thousands of testimonials received. Write at once; do not delay until your constitution is wrecked or your heart injured by Rheumatic poison.

What the X-Rays Reveal!

From these X-Ray illustrations it will be clear that uric acid is the cause of all Rheumatic maladies, whether your pain is in the back, legs, hands, shoulders, or feet; the cause is the same—Uric Acid. When the nerves are inflamed it causes Neuralgia and Neuritis. If you suffer from any of these complaints—Rheumatism, Sciatica, Gout, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Stone or Gravel, send at once for a free treatment of Dr. Hoff's "U.A.E." and commence your cure now. To secure recommendations, I have decided to distribute 1,250 full-sized 4s. 6d. Treatments Free.

This Coupon entitles any reader of "Cage Birds" to a 4s. 6d. box of Dr. Hoff's Celebrated Uric Acid Expeller (U.A.E.) free of charge.

Gray's Inn-road.

Dear Sir,—For several months I was crippled by rheumatism, it being especially bad in my legs, which made it very difficult for me to get about. In fact, I was for some time stopped from my work, and had to give it up altogether. At last I was recommended to try Dr. Eric Hoff's "U.A.E." by a friend who had derived benefit from taking it. I very quickly began to feel a great deal of relief and benefit from taking it, and after a short time I was able to get about again and perform my work as before.

I am thankful to say now that I am quite free from all symptoms of pain, and am very glad to tell of the good "U.A.E." has done me, as I consider it the best remedy for all rheumatic and uric acid troubles.

Yours truly,
Mrs. THAKE.

"U.A.E." THE ONLY NON-POISONOUS CURE.—A FAMOUS DOCTOR'S TESTIMONY.

I am satisfied that the principal ingredient contained in "U.A.E." is the only non-poisonous drug which has any real power over uric acid diseases, and I have continually used "U.A.E." in my own practice with most satisfactory results.

In cases of Gout, Sciatica, Lumbago, and severe cases of Rheumatism, I have usually found Vikwik Lotion a valuable accessory, as it relieves the acute pain after one or two applications.

NOW FREE FROM RHEUMATISM AND LUMBAGO BANISHED.—BOTTOM OF BACK PAINS AND SHOULDER AGONY ENDED.

Mr. JOHN SMITH,
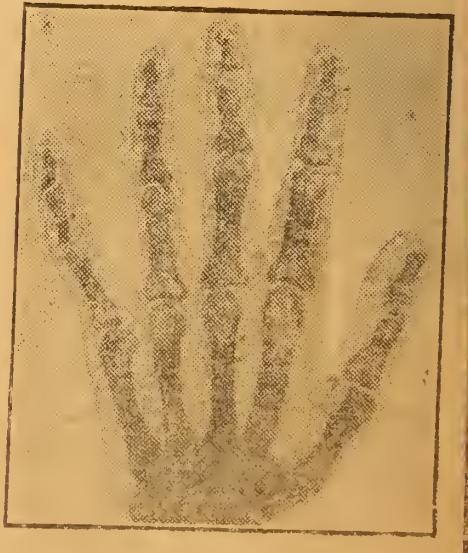
Leeds Centre.

Dear Sirs,—I've been a constant sufferer for years past from both rheumatism and lumbago, the first affecting my shoulders chiefly, and the latter attacking the bottom of my back, and if anyone knows what pain is, then I do. At my work I want free use of my arms, but this has been denied me, and also I've been quite prostrated with back pain. To do no work means to earn no money, and thus my troubles have cost me pounds, besides which I've spent a lot trying many advertised treatments.

It's a fact that nothing did me good until I was fortunate enough to hear of Dr. Hoff's "U.A.E.," and this is certainly the finest uric acid remedy in the world. Little by little it drew all the uric acid excess out of the system; I could see it departing, and I knew it as well, for the relief grew greater every day. It cured me and I've stayed cured, and am now able to do anything and everything. Let me sincerely recommend "U.A.E." to all other sufferers.



The same hand, showing the joints free from Uric Acid, and the fingers their natural shape.

ONE OF THE MANY LETTERS IN PRAISE OF "OUR CANARIES."

11, Morton St., Leith, Scotland.

Dear Sir, I received your lovely volume yesterday, and I can assure you that it is wonderful value.

I am sure that I will get a wonderful amount of good hints of value to me about my "Wee Gems," as I am a Border Fancy lover. Of course, I come from one of the hot beds of this particular variety (Kelso).

I will show your lovely volume to my Leith friends.

I am, Yours sincerely,
THOS. H. SCOTT.

THE SENSATIONAL HYBRID OF THE SEASON.

This variegated Hybrid, said to have been bred from a Canary and a Bullfinch, since its purchase and exhibition by Mr. R. D. Parlett, of Sheffield, has given rise to heated controversy. Some have held it to be a Greenfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid, and some have said it is a rare-feathered Bullfinch, whilst many declare their belief in it as a genuine Canary-Bullfinch. One judge has "wrong-classed" the bird; others have given it a prize.

F. CARL, Publisher, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

PREPAID ADVERTISEMENTS

UNDISPLAYED.—6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny per Word for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first Eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny, but no single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

Headlines or Footlines, 6d., 9d., 1/-, 1/6, according to size.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED.

Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL.

The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of ½d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Advt. Manager, "Cage Birds."

DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION. In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned to the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE. The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

NOT SINGING

Wanted a trial. We have confidence our medicines will please you. They are not a catch-penny, but a genuine article, and if given in time will invariably give a perfect cure.

Special offer.—If you have any birds you are relying upon for the coming breeding season that are not singing, or have gone into the soft moult, we guarantee you a perfect cure. We have the grandest medicine ever introduced for bringing birds into breeding condition. Mr. Hatton, Atherton, writes: "Your Medicine for soft moult is excellent stuff; it has cured me four birds in soft moult. They are now in full song." Mr. Fletcher, Chadmoor: "Have used your Tonic Drops for 18 months and they have never failed to do as advertised." Mr. W. Harris, Dorchester: "The effect of your Tonic Drops are marvellous." Major B. Horsbrough: "Your medicine is magnificent stuff." Mr. W. Reid, Greenock: "Your Medicine has been a great success, for both my birds are now singing." Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are a guaranteed cure for soft moult, not singing, going light, feather plucking, diarrhœa, and inflammation of the bowels. In 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. We guarantee every customer perfect satisfaction, or return full money.

For Bronchitis, Wheezing, and Hoarseness, get Ditchfield's special Lung Tonic. It is the grandest Medicine ever offered for chest and lung affections in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. Mr. G. H. Wilkes, Oldham, Local Hon. Sec., Cage Bird League, writes: "Your Lung Tonic is splendid stuff. It has entirely cured my best Roller cock."

For cases of Constitutional Weakness and Debility get Ditchfield's Famous Revivo. There is nothing to equal it for giving new life and vigour to the birds. As a pick-me-up for birds before and after showing, Revivo is absolutely unequalled. In 7d. and 1/1 bottles.

Special Notice.—All our Medicines can be given in the drinking water, and the birds take them freely with marvellous results. When ordering Medicine, kindly mention for what complaint, as in some cases an extra bottle is required, which we enclose free.

To advertise our Medicines, we will send two 7d. bottles or any of the above for 1/-, three for 1/6, or two 1/1 bottles for 1/9, three for 2/6. All medicines are sent post free, per return. All bottles broken in transit replaced. Also two valuable Seed Recipes. "How to Feed Linnets and Rollers for Song," given free to all purchasers of our Medicines. ADVERTISERS IN "CAGE BIRDS" Are Experiencing Splendid Results Just Now.

At no other period, judging from the comments in the letters sent to us, has business proved so brisk. This augurs well for the Fancy in 1914. Our columns have always offered an excellent market for all sorts of stock, but the amount of business transacted each week by our readers through advertisements must have reached a figure of gigantic proportions.

If you have anything to sell—ADVERTISE IT NOW! Lose no time—take advantage of the opportunity afforded by CAGE BIRDS' Advertisement Columns.

Letters similar to the following are frequent:—

"I thank you for inserting advertisement in CAGE BIRDS. I have received so many replies that I cannot answer them all, and I thank those who wrote. What a circulation 'C.B.' has got! I received replies from all parts. I could have exchanged three times as much as I advertised." F. BRIGHTON (Newmarket).

"I have had so many applications to the advert. I put in your paper that I cannot answer those who have not sent stamps, so would you be so kind as to let them know through your paper that I am suited?" W. TAMS (Littleport, Ely.)

"You may be interested to hear that in response to my Border advert. I received replies from Brighton, Cardiff, Ipswich, Stockport, Whitehaven, Warrington, and also from several London fanciers."—A. G. SNOOK (Streatham).

"I have had the greatest of satisfaction with my advertisements in CAGE BIRDS."—E. ROWE (Chatteris).

"Just a line to tell you what wonderful results I had from my last small advert. for Goldfinches. I sold 30 in one week, all in ones and twos. It's no trouble to sell any good stuff through CAGE BIRDS. Wishing CAGE BIRDS all the success it deserves."—R. J. WITTON (Colchester).

The Rate for Advertisements is 6d. for the first 18 words and ½d. for each word after.

Norwegian Bullfinches and Goldfinches

Just arrived, over 50. They are quite as large as Siberians, and quite tame. They are acknowledged by all old hybrid breeders to be the very best for that purpose. They have formerly been sold at 10/, 15/, and 20/ each. My price is 4/6, 5/6, 6/6, and 7/6 each. Cock Goldfinches, from the one place, almost as large as Siberians, but much richer in colour, and far better breeders, 4/6, 5/6, and 6/6 each. These birds have been in aviaries two and three months before they are sent to me, and all are on full song. Willingly sent on approval at my risk, cash or deposit; so send direct to John Day, The Aviaries, Portergate, Hull.

AN APOLOGY

for a bird is useless to you. It costs no more to keep a good bird than a waster but the pleasure derived is infinitely greater. If you are looking for a thoroughly healthy reliable bird, please give me one trial. The descriptions of birds given below are guaranteed absolutely correct in every particular, as I do not believe in trying to induce custom by foolish exaggeration or nonsensical fairy tales. MULE and HYBRID BREEDERS make your 1914 breeding season a record in every way by purchasing a copy of

CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS.

This great work is written by CHARLES HOULTON, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading Exhibitor, and a leading Expert and Judge. Edited by G. E. Weston and C. A. House.

Complete Bound in Cloth, 7/6 carriage paid.

MARVELLOUSLY COMPREHENSIVE.

First of all are considered at great length the question of cages and aviaries for hybrids. All the various methods of housing are thoroughly and carefully described. The perches are minutely detailed; nests and nesting material have a chapter to themselves. Mr. Houlton's special cage for hybrid breeding is clearly described and illustrated. All the foods, natural and artificial, are enumerated. Egg and other soft foods and their feeding values dealt with. The selection of the stock is debated at length. The hens which breed light and dark exhibition mules described. The proper breeding procedure for Dark Goldfinch Mules gone into. Egg binding and its treatment. The food supply. Care of the young hybrids. All these topics are treated with that experience and skill only an expert of Mr. Houlton's standing could bring to such a task.

There are no less than Sixteen Coloured and Sixteen Art Plates in this work. EACH PLATE IS A PERFECT STUDY OF AN INDIVIDUAL HYBRID. Every plate shows the correct colour, the correct shape, the present day type and general characteristics of a prize-winning Hybrid.

THE PRACTICAL AND COMPREHENSIVE WORK WHICH ALL HYBRID BREEDERS REQUIRE.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL.

The author, that well-known expert and judge, gives much useful instruction on AVIARIES and CAGES, BREEDING, MOULTING, EXHIBITING, DISEASES & THEIR CURE SEEDS, Etc., and devotes a separate chapter to each individual variety. Get a copy now, it will help you this coming breeding season.

HULL'S LEADING NATURALIST

With over 30 years' experience as a Breeder and Exhibitor, I do not exhibit now, therefore I keep none back. First orders received gets them. Testimonials and repeat orders arriving every post. These are just received: 3, Cambridge-ter., Regent's Park, N.W., London. Dear Sir,—Siberian Bullfinch arrived safe; am very pleased with same, also with the other you sent me before.—H. Rayler. Hill of Beaten, Fife. Birds arrived safe, in good form. Many thanks for quick despatch.—W. Aine. 73, Murray-st., Montrose, Scotland. Dear Sir,—Goldfinch arrived quite safe. Thank you for your attention.—David Langlands. Gentlemen, I have over 50 like these, all arrived last week, not the same over and over again until you are tired of seeing them. If you are in want of a good bird send your order to me. I can give you satisfaction where others fail. Why? Because I am a direct importer of Siberian birds, and I have now in stock the largest collection of birds ever seen in one man's possession in Hull. If you are visiting Hull pay me a visit. If I fail to prove this statement I will willingly give £10 to the Hull Infirmary. All these birds are kept in large, up-to-date, outdoor aviaries and indoor bird rooms. All birds sent out are healthy, and as advertised. Can supply any dealer weekly with Siberian Bullfinches. Wright for price; enclose trade card. Siberian Bullfinches, cocks or hens, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, and a few extra specials, 7/6 and 10/6 each. Siberian cock Goldfinches, real giants, 3/6, 4/6, 5/6, and a few picked birds, with big broad skulls, deep square-cut blazes, well buttoned, 7/6 and 10/6 each. Siberian yellow cock Greenfinches, very large, fine birds, 2/6 and 3/6 each. Yellow cock Siskin, cage moulted, bred Mules last year, a real gem, only 7/6. Fine Grossbeaks, 8/6 and 10/6 each. Crossbills, 6/6 and 7/6 each. Some extra good Waxwings expected next week. You that are in want of one let me book your order now. My agent says they are the best he has ever sent from Siberia for size and colour. Also a few extra large Mealy Redpolls, with large bibs and grandly laced, the sort to moult winners, 2/6 and 3/6 each. AMONG SO MANY

advertisements it is rather difficult for the intending purchaser to make a final selection. However well off a man may be, he does not like the idea of not getting fullest value, does he? For many years I have publicly stated that the Leipsig Roller, as imported by myself, is far and away better value than any Roller on the market, and have invited all intending purchasers to test the truth of this statement by testing a Leipzig Roller against any other costing up to three times the price, and have repeatedly published letters from persons who have done this. I now hold an enormous stock (over 900) of genuine Weber's Leipzig Roller cocks, all in full song, day and gas light, with long hollow and double rolls, sweet silvery trills, soft roulades, water bubble runs, piccolo trills, jug-jug of Nightingale, bell, harp, gong and flute notes, etc., and guaranteed entirely free from any harsh objectionable notes whatever; price 7/6 and 8/6 each. Special bandmasters, which excel in the deep bass and hollow bell tours, 10/6 and 12/6 each; hens same strain, 2/6 each; 4/6 couple. I also have a splendid lot of loud, free singing Hartz cocks in full vigorous song at 5/6 each; hens 2/- each, 3/6 couple. These Hartz cocks are specially suitable for public bar or coffee house and those who like a noisy songster. Special travelling cages, 3d. extra. Singing box cages, 1/6 each. Special Roller singing cabinet cages, with folding doors and loose fronts, made specially for Rollers, 3/- and 4/- each. Kindly note full name and address, also date of following letters. I have thousands similar, open to inspection at any time:—"Kibworth, Jan. 6.—Sir,—Leipzig Roller arrived today and began singing at once. I am well pleased with him.—Yours, B. Green." "27, Porchkerry-rd., Barry, Jan. 10.—Sir,—Received bird on Tuesday in grand condition, and consider it excellent value.—Yours, M. Gibbs." "Springvale, Ballywater, Ireland, Jan. 9.—Sir,—Birds arrived safe and cock is singing splendidly.—Yours, Alex. McCormick." "10, St. Andrew-st., Dublin, Dec. 29.—Sir,—Please let me know if you have few more of your famous Rollers for friends who have heard the one I had from you four years ago. I have just sold him at double the price, and he is better now than ever.—Yours, T. Henry." "43, Talbot Grove, Notting Hill, London, Jan. 9.—Sir,—Am well pleased with Roller, and thank you very much for sending such a nice bird. He started singing soon as unpacked.—Yours, W. Burt." "24, George-st., Burnbank, Hamilton, Jan. 19.—Sir,—I got a Roller from you seven years ago, and it has just died. It was as good as ever right up to the last. Please send another. P.O. enclosed.—Yours, T. Armstrong." "22, Stafford-st., Stockton-on-Tees.—Sir,—Received Roller on Tuesday, and am highly satisfied. Please send two hens.—Yours, J. Kemp." "20, Park View, Tredegar, Dec. 28.—Sir,—Received Roller safe at 4.30 on 24th; it was singing splendidly up to 12 o'clock same night. I am more than delighted with it.—Yours, R. Lane." "Sunnyside, Whitwell, Mansfield, Dec. 24.—Sir,—Just a line to let you know that both my friend and self are highly satisfied with our Rollers. Thanking you for straightforward and honest dealing.—Yours, S. Wilson." "80, Beaumont Terrace, Westerhope, near Newcastle, Jan. 14.—Sir,—Roller you sent me is singing grand, and I am well pleased.—Yours, W. Henderson." Please note, all birds are sent on full week's trial solely at my own risk during whole time either on receipt of cash or "Cage Birds" deposit system, and fullest satisfaction guaranteed or money instantly refunded in full. I am sole importer of Weber's Leipzig Rollers, and all cocks are stamped on wing, "Hans Weber, Leipzig." Among the advantages of the Leipzig Rollers is the fact that they retain their song for life, not merely one season, as is the case with many Rollers. The breeders of Leipzig Rollers have been improving the strain for past 20 years, and the result is round about perfection. I care not how hard a person is to please, I am convinced that I can do so. If any person would like to hear a Leipzig Roller sing and cannot call at my premises to do so, I will willingly send them one on week's approval (even if they have no intention of purchasing). I only ask that they will deposit price of bird with Editor of "Cage Birds." Let me remind you that I am sole importer of this strain, and no other dealer can sell unless he first purchases from me. W. GORE, GOOCH STREET, BIRMINGHAM

Feb. 6th to 10th, 1914.

To all old friends and new I extend a cordial invitation to pay a visit to my stall at the Palace Show on any of the above dates. I hope to have a choice selection of birds for sale, also breeding cages, and bird-room requisites. I shall be pleased to meet any Fanciers requiring birds for stock or exhibition, and will personally book their requirements. To those unable to come and see me, I shall be pleased to send any birds they may require on 10 days' approval at my sole risk.

As regards the quality of my stock, it is surely sufficient to say that I have won during the present season over 400 prizes at champion shows all over the Kingdom. These include Firsts and Specials at all the leading shows, also numerous Cups, Medals, and Trophies offered for competition by the Specialist Clubs.

These are facts which cannot be disputed, and need no comment. I am now offering marvellous value in the following varieties:—

CHAMPION NORWICH, THE BULLDOG STRAIN.

Grand, short, thick-set birds, cocks or hens, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- each upwards. Matched pairs, personally selected by me for breeding winners, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- to 100/- per pair. Blood is sure to tell in the end, and I am prepared to give a written guarantee that the above are bred by me from my noted strain of winners. I have also a few real good cobby birds bred from other well-known strains at the following prices: Cocks, in full song, 6/6, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Grand cobby hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Matched breeding pairs, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/-, 25/- per pair.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Grand, lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, with good position, and in full song, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- each. Erect, racy hens, feathered to perfection, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each. Matched pairs, personally selected, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- per pair.

EXHIBITOIN YORKSHIRES.

I have a few specially good birds, ready for immediate benching, that can easily win their cost in prize money. Cocks or hens, in clears, ticks, or marked, at 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Also a few specially matched pairs, bred from the best blood in the Fancy, and personally matched by me for breeding winners, at 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. I have also a few of this season's open winners for sale at a working-man's price. Write for particulars.

CRESTS AND CRESTED-BRED.

I am offering wonderful value in this variety, as follows: Crested Cocks, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each. Crested Hens, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- 25/- each. Crest-bred Cocks, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- each. Crest-bred Hens, 7/6, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/- each. Matched Pairs at 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/- per pair upwards. The above are large, massive, feathery birds, and will give satisfaction anywhere.

PURE SEIFERT ROLLERS.

I have a very large stock of these marvellous songsters, and am in a special position to give satisfaction to all Roller fanciers. Kindly note the following prices: Cocks, thoroughly trained and in full rolling song, with many changes of tours, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- each. Genuine Schoolmasters, specially trained for contest singing, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/- each upwards. Hens, guaranteed same pure strain, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 7/6 each.

Am also offering a limited number of hens bred from one of the best strains in England, at 7/6 and 10/- each. These are worth treble to any breeder. All B.R.C.C. rung. Full particulars on application.

Grand, healthy, Sib, hens, for muling, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 each; Goldfinch Mules, in full song, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/- each; Linnet Mules, in full song, 7/6, 10/-, 12/6 each.

Travelling Cages 3d. extra in all cases.

I have also a splendid selection of Border Fancies, Lancashires, Scotch Fancies, Lizards, etc., etc. Kindly remember, I issue an open invitation to all fanciers to call at any time and inspect my stock. You need not announce your visit; come at any time (except Sundays). You will be sure of a hearty welcome and will be shown round my rooms whether desiring to purchase or not.

Any fancier requiring stock is invited to come and make his own selection. To those unable to come I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the kingdom at my sole risk. I will send on 7 or 10 days' approval anywhere, and will guarantee absolute satisfaction to every customer or cash returned in full.

EASY PAYMENTS can be arranged to suit the convenience of genuine fanciers who are not in a position to pay cash. Send a postcard for my free illustrated catalogue, containing much useful information concerning the cage bird hobby.

GENUINE SONGSTERS

For many years I have supplied thousands of customers with the best singing Canaries that have ever been heard. If you require a genuine, reliable singing Canary I invite you to come and inspect my stock and select one for yourself, any day except Sunday. If you cannot come allow me to send you one on seven days' approval. You can see the quality and hear its song before deciding to keep it. I guarantee every customer satisfaction. I have many hundreds of unsolicited testimonials open for your inspection. The following is a sample of the many received this week:—23, Comer-terr., Cockfield, January 3rd, 1914.—I have given the Roller a fair trial and am pleased to say that we are more than satisfied. Many of my brother fanciers acknowledge he is a first-class songster at a reasonable price.—R. Heckley. Please remember that I import all my Rollers direct from the best and most reliable breeders, and can give the best possible quality for money. Every bird is tested as to its singing qualities before being dispatched, thus avoiding your disappointment. St. Andreasburg Roller cocks, with full change of song by day and artificial light, genuine, up-to-date songsters, 7/6, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6 each; a few extra good contest songsters, 15/, 17/6, 20/-; hens, same strain, 2/6, 3/-, 3/6 each (not common German rubbish). For cheap reliable songsters my Hartz cocks are unequalled, and acknowledged by all to be the real working man's friend. Birds in full, loud, free song by day and gaslight, real loud, sweet songsters, Hartz cocks, 5/3, 5/9, 6/3 each, according to quality of song. Matched pairs for breeding songsters, 7/6, 8/-, 8/6. Neat travelling cages, 3d. each; special quotations to clubs and dealers. Travelling cages from 2/- dozen, 20/6 per gross. All birds are on 7 days' approval at my sole risk; cash or deposit: E. L. Storey, The Roller Specialist, Crowle, Doncaster.

REPEATING OF ADVERTISEMENTS

Can better Proof of my claim be given than the following:

"Lampeter, Jan., 1914.—Hartz Roller arrived safely. As a songster it gives me great satisfaction, and is, in fact, far better than I expected for the price, as I have had to pay dealers more than double the price for 'screechers' in comparison.—Lewis W. Davies to W. Rudd."

KNIGHT'S YORKSHIRE AVIARIES

Important to novices, amateurs, and Yorkshire breeders generally. Age and present health condition decides me in offering for immediate sale the whole contents of two of my bird rooms, including over 100 birds, with cages and fittings. My past 35 years' experience in the breeding and keeping of Yorkshire varieties only is proof sufficient, without further comment, that purchasing clients for future stock are assured of securing style and quality in progeny, also at prices probably half that usually charged by professional exhibitors and dealers for class birds. Unrelated pairs, selected and suitably matched as for own breeding, from 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; single specimens proportionately; also few exhibition specimens, equally cheap; all approval, cash or deposit; for detailed particulars, etc., address: Jonas Knight, Allerton, Bradford, Yorkshire. GLASGOW (West of Scotland) O.S.

Annual general meeting, held Jan. 17, at Nelson Temperance Hotel, Mr. Jno. Montgomery, president, presiding over a good attendance. Balance-sheet was submitted, a small balance on the right side being shown, which was considered satisfactory, and was adopted. Office-bearers for ensuing year were appointed as follows: Pres., J. Montgomery; vice-pres., Messrs. W. Wood and Wm. Gunion; sec. and treas., Wm. Hutchison, 163, Hospital Street, Glasgow; auditors, Messrs. E. Barron and R. Beggie, with the following committee: Messrs. Jas. Laurie, C. Martin, J. Nimmo, H. Congan, R. Thomson, F. Haddon, G. Smart, J. Pierce, G. A. Henderson, J. Rankine, Wm. Jackson, D. Whitelaw, O. Begg, and J. Black. Rules, etc., were adopted en bloc. Decided to add classes for Norwich, Cinnamon, and self or foul, non-fed Greens, to classification, and Mr. C. Barron promised a trophy for competition for the new classes, which offer was accepted. Decided that pair show be brought forward to Jan. 31st, as hall had been already engaged for Feb. 7th. Classification: Crests, P.H., yell., cock and buff hen, buff cock and yell. hen, Cinn., cock and hen, Green, cock and hen, Yorks., yell. cock and buff, hen, Buff, cock and yellow hen; Borders, yell. cock, buff hen, buff cock, yell. hen, and Green cock and hen; muling pairs, Hyb. pairs. Messrs. Taylor, Lappin, and craig judges. A vote of thanks to chairman terminated the meeting.—W. Hutchison.

SOUTHERN BORDER F.C.

Monthly meeting held Jan. 22 at headquarters, Mr. H. Norman chair, and a fair attendance. Letters were read from Mr. D. Jenkins, R. Roberts, Snook, G. H. Pratt, Watford and Dis. C.B.A. and A. J. Pratt. The spoons which have been made specially to order and are very heautifully finished with model of Border in enamel on handle, were on view and members were delighted with them. The purchasing of the club cup was dealt with, and upon the Secretary stating the amount subscribed to the fund it was left in Treasurer's hands to purchase same with stand. Mr. G. H. Pratt has kindly given a breakfast cruet for champion, and same for novice, who has shown most at patronage shows and taken least. Champion cruet is won by D. Jenkins; novice, B. Green. The annual general meeting will be held at the Palace on Feb. 7, at 2.30 sharp; members who wish to make any suggestion or any alteration of rules should send it same at once, stating fully what they suggest. A sealed handicap has been suggested for next season and £1 1s. promised for same; also to add Green and Cinnamon classes to classification. Rule 13 to be altered. Definition of ticked bird to be altered, and a proposal to add amateur classes. Ballot papers have been sent out and members should not fail to fill in and return same. The committee wish to thank the following members for donations to the cup fund: Messrs. McGuffie, Wanner, Joyce, Burton Bros., Gollop, Saunders, Jenkins, Madagan, Willis, Philpot, Silver, G. H. Pratt, F. Ward, L. Short, Dr. Laurie, Mrs. Salter, Gwilliam, Wiseman, Hobden, A. J. Pratt, and for other specials, clock and cup Mr. R. A. Newley; diplomas, Mr. W. E. Plank; cruet, F. Moore. Mr. Newley announced that he had sold 113 cages to members and paid into funds £1 8s. 9d. as commission on same. There are still a few members who have not yet paid their subs., and the Committee would be much obliged if they will forward on same now. A vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the meeting.—F. Moore, Hon. Sec.

S. BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Last meeting of third year, Marlboro' Hotel, Jan. 14, before a splendid gathering. Chairman Willmott requested nominations for the position of officials for the New Year, and the following were elected: Chair, Mr. E. T. Willmott; vice-chair, Mr. J. Hughes; treas., Mr. W. T. Harding; committee, Messrs. G. Raby, G. Constable, J. Burke, E. Hall, and G. Swindon, the last named being elected in the place of Mr. J. Wright, now in London. Secretary, J. Sheppard. Sec. submitted rough report of the past year's progress and balance-sheet. After a most expensive year, he said, £7 worth of cups bought and a very handsome present made to the secretary, it would be pleasing for the members to know there was still a good balance at the Bank; everything the Society had done had been done in tip-top style, the best of judges had been engaged for the various shows, and the grand total of close upon 400 birds had been staged during 1913 (applause); 73 names appeared upon the books, but no doubt many would have to be struck off if their subscription was not forthcoming at once, this being one of the rules of the Society. The members' show was a distinct success, and would result in a profit of about 10s. The Chairman then spoke on the splendid progress the Society had made. He was glad to find such a splendid attendance that evening; his whole heart was in the Society (cheers); that was why he was with them that evening, although he had other important appointments. The balance-sheet would be audited before next meeting, and the members would then have the chance to go thoroughly into the same. I impress upon you all, he said, to do your best to get other fanciers into the Society; if only one each, it would make things go with a hum, and would repay those who were working for the betterment and welfare of the ever popular S.B.O.S. (Applause.) Cups and sps. were presented; champ. cup, 1913, Mr. J. Burke; novice, Mr. J. Bayliss; Brit., Mr. G. Raby.—J. Sheppard, Sec.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

EAST HAM F.S.

Annual meeting at headquarters, Earl of Wakefield, Wakefield Street, East Ham, Jan. 22. Mr. T. Bransford, chair, 56 members present. Seven new members were elected. The Hon. Sec. of Concert Committee was called upon for his report, which stated that all arrangements for the concert had been made; it would be held at the Harmonic Hall, Plasket Grove, March 5. They had a good programme. He hoped all members would do their utmost to sell tickets, price 6d. each, sale or return, or 6 for 2s. 6d. if paid for at the time, no return. This seemed to give great satisfaction, and a large number were immediately taken. Copies of balance sheet were handed to all. Hon. Sec., Mr. W. Kite, read annual report, and said he was glad to be able to tell them that the Society was now 90 strong and entirely free from debt (after paying off debts and purchasing outstanding medals, some of which had been owing for the past two years); they had a balance in hand of over £3. This statement was most enthusiastically received. Chairman stated how pleased he was the Society was going so strong, and had such a successful year. He was now retiring, and would not stand for election again. He considered someone living in the neighbourhood should occupy the chair, but he would still attend meetings. Mr. T. Sawyer was elected Pres.: Messrs. T. Bransford and H. Caudle, Vice Pres.; W. Kite unanimously elected Hon. Sec.; B. Jackson, Hon. Assis. Sec. Six members were nominated for chairmanship, and Mr. E. Oakes was elected chairman by an overwhelming majority. Mr. Oakes thanked the members for the confidence placed in him, and assured them that their interests would be safe in his keeping. Special efforts would be made to greatly increase the cage bird section, which he considered was always a great attraction to any show, especially amongst the ladies. Mr. W. Harwood was elected Vice-Chairman, and a very strong committee of 12, all most enthusiastic and proved workers. After a discussion as to the alterations of rules, etc., the meeting was adjourned until Feb. 5, at 8. It is of the utmost importance that all members should make it their business to attend, as many things of the great importance will be brought forward by the Committee—rules, list of fixtures, etc. Full particulars of the Society and correspondence a pleasure from Mr. W. Kite, Hon. Sec., 27, Bartle-avenue, East Ham, or Mr. B. Jackson, Hon. Assist. Sec., 256, Halley-road, Manor Park.

CITY AND SUBURBAN.

Adjourned annual general meeting, Jan. 26, Church Institute, 60, Paddington Street. F. Knight (chair), Mr. V. Wynn, Hon. Sec., and 30 members present. Letters were read from Mrs. Morgan, Mr. Ponsford and Mr. Norris, British Roller CC., agreeing to terms for use of staging. Miss V. Sanders, Mr. Mound and Mr. A. Williams were nominated for membership. The Hon. Sec. announced that owing to pressure of other business it had been impossible to audit the accounts; they were all complete, and informed the members that there was a balance of over £16 in hand. He also mentioned that the proceeds from the concert had augmented the funds by £8 10s., and the members unanimously accorded a very hearty vote of thanks to Miss Grace Shepherd for arranging such an interesting programme, and to Mr. W. H. Shepherd for decorating the hall and so ably superintending all the arrangements. Mr. Shepherd and his daughter also disposed of over £10 worth of tickets personally, and it was entirely owing to their joint efforts that the concert proved such a success. Prize money and specials won at the Pair Show were presented to those present, and a vote of thanks was moved to the Hon. Sec. and stewards for their services on that day. Will members please note that the next meeting is Monday, Feb. 26, and orders for CAGE BIRDS Annual should be sent in to the Secretary at once. Vote of thanks to Chairman closed the meeting.—Fred. Thynne, Assist. Hon. Sec.

The increasing popularity of Hopkins.

THE 55th GREAT CRYSTAL PALACE SHOW

Review of the Entry, Etc.

The show which is in the thoughts of many hundreds of fanciers from year's end to year's end is now once more close upon us, and fanciers will in a few days be foregathering as usual at the great annual reunion.

The entries this year total 2,470, just two more than last year, but the average per class is larger than in 1913, for the competitive classes this year are three less in number.

The class for white Canaries, which last year had ten entries, has dropped to six, a rather unlooked for circumstance, considering that the variety seemed to be getting firmly established.

The Foreign section shows a considerable improvement in number, and there will be staged a collection of gorgeously plumaged birds, which will be worth a long journey to see. Nothing absolutely new to the show bench is among the entries, we think, but the 116 birds which form this section will attract an interested and delighted audience, as usual. Mr. H. T. T. Camps again judges the Parrots, which this year have jumped from 25 to 43 entries, and the remainder will be taken by Mr. Fuhljames, who exchanges places with Mr. Swaysland, the latter taking over the insectivorous British classes. The entries in this part of the foreign section have risen from 58 to 73.

The Canary Section.

The classes in the Canary section number 89, against the 92 of last year, and have produced 1,369 entries, an increase of two, last year's number being 1,358, so that the average is a better one. A big drop occurs in the Crests, 69 birds in 9 classes, against the 107 in 10 of last year; novice Yorks. are 26 down, 126 being the number, and the limit classes, 151, are 35 down from last year. The A.O.V. Canary class has only produced 5 entries, and it is likely that this class will be dropped from future schedules. A rise in the majority of the classes balances the deficiency here shown. Among the increases are: Norwich open, 16 up, noviec 35, open Yorks. 25. An addition to the Canary section is a class for Dutch Frills, guaranteed by Messrs. Fifield and Brooks, and this has produced a nice entry of 14. These curiously feathered birds will doubtless be one of the attractions of the show.

The detailed entries are as follows:	Classes.	Birds.
Norwich Plainheads (open)	8	123
Ditto (novice)	4	117
Crests and C.B. (open)	8	63

In judging Mules and Hybrids, Mr. Lamb makes his debut at the Palace, and has been supported by 132 entries, an increase of 4 over last year. Among the birds in this section will be found representatives of every known cross, including two examples of the Green finch-Chaffinch, the latest, though now familiar, success in Hybrid breeding.

In the British section (open) there are 723 entries, a drop of 25 from last year's total. Mr. Weston's five classes—Bullfinch, Goldfinch, Linnet, Chaffinch, and Greenfinch—contain 162, an increase of 26. Mr. Silver's classes show an increase of 7 entries, but the 8 classes judged by Mr. Swaysland have produced only 74, a big drop of exactly 60 from last year. Nevertheless, nearly every species of British bird which may properly be kept in captivity will be represented, and the section will, as usual, be one of the most interesting sights of the show. The novice British classes have been increased from 3 to 5, but have produced 4 less entries.

The class for Continental Finches, judge, Mr. Dewar, has produced 11 entries, while 270 bargains will appear in the extra stock class.

The Old Firm Again.

Mr. J. W. Ramsden, of 11, Josephine Avenue, Brixton, is once again responsible for the whole of the show arrangements, this being the fourteenth year of his management of the great exhibition. The experience which Mr. Ramsden has had in working out to a nicety the minutest detail which may tend to the smooth carrying out of such an undertaking stands him in good stead. From beginning to end everything under Mr. Ramsden's management works with the smoothness of perfect machinery, and when our representative called on Tuesday evening the catalogue sheets were absolutely ready for the printer, each entry throughout the whole 2,470 being numbered consecutively. In the enormous clerical work incidental to such a task, Mr. Ramsden has the enthusiastic assistance of Mrs. Ramsden and Mr. Geo. Ramsden, and he is the first to admit that their whole-hearted co-operation is the secret of his success. We were glad to hear from Mr. Ramsden that the system he adopted some years ago of absolutely closing down the entries at the advertised time works with complete success. Exhibitors, when they know their entries will be refused if tendered after the proper time, take care to enter before closing, and this year not a single entry had to be returned through being after time.

Address Wanted.

In your splendid Double Number I had a small advt. offering Crests in exchange, writes Mr. D. Wilson, Hamilton, and got a reply from a Mr. Hamilton, Newlands, Glasgow, but neither street nor number. I got my reply returned, "Insufficiently addressed." Will Mr. Hamilton send full address?

Illness of Middlesex Secretary.

I have been confined to my bed now for three weeks, suffering from pneumonia, and I fear it will be another month before I am able to resume my duties again. In the meantime I trust members of the Middlesex O.S. and fanciers generally will excuse my not answering their letters, etc.—Jeffery Jefferis (Southall), sec. Middlesex O.S.

Concert for Bradford Fanciers.

The City of Bradford O.S. will hold an open concert Jan. 31 at Flying Dutchman Hotel, Leeds Road, for the presentation of members' prizes by Mr. H. H. Towers of Glasburn, when a hearty welcome will be given to all fanciers and friends, writes Mr. W. Helliwell, sec. Will all fanciers desirous of becoming members attend and be enrolled?

Lizards in the North.

The members of the N.L.C. are indebted to Mr. W. H. Butler, West Stanley, for a handsome sub. to medal funds, and wish to thank him, through the medium of your valuable journal. What the possibilities of the Lizard in the North would be it is hard to say were Mr. Butler to lend his great influence on behalf of the breed. Mr. J. S. Hyslop, Wallsend, has again secured the N.L.C.C. bowl, this being his second win in succession. Congratulations and a speedy return to health.—C. Davidson, sec.

Tyneside Fancier Burnt Out.

I am sorry to say one of our members, Mr. Ralph McKie, was so unfortunate as to lose the whole of his stock of birds, amounting to over £20 worth, through fire; it is rather a severe blow to him, as he was expecting to make his mark the next show season. He is only a working man, with a small family, and there are no prospects of him being able to replace them. Should any of our brother fanciers be in a position to stretch forth the hand of kindness and help to set a keen and good fancier on the way again, it would be much appreciated by him, and acknowledged per return by George Greenwell, hon. sec. Wallsend C.B.A., 17, George Road, Wallsend-on-Tyne.

[We are sorry to hear of Mr. McKie's loss, and have sent a donation of 10s. from Cage Birds League on Mr. Greenwell's recommendation, to start the ball rolling.—Editor, "C.B."]

Leigh C.B.S. Dinner.

Members and friends of the Leigh C.B.S. should not forget the dinner at 5 o'clock to-day (Saturday) writes Mr. R. Charleson, hon. sec.

Club Meetings at the Palace.

Applications for club meeting rooms at the Palace must be made direct to Mr. Ramsden, and will be booked strictly in order of application. The hours are from 2 till 6, or 6 till 10. Charge 10s. 6d. per meeting.

Rats Wreak Destruction.

An Aviary Cleared in a Night.

Sir, As a reader of your most valuable paper for some years past, and one who has gained great information from same in many respects, I thought a recent experience of mine, if published in your valuable columns might safeguard a great many of your readers, and prevent them from suffering the great loss that has happened to me, as prevention is always better than cure.

To commence my story, I have what I believe the prettiest aviary and garden to be found for many miles around this district, and people come from a long distance to view my Canaries and British birds and foreigners. The flight is 10ft. long by 3 x 4ft., all finished in rustic style with virginian cork bark. The inside compartment is of matchboard and felt, size 6ft. x 5ft. all ways. On the evening of the 20th inst., on returning from our work, my son and I went to view our birds as usual after tea, the aviary then containing 10 pairs of Norwich and Yorkshires and very fine cock Bullfinch, two Chaffinches, one handsome Goldfinch, and two Canary Mules in the one compartment, and seven Budgerigars in the other. On the following morning my son went out to feed the birds at 5.30 a.m., before going to work, when, to his great surprise, there were only two Canaries left. We at once made a search, and soon discovered that the place had been entered by rats during the night, with the result that all our birds were eaten except the heads and wings, for evidence to clear up what seemed a great mystery. I may say that that birds cost me over £12 to get together, and I anticipated a great breeding season next year, and my reason for sending this letter to you is as a preventive to other fanciers from being served as I have been.

W. CYPHER.

Halifax O.S. and the Yorkshire Union.

Sir,—In your issue of the 17th inst. there is a report of the Yorkshire Union meeting, and when the resignation of Halifax Society came up they asked our delegates the reason, and in their answer they said the notice of motion for the special meeting was given before the annual show. Now I say this is not correct, as our show was held on Oct. 17 and 18, and this motion was given on Nov. 1 at our monthly meeting, and at our next monthly meeting, which was held on Nov. 29, it being held a week sooner than usual, owing to the Bradford National, it was confirmed, and then it was decided to have a special meeting for that purpose on Dec. 20, for which every member was post carded. I am surprised that the President of the Yorkshire Union did not pull them up, seeing he is a member of our society, and he would know different. I don't envy his job as chairman. I might say that I have seen the delegate who made that statement, and he says it was his mistake. I might also say that only two of our delegates went to the meeting, and I did not know they had been notified about the meeting till the same night, because I had not had a postcard from the Yorkshire Union sec. I might say that the Sunday before the meeting the President was at my house, and he told me they were having a meeting at Bradford, and I also saw him the Sunday after and asked me if I couldn't get three delegates to go to the meeting, so I told him I had not been notified.

HARRY CLEGG, Sec.

A Well-known Tyneside Winner Changes Hands.

Sir, Mr. Wm. McGinn, the well-known Tyneside exhibitor, has sold his champion clear yellow Norwich cock to Mr. W. Crawshaw of Accrington. The price has not been divulged, but it is sure to be a substantial one, for the bird is practically unbeaten in his class, and has eight 1sts to his credit this season, including the cup for best Norwich at the recent Scottish National, also special best Norwich at Hartlepool, while other 1sts were gained at Newcastle, Blaydon, Gateshead, Haltwhistle, etc., all in the keenest competition. We wish Mr. Crawshaw every success with his latest purchase, and we feel confident that the bird will fully justify himself for his new owner. The bird was entered at our show (Sunderland), but owing to being sold was absent, otherwise he would probably have had another 1st to his credit.

W. REID.

The Black Redstart.

Sir, I noticed a letter in last week's issue stating that the Black Redstart was seen at Workington. Thinking it may interest your readers, I may state that this bird is a regular visitor to this place, Burry Port. I have seen it for over twenty years without a break. I have seen as many as three at the same time. They arrive here about the end of October, and leave again in March.

Suggested Society for Port Talbot.

Sir, Kindly allow me, through the medium of your valuable paper, to ask all bird lovers of Port Talbot, whether it is in our power to form a Cage Bird Society in the district? I know well that there are a lot of fanciers here who only want arousing to the occasion, and as we have a well-known Cardiff fancier dwelling here (Mr. Maggs) I should like to hear him voice his sentiments through the press on the matter.

TYBACH.

Treating Fractures in Birds' Legs.

Sir,—The following method of treating a fracture of a small bird's leg may be of use to some of your readers. I recently saw a Canary, belonging to a friend of mine, which had a compound fracture of the leg, that is to say the skin was broken and the fracture communicated with the air. While my friend held the bird, I attempted to fit tiny splints, made from a match, with cotton wool wound round them, with the intention of binding them on with strapping. I found it was quite impossible to adjust them nicely, as they should be. The method I then tried was as follows:—I took a piece of Johnson and Johnson's ZO strapping, half an inch wide and two inches long, and rolled it tightly round the leg, covering fracture, and making about four or five layers of strapping. The bird was able to perch immediately afterwards. I removed the strapping after five weeks, by getting my friend to hold the bird, while I softened the strapping by applying a piece of absorbent wool dipped in hot water. The leg is perfect, and the bird is quite well. I found this method easy and simple, but splints, although I have some knowledge of their use, practically impossible to apply. I hope this letter may be the means of saving some little birds from needless suffering, and enclose a fractured match to illustrate my meaning. I left the strapping on for five weeks, as I did not know how long a small bird's leg takes to unite. I think it is probably less than this time.

H. GERALD YEO, M.B.

The Sensational Hybrid of the Year.

Sir,—The owner having thrown down the gauntlet and threatened dire punishment to those who dare to question the genuineness of the reputed variegated Canary Bullfinch may have been the cause of the appearance of the two letters published in last week's CAGE BIRDS. Both letters convey the impression that the writers are fully convinced in their own minds that this bird is in reality a partial Albino Greenfinch-Bullfinch Hybrid, which opinion is shared by a large number of experienced fanciers. Mr. Alexander states that at the Scottish National Show his Goldie Bullie just missed the money by the wholesale honours given to Canary Bullies, and yet, according to his own showing, they were apportioned as follows:—Canary Bullie 1st, Redpoll-Bullie 2nd, Greenie Bullie 3rd, Canary-Bullie 4th, Greenie-Bullie 5th, Goldie-Bullie 6th. I examined the Goldie-Bullies and found that the biggest and best coloured bird was cardless, but had no difficulty in discovering that the flight feathers of one wing were only half grown. Further comment is needless. The owner of the sensational Hybrid has got angry now that not less than thrice, one judge has dared to give it just third. He has written to the Fancy Press and "said things," and solemnly vowed that that judge shall ne'er more see his rarity. Others should take due warning by that judge's awful fate! They must on every occasion give first to such a rare bird, or they will ruin their reputation.

DUNCAN MACSAFTY.

Sir,—I see you are not ashamed of your country, "Scottie." Why should you be ashamed of your own name? I never write to nondescripts. I am writing mainly to let the many fanciers know that the White Rose will not be at the Palace. As I expected, he has knocked some flight feathers out. I never intended to interfere with the Scottish National Committee, as that show is the best worked show in the world. I would sooner visit that show than any other when convenient. It would be a great help, and something for exhibitors to do, if the Palace Show Committee would adopt the same method as Scottish National, seeing that the show won't be opened until three o'clock, to have a board outside the show, and put up the numbers of various classes as they are judged. They have plenty of capable men who no doubt would be glad of the job. It could yet be done this year. I agree with the judge, "Scottie," in only awarding my Canary-Bullie second at Guildford Show, he tells you why in his report it was soiled. This was the foundation of my complaint. If anyone thinks they can prove the bird in question is not what I represent it to be my challenge of Dec. 6 is open to anyone. I was pleased to have so many congratulatory letters from the North on my success with the White Rose at Sunderland Show. The secretary writes, letter enclosed:—"Your Canary-Bullie caused quite a stir at our show, and it will be quite gratifying to you to know that the local fanciers at least were quite satisfied that it was all it was represented to be. Each of our three judges was also satisfied."

Proposed Amalgamation of Societies in Aberdeen.

Sir,—A meeting of fanciers was held in the Trades Hall, Aberdeen, on January 20 for the purpose of discussing a proposal to amalgamate the four existing societies, viz., Aberdeen, Granite City, Bon-accord, and Woodside. Mr. John Hector, President of the Aberdeen Society, was called to the chair, and in an introductory speech briefly outlined the scheme. Considerable discussion took place on some of the points raised, but on the whole the feeling of the meeting was entirely in favour of the proposal. It was arranged that the societies concerned should each hold a meeting of their respective members within the next fortnight, so that they might have an opportunity of voting for or against amalgamation. A further meeting will be held in the Trades Hall (Room 4), February 10, at 8 p.m., for the purpose of receiving reports, and considerations of any further proposals. It is hoped that the members of all societies will attend this meeting.

JAS. G. MILNE.

That Won't Come Off.

Sir,—Will some kind fancier please tell me the best sort of paint to use in an outside aviary. I have used some best water paint, but it always comes off on your clothes. Spring cleaning being close on us, I want to make a start. Wishing all a successful season.

MASON.

London Federation of Cage Bird Societies.

Sir,—The above [illegible] constructed, and the [illegible] to send you a copy of its rules and objects, for your information or for publication, should you consider it of sufficient interest to your readers. It is thought the small subscription fee fixed, which shall be the limit of each society's liability, should be the means of inducing the majority of the societies in the Metropolitan Police area to join, and by doing so assist in promoting the best interests of the Fancy.

J. C. BIRCH, Hon. Sec.

RULES AND REGULATIONS.

(1) That the title be the "London Federation of Cage Bird Societies."

(2) That the objects of the Federation be to constitute a Court of Appeal to decide questions or disputes put before them by the affiliated societies or their members or member, and take such action as may be considered best in the interest of the Cage Bird Fancy.

(3) That the council shall consist of two representatives of each affiliated society, who shall elect its officers annually from its own members as follows: Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Secretary, and Treasurer.

(5) Upon receipt of a stated complaint either from an affiliated society or a member, the secretary shall, within fourteen days, summon a meeting of the Council to consider the matter, five members to form a quorum. Representatives of a society concerned in a dispute may enter into the discussions, but shall not vote on the case.

(6) That a trophy shall be provided by subscription or otherwise for annual inter-club competition, such competition to be held in conjunction with one of the affiliated societies' shows. Competitors to pay a small entrance fee and receive no prize money. Members of a society at whose show the competition is held to stay their exhibits which will compete in the competition classes.

(7) That an annual balance sheet, duly audited, and report, be furnished to the Council at the annual general meeting.

The Three Wild-caught Liverpool Hybrids.

Sir,—I notice Mr. J. W. Cutmore, writing in CAGE BIRDS of wild caught Hybrids, says: The question that suggests itself is, were these Hybrids produced in the wild state? He has doubts about it. I don't think myself that the existence of a wild-bred Hybrid has ever been proved. Numerous instances of Hybrids being caught have come to my notice, but the most reasonable conclusion is that they have escaped, or have been set free. I well remember some thirty years ago a discussion on the subject in one of the poultry journals. (There was no CAGE BIRDS then, or any paper devoted to cage-birds. One of the writers was a Dr. Greene, who always concluded his article with a statement. It appeared so often that I learnt it by heart, and it always recurs to me when the subject is broached. It was thus:—"There was no wild-bred Hybrids: there never were, and never will be; nature forbids it. Only under the domination of man are they produced, and Nature marks her abhorrence of them by stamping them with sterility."

W. W. WATSON.

No Trouble at York.

So that's All Right.

Sir,—I was surprised when I saw my letter in CAGE BIRDS under the heading "What's the Trouble?" Now, Sir, this letter has caused the sparks to fly, and the secretary has written me that he wishes you to withdraw the statement. It's wonderful how mole-heaps are made mountains, but to save friction with the members, would you kindly withdraw the letter, which I am sorry you ever put in your paper, and allow the matter to drop? There is, I assure you, nothing wrong with our society, which has just ended a most enjoyable and prosperous year, and things work very smoothly, but, of course, one will always find that where a number of persons are concerned all are not unanimous.

E. BARRY DREW.

Birds in Paper Bags.

Sir,—Under the above heading your correspondent, Mr. C. Crabb, says why not? Common decency and humanity forbids any man with the least spark of feeling or consideration for his birds to carry them in paper bags. He speaks of money and brains. I suggest he has neither, or when buying birds he would spend another 3d. or 6d. in a travelling cage instead of doing the bird a 1s. worth of harm to save 3d. No brains in that. That is where the law ought to step in. Wilful cruelty: it is nothing less. I have kept birds for 40 years for pleasure, not profit. I have a good few now, mostly in aviaries, not bag birds. He has nothing to boast of; rather the reverse. Some folk have no sense of feeling except for themselves.

The Shows.

STRATHBOGIE P.P. AND C.B.A.

Annual show held Stewart's Hall, Huntly, Jan 8. The hall is of a good size and well lighted from the sides. This is a fresh start for the society, and we hope it will now keep going. Forty five classes were provided for cage birds with an entry of 109. The birds were staged down one side of the hall on the three-tier style, but the tiers were rather too close. The show was fairly well patronised. The arrangements were well carried out by the courteous and obliging sec., Mr. A. Dutton, who was ably backed up by a hard working committee of true lancers. Mr. R. Gordon judged, and his awards were well received.

NORTHAMPTON (Hand-in-Hand) C.B.S.

28th annual show held Old House at Home, Dec. 26-27. The exhibition was a record success, both in respect of entries—nearly 300—and quality. There was a capital attendance of visitors. Mr. W. H. Butlin, vice-consul for Spain, the esteemed president of the society, opened the show, and congratulated the committee on the success of their enterprise. He referred to the progress the society had made since he had been president, and hoped the trophy he had given, a handsome case of cutlery, for the exhibitor gaining the highest number of points—would have the effect of encouraging the interest of fanciers. Mr. W. Tomes, J.P., also made a few apt remarks, and a cordial vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Butlin and Mr. Tomes. The excellent arrangements were made by the following energetic officials, with Mr. A. W. Law as the hardworking and courteous sec.: chair, S. G. Ette; vice, A. Burrows; treas., A. E. Dunkley; committee, W. Jeyes, W. Munday, C. Gray, and J. Boswell. Mr. W. H. Howe, Wellingborough, judged.

AYR.

Annual show held in Wallace Town Hall, Dec. 12. Entries were a few up on former years. The hall is an admirable one for a show, and was nicely heated; unfortunately, the electric light failed in the afternoon, and this greatly affected the gate. Mr. Aitken had everything in apple-pie order, and but for the light all went well. Mr McMecking judged, and his awards were well received.

FORFAR.

Forty-third annual show held in Reid Hall, Jan. 1, 2. The birds were, as usual, staged in an upstairs room, which was all that could be desired as to comfort, etc. The show is held under the patronage of the Earl of Strathmore, Provost Moffat, Major General Alexander A. A. Kinloch, Logie, and many well-known people of the district. Secretary Alex. Low had everything in grand order, and was ably assisted by Mr. Jas. Fyffe. Entries scarcely totalled last year's number, Canaries being down a little, while Brit. Mules and Foreign were slightly on the increase. Judges were: Nor., Mr. W. D. Milne, Montrose; Bord., Henry Wilson, Bannockburn; Brit., Mule and Foc., Geo. McArdle, Arbroath, who appeared to give general satisfaction.

GUILDFORD.

Annual show, held Jan. 13, 14, Borough Hall. Entries were much below last year's figures, all the open classes for champion Norwich and Yorks. having to be cancelled. The novice birds that were on view were particularly good. Mr. Cook's yell. cock, and Mr. Prior's buff being good enough for any competition. The show this year was held in a much better hall than the last, exhibits being capitally staged in the gallery at the warmest end, free from draughts. Everything was nicely managed, and the lord received every attention from the stewards, Messrs. Killick and Prior. Sec., Mr. E. Stevens, had everything in the order. The feature of the show was the fine collection of Hybrids, which attracted a good deal of attention from visitors. Mr. S. Robson judged.

YORKS., YELL (10): 1, 3, c, Cook, wing lkd., grand length, shade flat on head, but wonderful shoulders and length of wing, beautifully drawn and cut away, wins, 3rd, grand length, well up on leg, fails a bit in wing; nice smooth front, good shoulders, sound con.; 2, hc, Cooper, smart and lengthy, hardly so neat in wing car., good head and shoulders, neat tail, best of qual., mkd. head and wings; vhc, Whiting. BUFF (1): 1, Prior, smart bird, grand pos., lovely type, full of "swank," good head, shoulders, and back, smart wings and tail, fine quality; 2, vhc, Cooper, paler col., beauty for type and length, neat head, grand back, smooth as bottle all round, grand length of wings, in the pink, must have pressed; 3, Pinicox, stylish and breedy, grand length of leg, beautifully cut away, neat head, good shoulders; hc, c, Cook. UNFLIG. (11): 1, Prior, neck and wing lkd., good head, grand shoulders and back, smooth front, tightly braced wings, sound col. and qual., rare fettle; 2, Cook, smart yell., grand type, well up on leg, neat wings, nicely cut away, good col. and qual.; 3, hc, Holburn, very smart butt, nice length and style, well filled in all round, grand wings and tail, tight as wax; vhc, Cooper; c, Whiting. LIGHT HYB. (5): 1, 2, Lamb, lightly mkd. Goldie, capital shape and style, rich blaze, good sound col. throughout, lovely con., 2nd, we liked equally as well, wing mkd., lovely shape, tight as wax; 3, Olle, very shapely, variegs. Linnet, beautifully proportioned, in the pink of condition; vhc, Carter. DARK (5): 1, Parlett, Greenie, grand size and shape, rather dark in col., but lovely qual. of feather, in fine fettle; 2, Lamb, bonny Goldie, grand size, good flush of col., both in face and wings, in fine order; 3, vhc, Smith, smart Siskin, capital size and shape, nicely mkd., wonderful col. and rare qual. of feather; vhc, Mrs. Nicholin. A.O.V. (15): 1, Howick, well-known Can.-Bullie, grand size and shape, might be a bit hotter in col., but a beauty for qual. and con.; 2, Parlett, the much discussed Hybrid, not in the condition it was when last out, we thought it somewhat lucky to win over; 3, vhc, hc, Lamb, Greenfinch-Chaffie, lovely exhibit, in the pink of condition, as also was the vhc, Greenf.-Bullie, almost faultless, an attractive cross, that seemed somewhat unlucky here. LOCAL: 1, vhc, Edgington, leader typical buff Yorks., nice length and style, very good con.; 2, Carter, Goldie.-Can., capital size, very shapely, good rich blaze, densely mkd., fine con.; 3, Bookham, very steady Skylark, nice shape, well mkd., in fine plumage; hc, Pope; c, Killick.

A DUTCH CANARY SHOW.

INTERESTING EXHIBITION AT THE HAGUE.

Specially reported for "Cage Birds" by C. A. HOUSE.

Very nicely staged were the exhibits in the Cage Bird section of the show held in the Grand Saloon of the Zoological Gardens at the Hague, Jan. 9, 10, and 11. The society, under whose auspices the show is held, is known as Nederlandsche Vereeniging Avicultura, and it is the oldest society in Holland, holding exhibitions for the different branches of aviculture. Her Majesty the Queen-Mother is its patron, and it is managed by a committee of gentlemen engaged in promoting the interests of aviculture in various forms. The Cage Bird section is generally the smallest. On this occasion it was somewhat smaller than usual, as the large number of beautiful and rare foreign birds, which one has spent much time amongst in other years, were conspicuous by their absence. Mr. D. W. Molhuysen, the secretary, is a most admirable organiser, and one of the most tactful and genial of officials. One thing which strikes a visitor to this show is the wonderful courtesy shown by all the officials, from Mr. J. M. Vas Visser, the president, down to the paid assistants. Mr. W. J. M. De Bas, the ex-president, takes the greatest interest in our section of the show, and is a large exhibitor in the most interesting classes.

The first class, Dutch Frills, contained fourteen exhibits, none of them so large as the birds which we see exhibited here in England. In shape, style, and feather they are, of course, similar, but it seems strange that here in the land of their origin the Dutch Frills are not equal to those owned and shown by the few English breeders who are interested in the breed. Mr. T. Aubac, of Paris, won 1st and 2nd in the class with a pied yellow and a buff, grandly feathered birds of splendid shape and style, while the third ticket fell to Mr. Leenwen, of Utrecht, who is Holland's largest breeder of the variety I am told. Mr. Virhees was the only exhibitor of the Belgian Canary, and his two representatives were a remarkably fine yellow, a bird of grand shape and position, and a very nervy tkd. buff.

German show Canaries have an extensive classification—Gele (yellow), Groene (Green), Fenillemorte (Cinn.), Bonte (Pied), and Gekuifde (Crests). In Gele the winner was shown by Mr. Bloys Van Treslong, and a sweet little bird it was. As I looked at it and handled it I could not but think how much more it resembled the standard of the Border Canary Club than do the present-day Borders. It was a lovely, tight-feathered, slim, graceful little chap. Mr. Molhuysen came second with a very neat feathered, but not quite so slim, bird. Mr. Leeuwen came next. In Groene, Mr. Van der Borden secured 1, 2, and vhc, with a trio of grandly coloured birds of beautiful feather. Other awards fell to Helder, Leeuwen, and Molhuysen. Mr. Van der Borden won in Fenillemorte with a very pretty, fine feathered bird. In the Bonte or variegated class Mr. Molhuysen won with a sweetly pretty Cinn-marked yell., very tight in feather, bright in colour, and of good shape; Mr. Van Leeuwen came second with a bonnie buff. The Gekuifde, or Crested Germans, are very quaint-looking little things. Curiously enough, instead of crouching, because of their crest, they hold themselves more erect than their plainheaded brethren. Mr. Bloys Van Treslong won, and he was followed by Van Leeuwen and Van der Borden.

Lancashires were a good class, so far as the shape and carriage of the exhibits were concerned. Van Leeuwen won with a very smart yell., with a neatly formed, well spread, coppy; Wilson coming second with a very stylish, nice shaped yell. plainhead. Van Leeuwen won in Crested Norwich with a bold, massive, well feathered green pied. Plainhead, or Gladkop, Norwich had fifteen entries, the best class in the show, and Mr. Wilson stood 1, 2, 3, with a lovely trio of yellows, birds of superb colour and quality, short and compact in wings and tail, and chubby in head and body. Mr. Van Leeuwen followed close up. In Cinnamons the same order was followed. In clear Yorks. Mr. Van Leeuwen took the prizes, leaving only bare honours for Mr. Wilson. The leader was a very smart, stylish; fine feathered yell., but I thought au unnoticed buff of Mr. Wilson's much the most typical bird in the class.

In Greens Mr. Wilson won with a lovely yellow; but in the cinn. and variegs. classes Mr. Van Leeuwen captured all the money. Mr. Wilson had the Lizards to himself, and in the three classes for Borders he took the greater share of the prizes. I much admired his winning yellow and his winning Bonte or pied yellow. Mr. Leeuwen's first green was very nice.

Mr. de Bas won with a nice light Goldf.-Canary in the Mules. Mr. Polvliet's winning Goudvinken, or Bullfinch, was a beauty. Mr. Molhuysen won with a nice Goldie, the Dutch name for which is Putter. Wonderfully interesting was the class for Pieds and Albinos. Mr. de Bas won with a very handsome White Blackbird. Its bill and ceres were lovely orange, and its body colour a pure white; 2nd was a very handsome Spangled Cinnamon Starling, of grand size and feather; 3rd an almost White Linnet, a very large bird of excellent shape and good clean colour. Other exhibits in the class were a Cinnamon and White Redpoll, a White Greenfinch, a Cinnamon Twite, a Cinnamon Blackbird, a White Yellow Bunting, and an almost White Sparrow. The class for Uitlandsche Vogels, or birds out of Holland, was very poor compared to last year. On that occasion it contained the finest selection of Foreign Thrushes I have ever seen. This year there was only one entry, to which 1st was awarded, a very hand-some pair of White Jackdaws. Fine large birds, they were of excellent colour and feather. Mr. Brand won in both the collections of Foreign Finches and Canaries.

There was a large number of specials, of which Mr. H. F. Brand won 2, Mr. J. G. Bloys Van Treslong 1, Mr. J. Van der Borden 2, Mr. D. W. Molhuysen 1, Mr. R. A. Wilson 5, Mr. W. A. Van Leeuwen 4, and Mr. W. J. M. de Bas 2. Comparing this show with others I have seen in past years at The Hague, I am led to the conclusion that the Cage Bird Fancy is not progressing as are the kindred fancies of Poultry, Pigeons, and Rabbits, all of which are going ahead rapidly. It is difficult to explain why this should be, because so far as I know the habits of Dutchmen and Englishmen are much alike, and the Cage Bird Fancy is going ahead at tremendous speed in England.

The Roller competition, or, as it is called in Holland, the "Kanarie-Zang-Wedstrijd," contained 238 entries in eight classes. These were all in the single bird competition, which was won by J. B. Van Okkeren; 2, G. J. Schaafsma. The pair class had 21 entries: 1st, H. Van de Ven; 2nd, W. Maas; 3rd, J. H. H. Wijands. The third class was for quartets, and here there were 17 entries. 1st fell to Dr. W. C. Kleyn; 2nd, Adr. Harsten; 3rd, H. Van de Ven. Class 4 was also for quartets, the prizes going to G. C. Lauermann, J. Van der Meer, and J. B. Van Gelfen. Class 5 was for single birds bred in 1913, and the winners were S. Meetsma, A. H. Mayen, and W. C. Trumpie. The sixth class was for pairs of young birds, and here H. Van Nimwegen won 1st and 2nd, H. Heyligers coming 3rd.

CRAGHEAD (Workmen's Club) F. AND F.S.

First annual show held Jan. 17 in Club Hall, a nice place for the purpose. Entries numbered seventy; quality throughout was very nice, Borders being about the best, although Norwich and Crest classes contained several nice birds. British made a very nice display and some capital specimens were staged. The genial and obliging secretary, Mr. Alf. Dawson had everything well in hand, all his arrangements being carried through without the slightest hitch. He was ably assisted in his duties by Mr. J. H. Elliott, while Mr. J. Anderson and several other members also worked hard during the show. Special best in show went to Mr. T. Elliott with a very nice clean body Grey Crest. The show was well patronised, and there is every prospect of its being a financial success. Mr. W. Reid, Sunderland, judged.

EAST STANLEY SOCIAL CLUB.

A glorious wind up of the show season in West Stanley and District was the first annual show held Jan. 16-17. The birds were staged in the Lecture Room of the club, a very suitable place for a show, being large and lofty and at a nice heat, well lighted, and free from draughts. The entry, about 170, was very good for a first show, and the birds were staged to perfection, some well-known winners being amongst them. Mr. J. Kilgallon, sec., ably assisted by Mr. W. Robinson, sec. of Stanley Victoria Club, got through the arduous duties without the least mistake. This society is to be congratulated on having two such very capable fanciers at the head of affairs. They were ably assisted by a grand body of fanciers: Chairman Mr. Jackson, Messrs. M. Hall, J. Colvert, J. Taylor, W. Armitage, J. Purvis, and W. Elliott. Mr. R. Peart won special for best hen in show, and Mr. T. Curry best British. Mr. J. Emmerson, Stanley, judged, and his awards were well received.

SOFTBILL (4): 1, 2, 3, Atherton, Song Thrush, shown in grand trim, 2nd Missel Thrush, plenty of size, not looking as fit as we have seen him, 3rd Blackbird, dense colour, nice feather, very steady. FOR. (6): 1, Elliott, Gold-breasted Waxbills, beauties; 2, Siddell, Grey Parrot, very tight feather; 3, Mitchell, Zebra Finches.

HONLEY F.S.

31st Annual show, held Jan. 10, in Mills' Dining Hall, a very nice room. The birds were staged in one part of the room, free from draughts, and with plenty of light, and proved a great attraction to the visitors. Mr. Castle, and others acted as stewards, along with Sec., Mr. J. T. Hinchcliffe, and had everything in nice order. Mr. M. Peel, Skelmanthorpe, judged, and his awards were well received.

CL., ETC., YELL.: 1, vhc, sp., best Yorks. ck., Mosley, cl. unflighted, nice length, grand type, good head and shoulders, nicely carried wings and tail, a gem; 2, c, Brown Bros., tkd. head, teeming with quality, good col., well filled neck, grand wedge-shape, well up, true Yorks.; 3, vhc, Charlesworth, tkd., paler in col., good wings and tail, nice pos., close up. DUDMIRE C.B.S.

Third annual show, held Dec. 13, in the Club Hall, a grand place for a show. There were about 160 exhibits, and a grand display they made. Mr. Geo. Lynn makes a capital sec., has everything well in hand, and is well backed by a hard-working committee. There were some nice specials: best young bird was won by Mr. Bisset with a grand young Green Crest; 2nd, J. Atkinson, a nice yell. mkd. Nor., grand col. and type. Some real nice Yorks. made their appearance, and this promises to be a hot-bed for them in the near future. Mr. A. J. Notley judged, and seemed to give general satisfaction.

CODNOR PARK AND EASTWOOD C.B.S.

Fourth annual exhibition held Nov. 29, with a capital entry, both in numbers and quality, in Assembly Room, Three Tuns Inn, Eastwood. Entries numbered 150, and among them were some of the best in the Midlands. British classes were well filled, and the exhibits were of fine quality, the Greenfinches especially. Mr. E. Fox, Long Eaton, judged. The show was a great success, thanks to the energies of the committee, and the hard working joint secretaries (Messrs. Smith and Lees), who desire to acknowledge their gratitude to all donors of special prizes.

BRADFORD EAST O.S.

Final members' show of season, held Park Chapel Schools, West Bowling, Dec. 27. 66 birds faced the judges, Messrs. T. and L. Ogden, Bradford. The shows for the year have not brought together as many birds as in previous years, the only redeeming feature being the high standard of excellence in Yorks. Competition has been hardly as keen as usual although some keenness has crept in the later shows on account of several competitors being near a level for certain positions. Final placings for the year are: Champ., J. Northrop 101 points, S. Midgley 65, G. White 58, W. Laycock 67, W. Stables 57. Nov., S. Woad 113, G. R. Rushworth 89, Taylor Bros 69, W. Myers 63, W. Walker 59. Selling, S. Midgley 23, H. H. Clark 16. At this show winners of most points in their sections were S. Midgley, Wilkinson Bros., W. Laycock, S. Woad, Taylor Bros., W. Myers, and H. H. Clark. The judges' awards gave every possible satisfaction.

CLOTH THAT WEARS LIKE LEATHER.

A marvellous hobproof cloth that will not tear, and yet looks exactly like the finest tweeds and serges, has been discovered by the Holeproof Clothing Co., 94, Theobald's Road, London, W.C. They make from these wonderful cloths a well-cut man's suit for only 15s. 9d., breeches 6s., or a pair of well fitting trousers for 4s. 6d., and if a hole appears within six months another pair is given. See advertisement on page 82, and write for patterns, etc.

REDCAR C.B.S.

First annual show, held Jan. 1, Cleveland Hall, a most suitable place, well lighted, and comfortable. Mr. W. Rand, Middlesbrough, judged, and his awards gave everybody satisfaction. Entries totalled 79, and quality was all that could be desired. Norwich, although not filling well, contained many birds of merit. The weather was all against a good gate, but the show will prove successful, thanks to those members who sold a good number of tickets, and those who sent a good entry.

HYSON GREEN C.B.S.

Final show of the season at headquarters "The Cricket Players," Dec. 13, entries did not come up to expectations, the inevitable result of the high quality now obtained by several members, but one hears of determination on the part of these behind to improve their stock and take part in the sport. Silver cups for most points obtained by four nominated birds at each of the three shows were won by Hayter, Brit.; White, Crest; and Boaler, Norwich. The two first named have now earned the cups with three wins each, but Norwich cup has changed hands after a stern fight, three points covering the first three contestants; runners-up Messrs. Bown and Sharpe. Generous fanciers presented five prizes for gift class, birds being sold for benefit of society funds. Mr. T. Pyatt again rendered the society yeoman service by his talented exposition of the auctioneering art. Mr. J. Goode judged in a highly satisfactory manner.

PETER AND TIMOTHY

Told by DYDDGU HAMILTON.

A Tale of a Schoolboy and a Coal-Tit.

ON his way home from school one Saturday afternoon, as Peter was passing Miss Töpffer's house he perceived that lady coming down the steps in company with a young gentleman unknown to Peter. His attention was at once arrested by the fact that they were both anxiously regarding a small grey object which seemed to move and flutter in the young man's partly closed hand. Peter, whose curiosity was aroused, was accordingly pleased when he heard Miss Töpffer remark "There is the little boy I was telling you about; he is quite a bird-fancier already."

The lady smiled and held out her hand, while the gentleman, without waiting for any further introduction, addressed Peter directly. "I am starting back to the States to-morrow," he said, "and I don't know what to do with my little bird, as I should be unable to procure food for him on the voyage. I would set him free, but he has only one leg; not long ago I rescued him from a trap in a friend's garden."

Peter looked at the bird, who with his black head feathers erect was hissing gently, while with great vigour he pecked at his captor's fingers. He was a tiny bird, but seemed far more fierce than frightened. Peter thought. "Please let me keep him," said Peter, "my home is quite near." The bird's owner readily agreed, and they two went on together, while Miss Töpffer turned back.

A Housing Problem.

"Where shall we put him?" asked Peter, when he had ushered his new friend, still carrying the bird, into the schoolroom of his own house. "We really haven't a cage to spare since the young Bengalese and Cutthroats were separated from their parents."

"If your mamma would not mind, I think Timothy would be happier loose in there," said the American, looking through the French window into the green-house. "He will do no harm to the flowers, but will rather benefit them by eating the greenfly which is sure to infest them sooner or later. He will find spiders and earwigs too, besides other natural food, and that will save you much trouble in catering for him in a cage."

"Mamma won't mind his being loose," said Peter. "But what ought we to give him in addition to what he can find for himself?" "Ants' eggs, and bread and milk made fresh at breakfast and tea-time, and hemp seed. But you must crack the hemp-seed by rolling an empty bottle, or a rolling-pin over it. If he had both his feet Timothy could manage very well by himself, holding the seed under one foot while he pecked and hammered a hole into it with his bill."

From the Continent.

As he was speaking, the American had opened his hand, and little Timothy fluttered off, and sat on the edge of a flower-pot, smoothing and preening his ruffled plumage. Peter noticed that his head and throat were glossy black; he had white cheeks and a white patch on the nape of his neck. The rest of his upper parts were slaty blue, while underneath he was greyish-white. His eyes were brown and very bright, and his beak was black, short and sharp pointed. "He is a Continental Coal-Tit," remarked Peter, "the British bird has a browner back. How clever he is at catching flies!" For Timothy had hopped up to the glass, and with great agility was pecking off and swallowing the flies that buzzed thereon.

Peter now waited the return of his mother and sisters from the flower show to which they had been invited.

The minutes dragged slowly on until suddenly a bright idea struck Peter. "Ants' eggs, that gentleman said, are the right food for Timothy, and only the other day I noticed an immense ant-hill in the larch spinney at the bottom of the hotel garden. There are sure to be plenty of eggs in it, and I shall have heaps of time to fetch some before mamma comes home." Without another thought Peter snatched up his cap and an empty milk can which stood just inside the kitchen door. "This is better than a basket," said Peter to himself. "However small the eggs are they won't fall through."

Peter soon reached the place, and he began turning over the ants' mound of dry fine needles and twigs, hoping to find some of their tiny white cocoons. Some indeed he did see, but they were always in the jaws of the ants, who ran hither and thither with them in the greatest possible excitement. Ants ran up Peter's arms and legs, they swarmed all over him, and bit and stung till he could bear it no longer. Hastily filling his can with fragments of nest, ants, eggs, and anything he could scrape into it, Peter shut the lid down tight and ran home. Under the schoolroom table he spread a newspaper and emptied upon it the whole contents of his can, which he then restored to its place in the kitchen.

The Cook lodges a Complaint.

Peter had just finished telling his mother about his new bird when there was a knock at the door, and without waiting to be told to "come in" cook opened it a little way and said: "I can't lay tea in the school-room, mum; it is that smothered with emmets running on the table and all over over the place." "What has happened? Where can they have come from?" asked Peter's mother, annoyed and astonished. "Master Peter could tell that better than I," answered cook, looking crossly at Peter.

"I know nothing whatever about them. I never even heard of such things," said Peter, indignantly. "It was you who took the milkcan, for I myself saw you do it, Master Peter," retorted cook, "and some of the horrid critturs are clinging to it still." "Peter," said his mother, sternly, "I knew that you were mischievous, but I did not think you were untruthful. Go up to your room instantly, and go to bed."

When his mother spoke like that Peter knew it was no good to attempt any explanation just then. Therefore he went to his room and undressed, but he did not get into bed, though he turned down the counterpane ready to slip in between the sheets if he heard anyone coming. But Peter felt greatly injured. "I didn't tell a lie," said he to himself. "How was I to know that cook meant ants when she said emmets? Besides, I was very careful to put them and their nest on to a newspaper."

Smarting under a sense of injustice, Peter went to the window and looked out. Right in front of it was a sloping lawn, and half-way up this was a little terraced rose-garden supported by a wall loosely made of bricks and turfs. As Peter looked towards this wall his heart gave a jump. "Surely they cannot have been so cruel as to turn out Timothy," he thought. But there, sure enough, was a Coal-tit, perched on a turf. It held something in its beak, and appeared to give a hasty look round before it disappeared into a hole low down in the wall.

Peter's Great Discovery.

Peter watched it in and out several times before he felt certain that it had two legs, and could not therefore be Timothy. But it was evident that the Titmouse had its nest and was feeding its young in the house. And quick as thought Peter was out on the flat roof of the porch and had climbed down its trellised side to the lawn. The entrance hole was so tiny that even Peter's small hand could not pass through to reach the nest. But he had soon loosened and removed a brick, for no mortar had been used to bind them together. Then, at the end of a short passage he saw a beautiful soft nest of moss, hair and feathers, all felted compactly together, and lined inside with more feathers to make it very warm. Six fluffy baby birds opened their yellow beaks and stared at Peter in dismay.

"Why, Master Peter, what a turn you did give me! I thought you was a ghost standing there all in white," said cook, as she came round the corner from the larder. "Put that brick back in its place and run up to bed again like a good boy. If you come through the kitchen way I will give you a jam sandwich for your tea, and you can go up the back stairs to your room." For cook had a kind heart, and she was sorry to have been the cause of Peter's punishment.

A GLIMPSE OF THE EXCELLENT ANNUAL MEMBERS' SHOW HELD BY THE HORNSEY AND WOOD GREEN C.B.S.

BY JOHN BARLEYCORN.

I SUPPOSE I had better say a word about panels, for readers are sure to ask how could we make draught-proof panels out of any spare wood we chanced to have. I happened to have been in the East years ago, and I saw how Chinese carpenters made rain-proof roofs out of small square pieces of teak wood, and we worked on the same principle. We laid the first pieces of wood flat on the table, and on top of these we laid another layer of wood in such a way that the cracks of the bottom layer were covered by the planks of the second and stuck these two layers together with glue. When they had dried we laid another layer of wood over these two, so that the cracks of the last layer came on the planks of the next layer, stuck them in position with a little glue and joined the three layers together with wooden pegs, and there we had a good three-ply panel. It meant work and trouble getting them the right size, but we managed to make a fairly good job for novices. And now came the real work of something after the style shown in the illustration on page 613, Jan. 10.

Three feet at the end were for the house, and 6ft. for the flight. On Saturday afternoon we had the framework set up, and some of the house built, and for the next week we worked at it whenever we had an hour to spare. I must admit we had no fancy doors about it, one 3ft. section in the flight was a rough door, and the lower panel in the house was another, through which we could just manage to crawl, and it was only by very carefully watching the birds that we could ever get in or out. We had a job getting the uprights fixed in position, but by building bricks in round the base we managed to make them fairly strong. Then came the wire netting which, of course, we had to buy. This netting we nailed over the front, and there we had some sort of an aviary, nothing very elaborate, but good enough for a novice to start with. The roof was not a success the first year, as it leaked a bit, but the second year I bought some old canvas, nailed it over the whole length, and gave it two coats of paint, which kept out the rain splendidly.

The First Choice.

The next question was what were we to stock our aviary with, and what do you think was the first bird I bought? A hen Canary for half a crown! We still have her, and a great old bird she is. It is true that some years she looks as if she were only fit for the Old Age Pension, but last year I paired her up with a young cock, and she laid two eggs (one of which was clear), and hatched out one young one. Then the wife took her in hand during the moult, colour-fed her, and now she is looking as sleek and fresh as a two-year-old. The second bird I went in for was a cock Canary I cadged. The two of them paired up, and at the end of the season I had two cocks and four hens.

It was not a splendid way of starting aviculture, but it gave me the idea of the thing, and I had a little experience to start with next year. I have often thought since about the pleasure I used to get out of that aviary in the summer evenings, and few men with well-fitted bird-rooms and £10 hens have experienced the satisfaction we felt when the hen hatched out a sitting. We had all sorts of birds in that aviary, a Linnet I bought for fourpence, a Thrush the next door neighbours rescued from a cat, an old cock Sparrow which had to be liberated on account of his pugnacious ways, and I think I can safely say most of the commoner British birds during the two years we lived in that house.

How did it Pay?

Readers will ask, "Did I make it pay?" Well, I must confess that financially it was not a success, but the pleasure we obtained out of our little feathered friends more than repaid the trouble and expense we had been put to in building our first aviary. Had I known as much about breeding as I do now, I am sure I could have made a little gold-mine out of it. The first year would not have brought in much profit, because I had not the money to spare to buy even moderate birds for a start, but with an aviary like the one we had, a pair of Norwich cocks at 5s. each, and a pair of hens at 3s. each, I feel sure we could have had at the end of the year a nice little balance in hand. But once we had a start made we seemed to think more of the pleasure of having a few birds flying about and hearing their joyful song than of making money out of our feathered friends.

The Time to Start.

Now is the time to start, and by next summer you could easily have made enough to pay for the material of the aviary, and have a nice little stock in hand. Weed out all the birds which you do not think are quite up to the mark, for there are always some that are weak in points, and by the beginning of the following spring you could have two or three pairs that will be good enough to breed saleable birds from. Or even try a hand at breeding mules, only be sure that your cocks are cage moulted birds. Don't be discouraged when you see the spacious well-fitted aviaries that some men are lucky enough to have, try and build one on a small scale to suit your pocket, and only go in for two or three pairs. I only wish we had a small yard now where I could go in for the hobby again, but now I have to be content with breeding cages, and the effect is not at all the same. I find we can breed much better birds, but I would sooner have our little friends do their breeding as Nature intended them to. Once you have heard the cock pouring out his love notes to his lady I am sure you will feel glad you first put your hand to work at building an aviary on the cheap.

Questions and Answers.

Queries will be answered under the following conditions:—

(1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and must conclude with either the correct name of querist or a pseudonym, or initials.

(2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query. In no case must the address appear on the query.

(4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.

(5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated in bold letters on the left-hand corner of the query.

(6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest. Queries will be dealt with in the order in which they are received, and only as space permits. The earlier queries are received the better attention they are likely to have.

(7)—Queries relating to illnesses of birds, except enquiries as to cause of death (for which see Post Mortems), will be answered by return of post on receipt of a postal order for sixpence and an addressed stamped envelope. Queries of an ordinary nature will be answered by post, if desired, on receipt of a postal order for one shilling and a stamped addressed envelope.

(8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence, otherwise their letters will not receive attention. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to to the "Referee's" Poor Childrens' Fund (London).

(9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Only queries so sent will be answered. Postcards are not admissible.

THE following gentlemen represent CAGE BIRDS as its ADVISORY EXPERTS. Queries must in each case be addressed to any of them individually, but to the Editor.

Canaries.—Claude St. John. Mules and Hybrids—H. Norman. British Birds—H. J. Fulljames. Foreign Birds—Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., Wild Bird Life—H. Norman.

NOTE.—If an answer is required concerning the proper mating, etc., of Norwich, Yorkshires, Crests, Cinnamons, Greens, Borders, Lizards, Scotch or any other variety of the Canary family, we shall, should the querist desire us to do so, be pleased to submit his questions for answer to some leading specialist of the day on the variety concerned.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

REQUISITES FOR A BEGINNING (A Possible Fancier, Kingstown).—To deal fully with your query in detail would necessitate the writing of a small handbook, of which the Editor already publishes several for just such beginners as you. What you want is a copy of "Canary Breeding for Beginners," which our manager would send you for 7d., post free. This little book starts from the bed-rock and tells you just what you want, and how to proceed from the very commencement. As regards cost, this naturally depends very much upon your tastes, and the quality and make of the appliances you start with. But it is as well to remember that in this case as in any other, it is the soundest economy to get well-made articles of good sound material in the beginning, even if they cost a little more. Briefly, if you wish to begin with, say, two pairs of birds, which may suffice should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Battye's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Dr. Cresswell's "Hygiene of Bird-keeping" (1/1); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Rumsden's "Colour-feeding" (3½d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2½d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

for the first year, you would want two single-breeding cages, fitted for breeding, or one double-breeding cage, ditto. These may cost anything from 3s. each for singles, or 5s. 6d. each for doubles, upwards. I should advise starting with single cages. Then it would be good policy to have one or two nursery cages, price about 2s. each, handy, in case they may be required to save young being plucked, and a fair sized flight cage, or one or two spare breeding cages to accommodate the young when they are taken away from their parents. You should make a point of getting all cages and appliances of a definite size and pattern, which will be a great convenience in future developments, and have all cages with loose wire fronts, for convenience in overhauling the insides when necessary. For prices of appliances generally, see our prepaid advt. columns. Begin with moderate quality birds at most for the first year. Two pairs of Rollers of the St. Andreasburg type, at about 10s. 6d. per pair, or if cost is a great consideration your could have one cock at about 8s. 6d., and two hens at 2s. 6d. each, would suit you nicely, and run the cock with both hens, as you may have often seen described in this column.

AN AILING COUPLE (Hopeful).—(1) Does the hen that appears to breathe through her nostrils do so continually, or is it only at intervals when you are doing anything about the cage? In the latter case it is probably nothing but nervousness, and of no importance. You could only deal with her as gently as possible at all times, and avoid giving her any shock or cause for sudden panic; in short, try to win her confidence. If the gaping is continuous, see that she is quite free from cold draughts, damp, or rapid and extreme changes of temperature. Give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion and four of sherry, well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days give twice each week a pinch of a mixture of equal parts millet, niger, linseed, teazle, and broken groats, and on two other days a morsel of banana. In the water dissolve as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence for three consecutive day, and afterwards give ten drops of glycerine, and five each of oxymel of squills and ipecacuanha wine every second day for a fortnight. If not then well, write again. (2) See that this bird is kept in bright and healthful conditions as mentioned in the last case. In addition to the staple of plain canary, give half a teaspoonful of summer rape every second day, and on the alternate days give a little sponge cake as advised for the hen three times a week for a month, and twice each week give a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, and teazle, and on two other days a morsel of banana. Also keep a little of the paste advised to "A.B." in last issue in the cage regularly for a montb or so.

ACCOMMODATION OF FLIGHT (A Collier Boy).—One cock and three hens is the utmost limit you can hope to breed with successfully in the flight in question. It might even be best not to risk more than two hens. In the latter case you should put in four nesting sites, and if you use three hens have at least six nesting places. If you can command a cock of known character have one that is not too meddlesome with the nesting arrangements of the hens, and who will not interfere with them whilst sitting, otherwise you may find that even with this small number of stock it is most difficult to get young reared successfully in these confined quarters. You could have made much more and better use of the same space by using breeding cages. Trust you will bave better luck the coming season. Do not hesitate to write us if you meet with any difficulty. It will be a pleasure to help you.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BREEDING WITH SIBERIAN GOLDFINCH (Novice).—I would advise you to run your Goldie with a couple of hen Canaries. You could let him fly with them until tbe montb of March, when it would be as well to separate them, putting them all into a three-compartment breeding cage, a hen each end, and the Goldie in the centre. When one of the hens is ready for nesting, you can run the Goldie in with her, sbutting him off at night when she is expected to lay, which you can generally tell by her looking mopey. If you leave him in, tbe chances are he will destroy the eggs before you are about in the morning. When one hen has laid three or four eggs, you can then shut him off entirely, putting in a wooden slide between them. By that time it is possible the other hen will be ready, when he can be allowed access to her. Remember, it is no use expecting fertile eggs from the Goldie until his beak is quite clear, and he slugs and shows off before the hen. (2) I fear you would not have much success if you attempted to breed in the way you suggest in a large flight, as the cock Canary would probably be the father of all the young ones. (3) I think the position you mention very suitable for a few birds.

LIGHT HYBRIDS (Mule Breeder).—Your cross-bred Canary is very suitable for the purpose you mention, but I would advise you not to rely too much upon what you are told about light muling strains. The fact of the hen being crossbred should discount some of her reputation. For instance, if you have a hen that has a tendency to throw light birds, it is by no means certain that her offspring will do so, especially if they are bred from a totally unrelated cock of another variety. If you wish to take a nest of Canaries from her before running her with a Goldfinch, you should procure a cock bird that is in some way related to her. It need not be a very close relationship, but it should be of the same strain. Be sure they are perfectly healthy before putting them together. I presume you bave been feeding your Goldie in the way we are constantly advising readers. You had better continue with this until the spring, when you will be able to gather a supply of seeding chickweed, groundsel and dandelion, both the young leaves and the seed pods. A liberal supply of these will soon bring him along. The hen will need no special treatment beyond a spoonful of mixed seed occasionally, and a little egg food, about twice a week.

LINNET-GREENFINCH CROSS (Hybredeur). — I think you can manage this cross if you have a little care and patience. Get all your birds as steady as possible, particularly the hens. Select the largest of the Greenfinch hens, and place her in with the cock Linnet, and put the smaller one in with tbe Redpoll. You need not interfere with them beyond running one occasionally into a small cage and gently handling it, talking to the bird and giving it a "tit-bit," so as to get it thoroughly steady. In April or May you can put in a wooden nest box or old German wicker cage, and give plenty of building materials, moss, short hay, hair, etc., or better still, old Greenlinch nests, if you can procure them. You could buy a young Norwich hen Canary for the cock Greenfinch that you have left over. These could fly together until March, when it would be as well to part them for a week or so, placing them in separate cages near each other. You should have a pair or two of common Canarics to incubate and rear the young Hybrids, as the Greenfinch hens cannot be relied upon to rear them, although in many cases they have been known to do so. It is as well to be prepared.

BREEDING IN AVIARY (W. G. Howard). — Your aviary would do admirably for the purpose you mention. You might try both Goldfinches in, and say four hen Canaries. If you want some young Canaries first, put in a cock Canary and take him out again as soon as the hens have all gone to nest, and when they have reared the young ones and show signs of wanting to nest again, you can introduce the Goldies. I would advise you to bang them in cages, either inside the aviary or close against it, previous to their being placed inside. Whatever you do, have plenty of nesting boxes or pans about, so that there is plenty of choice for the hens. If two select the same site, remove one at once to prevent quarrelling. If you have the Finches and Canaries in stock, let them fly together until March. The Finches will not be fit to breed from until the beak is clear.

FEEDING GREAT TITS (W.E.A.).—The Great Tits are not very difficult birds to cater for. They should have as a staple food a little good Insectile mixture fresh daily. They will freely eat hemp seed, which they hold with their feet, and hammer at with their beaks. Sunflower seed they treat in the same manner, and both of these are good for them. The Great Tit is partial to almost any kind of nuts, but these should, of course, be prepared for it by cracking and removing part of the shell, or giving it the kernel only. Two or three mealworms or other insects now and then will keep it in health. The Greater Tit is a very active bird, and requires a large cage to exercise in, one not less than eighteen inches in length. If not used as a stock cage, the bird should be allowed to have a fly in a large one occasionally.

THE GREENFINCH-BULLFINCH CROSS (Bird-keeper).—Providing you can manage to get your two birds fairly steady before the breeding season comes round, there is no reason why you should not try to breed from them. When you get them, keep them in small cages for a time, and handle them as much as possible, particularly the Bullie, as she is the most important, but as a rule they are not very difficult subjects to manage, so you should not have much trouble. After a time you could let them fly together in a big flight, or wherever you propose trying to breed with them. Hybrids from Greenfinch and Canary are generally bred from a Greenfinch cock and Canary hen, but there is no reason why you should not have a try the other way if you feel inclined to do so, as the hen Greenie is a free breeder as a rule. Respecting your other query, I am glad to hear your bird is progressing, but as I have lately answered several Linnet matters, I shall be glad if you will give me the date of the issue, and also the pseudonym you adopted, when I can, no doubt, advise you further.

CREATING A STRAIN (Patrick Kelly).—By mating your clear Norwich cock, which you call No. 3, to the Cinnamon marked hens, No. 1 and No. 2, you will probably breed green hens, that is, unless your cock bird has some Cinnamon blood in him. If you do, these hens would be invaluable for breeding Dark Hybrids, that is, providing they are large enough to produce large birds. They should be mated to Linnets in preference to Goldfinches. Anyway, you could proceed as you suggest, and if either of the hens, No. 1 and No. 2, throw you Hybrids with any light feathers in them, pair the hen Canaries produced from these two hens back to the father next year, as this will break up the green and give you variegated birds. Do not breed brother and sister together. You will only be stamping in the dark blood. I do not think it is possible to build up a strain the way you suggest, unless the hens show a tendeucy to throw light-feathered Hybrids.

LARK AND BLACKBIRD (Claude).—I will deal with the Lark first. Now these birds have been kept healthy and in song, on what to all appearance is the most unwholesome diet, so I am loth to tell you that the so-called German paste is the wrong food for them. Hundreds of Larks do well on ordinary insectile food, mixed with scraped raw carrot or boiled potato, and an occasional mealworm or two. The following food is somewhat similar to German paste, but does not contain the usual pea meal, which makes that concoction rather indigestible: ½-lb. wheat meal, ½-lb. barley meal (sifted), ¼-lb. oatmeal, 4 tablespoonfuls coarse sugar, 3 ozs. beef suet, 1 hard-boiled egg; mix, and place in the oven until sugar and lard are melted, stir until brown, place in jars to keep for use. Now I would advise you to give your bird a change, do not always feed him on quite the same mixture, select one as a staple food, and give him something different about twice a week. Crushed puppy biscuit, soaked, with a pinch of meat meal in it, could be given sometimes. Let him have a little canary seed and shelled oats in a pot, or scattered on the floor. Occasionally offer him a sprig of watercress or other green food. The long runner cage is the best to keep him in. (2) The puppy biscuit mixture answers admirably for the Blackbird, giving him about twice a week a feed of good insectile food mixed with scraped raw carrot or boiled potato. Occasionally you could offer him a very little scraped raw beef or cooked lean meat, such as mutton or rabbit, a little fruit now and then, and a few mealworms or cockroaches, should keep him in health. Don't forget the bath on line days.

REDPOLL-CANARY (George Wagstaff). — Your twice house-moulted Redpoll is just the bird to breed with a smallish yellow Norwich hen Canary. Get the hen as soon as possible and let them fly together until March, then part them for a week or so until the hen is ready to go to nest, when you must put them together again, giving her a nest pan and building materials. You had better be on the safe side and shut the Redpoll off by himself when the hen is expected to lay, as he might possibly break the eggs, although, as a rule, they are pretty safe to be trusted with them.

FINCHES AND CANARIES FOR AVIARY (H.A.J.) —Do not turn your birds out in the aviary until March, and then put in the British birds first, keeping the hens by themselves in a room away from any cock birds, and feed them upon canary and a little rape, with green food only. Then as soon as the Finches are in stout song, you could put in the hens, giving them plenty of nesting boxes when they would probably go to nest at once. (2) Freshly caught Linnets require careful treatment. They have been feeding in the open upon seeds that have been soaked by the rain, and have probably commenced to sprout, therefore to cage them and give hard seeds right away is a mistake. When first received let them have soaked teazle and rape fresh daily. Then give in another vessel, or scatter on the floor of the cage, some canary, rape, linseed, teazle, and a little cracked hemp and niger. As they get on to the dry seeds discontinue the soaked, but do not leave it off too suddenly. After you have had them a week give a mild dose of glauber salts, as much as will cover a sixpence, in the drinking water, this should be repeated occasionally. Let them have boiled water to drink. With this treatment your losses should not be great, although you are almost certain to lose one occasionally. (3) Dandelion juice can be purchased from the chemist, or you can boil the leaves and give the water to the birds to drink. It is good for liver trouble.

FINCHES AND BUNTINGS.—You ask if the Hawfinch may be kept in an aviary with other Finches. Now, although the Hawfinch is the largest and strongest of our Finches, I have never found him any trouble when turned in with others, I have had three different birds that have lived amicably with others. All my birds may have been of an exceptionally gentle nature, and there may be exceptions, although I have not heard of them. It is not a difficult matter to remove a bird of a bullying nature. The tyrant of my last collection was a Yellow Bunting, and I fear he must have come of a fighting stock, for he was just the limit of aggressiveness. (2) All the Buntings are seedeaters, but are not afraid of occasionally taking a mealworm which is undoubtedly good for them. As regards seed, Canary is their stock mixture, they will live upon this almost entirely, never appearing to care much for any other, although it is as well to offer some such as a little cracked hemp, coarse oatmeal, rape, and maw seed. Some Buntings take readily to soaked ants' eggs, and if you can get yours to eat these you should place them upon a little good insectile food, which in time they will partake of. Your seed diet is capital for a mixed collection. Don't omit the green food, it is very important, although not when the frost is on it. (3) I think as you have started with pairs you might continue with them. You will find Siskins, Linnets, and Redpolls, in pairs will seek each other's company, and not interfere with the others, but on no account have an extra cock in with them, if you do you will have trouble. Have all cocks or else have them in proper pairs. Pleased to answer your questions.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

CORRECTION (Zebra Doves, B.K.G.).—In this reply I am made to say: "This species has been fairly frequent in many aviaries." It should read: "This species has bred fairly frequently in many aviaries."

A GARDEN AVIARY (H.F.K.).—Your proposed aviary should answer well, but if the birds are to use the shelter freely, it should be as well lighted as an ordinary living-room. All round the walls of the shelter and along back of flight, form a pretty thick hedge of pea-sticks, or similar branches, but the bases of these should 12 to 24 inches above the ground. (1) Yes, if you buy them from some outdoor aviary; but newly-imported birds, or birds that have been even for a short time indoors, must not go out till April: whether the season is early or late must determine the exact period, also whether your county is N. or S., would, of course, be a governing factor. Java Sparrows, Pekin Robins, Cardinals, Starlings, and Thrushes will be safe with Budgerigars and Cockatiels. (2) Of such species as named above, say 12 to 15 pairs, or actual accommodation for, say 60 birds of such size. (3) S. Williams, Holland Lodge, Edmonton, London, N.—A magazine is still published; a postcard will secure full particulars. If you are a novice with foreign species, you would find "Foreign Birds for Beginners," 1/1½, and our Nutshells, 2½d. each, very helpful, all post free from our manager.

YELLOW-FRONTED AMAZON (Mrs. Magor).—I do not think there is much wrong with this bird, but I should not continue to indulge the bird with tit-bits. There are so many safe things to give it that it is needless taking risks, which it is so easy to have either fruit, plain biscuit, dry potato, carrot, or plain cake to hand when you are at table, and give it a little of one or other of these when it is at table with you. The same applies to tea or coffee, a little warm water and Chemical Food, slightly sweetened if need be, will obviate all such needless risks. I presume if this bird does not bathe, you spray it. This should be done weekly, if not oftener, even in winter, of course choosing a genial day, and keeping it out of the reach of cold air till dry, when doing so using a little essence of quassia in the water for the next two or three months. For the same period, put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia into the drinking water once a week, or better, soak it into a crust or biscuit, or anything absorptive that the bird is fond of, and supply this when partially dry. It is always best to treat such things as pieces of wood, cuttlebone, and grit as part of the menu, usually when wood, etc., is supplied for the bird to exercise their cutting powers upon, beaks usually remain of normal length. You will have to get your local vet. or some fancier with experience to cut back the beak to normal size. It is quite simple if the head of the bird is held still, and do not unduly shorten, as a vein extends almost to the tip of the normal beak, and you should not cut into this. Keep a watch on the bird's mouth, and if it becomes furred or at all slimy, put in a little honey and borax (from any chemist) daily, from the end of a stick, till it is clean again. Shall be pleased to hear how the bird progresses.

GROUND COLOUR.—The clear and ticked or very lightly marked progeny from this mating may be used the following season for breeding Mules of the dark order. (2) For pink-eyed Sibs get a clear yellow pink-eyed cock and a ticked buff hen bred from two yellows, also pink-eyed, from the same strain, but not closely related. Mate these together, and in the next season select from among the progeny the richest buff hen, clear or slightly ticked, and mate back to the original cock, and the richest clear yellow cock to mate back to the parent hen. The remainder of the clears and ticked mate among themselves. In the third season you may begin to test the hens by mating them for a nest of Mules, and retain especially for future breeding those which throw Mules with light plumage. However small the amount of light plumage thrown will show that the tendency to bred light Mules is there, and those hens should be carefully preserved for future breeding of the strain. To continue the strain of Sibs in the third year mate the progeny of the brother and sister matings of the former season back to the grandparents and among their progeny of the second year. After this if you find the birds losing much size it will be necessary to introduce some fresh blood, which you should do by introducing a fresh hen from the same strain as the original pair came from.

WHAT WILL THEY BREED (Studiosus)?—It is impossible to tell what the two birds you mention will breed without much more definite knowledge about their parentage. The character of their progeny depends entirely upon whether there is any Cinnamon blood in them or their parents, and so far as the Yorkshire is concerned it is nowadays impossible to say whether this blood exists in any given bird unless its pedigree is very definitely known. Assuming that there is no Cinnamon blood in either of the birds, then they will probably produce a majority of heavily variegated, and foul or broken greens, with a small proportion of ticked specimens. The percentage of the latter, as well as the nearness of their approach to clear, will depend entirely upon the amount of clear blood in the parents. If there is Cinnamon blood in both birds then you may expect the majority of the progeny to come lightly and heavily variegated.

SUDDENLY SITS DOWN (E.M.F.)—It may be merely a habit that makes your bird occasionally sit so closely to the perch for a short time. As it appears to be in good health otherwise I do not think you need worry about it at all. It is only taking a brief rest, I imagine, and, perhaps, your perches are a little too thin to give it a good firm grip, which would both cause it to sit more closely than usual and also appear to make the perch cut into him, as you put it. See that the perches are of a size that it can get a good and firm grip, and are securely fixed so that they do not wobble about; add as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence to the water for two consecutive days, and afterwards 20 drops of Chemical Food daily for a week, and I do not think anything further will be necessary.

A PROPER MATE (Brython).—Mate the heavily-marked cock with a clear buff, pink-eyed hen bred from a marked strain. This mating will give you marked and ticked young, with a percentage of clear pink-eyed, both cocks and hens. If you want to get the greatest proportion of lightly ticked and clears see that the hen is bred from clear and a ticked, both pink-eyed birds, which, of course, may be of a marked strain of birds.

USELESS BACK CLAWS (H.S.).—The condition of the feet is undoubtedly the cause of the bird remaining so much at the bottom of the cage, and I am afraid they have been neglected a great deal too long for you to make any improvement in them now—that is if the affection first occurred, as is usual, when the bird was quite young. But you give no definite particulars, so you had better write again and say how long the feet have been in this condition, whether the toes are curled underneath the front toes, or stick straight out backwards. Meantime give the bird rather wide and flat perches, and see that they are fixed firmly and do not wobble about.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

J. S. Carlile.—Death resulted from pneumonia, following a depletion brought about by subacute inflammation of the bowels. The inflammatory process has been going on some time, primarily due to irritant particles ingested at some period.

H. H. Bixter.—Acute inflammation of the bowels. This may be due to exposure or to eating of irritant matters.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

Selling Birds to U.S.A. (Cumbrian).—We have sent your enquiry to Messrs. Van Oppen, the forwarding agents, and have asked them to communicate with you.

L.C.B.A. Show and Diploma (F. Jones).—We have replied to you by post.

C.P. Show (T.K.).—Yes. The birds are looked after quite as carefully as at any other show, if not more so. Hope you will have success there.

Photograph (Constant Reader).—Send it up with a five shilling postal order, and we will insert in our Crystal Palace issue. A capital advertisement and a very cheap one.

Visit to Friend at Woking (J. Little).—Thanks; will try to use later.

Coloured Front (Maud Epps).—Very amusing, but of course we can't use.

Novice at Palace (W.J.D.).—There are hardships in every competition, and while we regret your difficulty, we leave it to you to suggest a way out, as we ourselves see none. A novice cannot continue his novitiate indefinitely, can he?

Winning Norwich, etc. (Coward and Fook).—Thanks for letter and photo, which we will do our best to use some time or another.

Roller Canary (W. Ogden).—Your enquiry has been forwarded to our specialist, Mr. St. John, and his reply will appear next week. Queries received on Tuesday cannot possibly be replied to the same week.

Letters during the time of the show should be addressed to Mr. Ramsden at the Crystal Palace, not to his private address, and exhibits must be delivered at the Palace on Thursday, February 6th, or they will not be able to compete.

The annual judges' lunch will take place on Feb. 6, in the Grill Room at the Palace at 1.45. Tickets, 2s. 6d. each, may obtained of Mr. Ramsden. Lunch will be over in time for the opening of the show. Ladies are specially invited.

Our Championship Competition.

It is very gratifying to us to learn that over 500 birds have been entered to compete for CAGE BIRDS prizes in the finals of our Championship Competition. In some of the classes the majority of the birds have been componed. This excellent support evidences in most striking manner the grip our coupon competition at the various shows of the season has had upon exhibitors. It is safe to say that not the least exciting moments of the Palace Show will be those during which the winners of CAGE BIRDS £10 10s. trophy and two £10 10s. cash prizes are being selected by the judges.

An Expert Opinion.

Several readers have written in the past to ask whether one or other of the specialists upon our staff would for a small fee give them a private opinion upon the merits, or mating, etc., of birds they are exhibiting at the Crystal Palace Show. We shall be pleased to arrange this. Exhibitors desirous of taking advantage of the offer must send to CAGE BIRDS offices a stamped addressed envelope, together with sixpence (postal order) for each bird (Canary, Hybrid, British, or Foreign) upon which they wish to receive an opinion, when a letter will be sent them in due course.

Results of the Judging.

TELEGRAMS or other communications asking for results of the judging cannot be answered by the show authorities. In these circumstances CAGE BIRDS will be pleased to supply exhibitors, with the result of any class upon compliance with the following rules:—

1. Fully stamped and addressed postcards or telegraph forms must reach us, at 154, Fleet Street, not later than Thursday, February 5.

3. All the applicants for results at the Palace must write "Result" on top left-hand corner of the envelope in which the postcard or telegraph form is sent to us.

NOTE.—We cannot undertake to deal with any results other than by postcard or telegram (no letters can be sent).

Club Meetings and Excursions.

The following Club meetings have already been arranged: Southern Bord. F.C., 2.30; Crest Club, Board Room, 2.30; Southern Nor. P.H. Club, Press Room, 2.30.

"Cage Birds" Stall.

CAGE BIRDS will have its usual stall at the Palace, and we shall be pleased to welcome visitors, to greet old friends and to make new friends. Our "Visitors' Book" will be in the usual place on the stall, and we trust everyone present will make a point of leaving their signatures and addresses therein. Any of our publications may be purchased of the attendant in charge. If you do not happen to see what you want, ask our attendant for it.

Railway Excursions, Etc.

A summary of the railway excursions to London on the dates of the Crystal Palace Show will be found below. Most railways, we are informed, run week-end trips at one and a quarter fare, some at one and a third, from stations beyond 50 miles from London.

GREAT CENTRAL.—Sheffield, ½, 2, 3, or 5 days on Thurs. and Sat.; Rugby, ½, 1, 2, or 3 days on Sat., ½, 1, 2, 3, or 5 days on Sun. Nottingham, Leicester, Loughborough, Lutterworth Brackley, and certain intermediate stations, ½, 1, 2, 3, 5, or 8 days on Thurs., Sat., and Sun.

MIDLAND. Manchester, Chester, Stockport, Matlock, and other stations en route, 1, 3, 4, or 6 days on Sat. Liverpool, Southport, Warrington, etc., 1, 3, 4, or 6 days on Sat. Ilkley, Otley, Guiseley, etc., 1, 3, 4, or 6 days on Sat. Harrogate, 1, 3, 4, or 6 days on Sat. Skipton, Keighley, Bingley, Shipley, Bradford, Dewsbury, Batley, Morley, Leeds, etc., 1, 3, 4, or 6 days on Fri. night. Barnsley, Swinton, and Rotherham, 3, 4 or 6 days on Sat. Cudworth, Sheffield, Chesterfield, Alfreton, etc., 1, 3, 4, or 6 days on Sat.

GREAT NORTHERN.—Hitchin to Welwyn, ½ and 1 day on Sat. Letchworth, ½ and 1 every day. Shepreth to Baldock, ½ and 1 on Sat. Dunstable, Hertford, St. Albans, Hatfield, etc., ½ and 1 on Sat. Yaxley, Ramsey etc. to Three Counties, 1 day on Sat. Cambridge, etc. ½ and 1 on Fri. and Sat. Peterborough, ½, 5, and 8 days on Sat. Butlers Hill, Codnor Park, Heanor, Kimberley, etc., 1, 2, to 8 days on Sat. Huntingdon to Sandy and Three Counties, ½ day on Sat. Luton to Ayot, ½ day on Sat. Beeale, Bridlington, Darlington, Driffield, Malton, Middlesbrough, Northallerton, Pickering, Redcar, Richmond, Ripon, Scarborough, Stockton, Thirsk, Whitby, etc., 2, 3, or 5 days on Sat. Alnwick, Berwick, Bishop Auckland, Blaydon, Consett, Durham, Gateshead, Hartlepools, Hexham, Shields, Morpeth, Newcastle, Sunderland, Wallsend, etc., 2, 3, or 5 days on Sat. Hull, Goole, etc., 1 day on Fri. night, 3, 4, or 6 days on Sat.

GREAT WESTERN.—South Wales (principal stations), Fri. night for 1, 3, 5, or 8 days. On Sat. from Liverpool, Manchester, Chester, Wrexham, Shrewsbury, etc., 1, 4, or 6 days; Marlborough and Berks and Hants line stations, 1 day; Weston-super-Mare, Bristol, Bath, etc., ½, 3, 5, or 8 days; Birmingham, Wolverhampton, and South Staffs stations, ½ and 3 days; Portland, Weymouth, Dorchester, Wells, Devizes, etc., 1, 3, 5, or 8 days. CORRESPONDENCE—Continued from page 73.

A Useful Steadying Cage.

Sir,—I send you a rough sketch of the cage I use for steadying fresh-caught British birds. It is an ordinary wooden box cut down to shape of sketch, with a cage front just fixed on top. It contains two perches and food and water in vessels inside, and I find the birds settle down sooner than in an ordinary cage, do not knock themselves about, and do not make a mess, which, to the wife's idea, is the principal advantage. Trusting others may find it useful, and wishing CAGE BIRDS continued success.

What Has Become of the Yellow Crest?

Sir,—In the last season's show reports I notice, with regret, a still further falling off of yellow Crests and Crestbreds. Have breeders, in their mad craze for the big buff Crest, quite made up their minds to let this beautiful variety become quite extinct? I was always a great lover of a good yellow Crest, and have bred a good one or two in my time, as I daresay some of the old breeders will remember. Since leaving the old country, and having to breed my birds purely for my own pleasure—there are no clubs or societies in this State—I decided to make a study of breeding Yellows, and having brought a few of my best birds over with me, I was able to start with the right material. My line of reasoning is: Seeing that the Yellows come so thin and scant in Crest feather, to double Crest twice, or even more; if the crests come neat you can soon tell where to draw the line. By this mating I find they are inclined to become thin and rough at the back; this is where I run in the coppy, or first cross, to fill up and smooth down the backs, and at the same time keep up size. The same results could be got from the Lancashire Plainhead, but I prefer the Coppy. I use Yellow blood every other year, and breed from the neatest Crests. I have bred in my second year a big clear Yellow dark Crest that could hold his own among the Buffs, he is bred from a double-crested second cross Yellow Coppy cock. J. W. CROOKES.

Crest Breeding: A Little Advice to Novices.

By One Who Has Bred Them 35 Years.

Sir,—When this week I opened my CAGE BIRDS, which I have taken ever since it started, I saw a letter from a Novice, wishing to have some advice on Crest breeding. To build a strain to breed good stuff get a Plain-headed Coppy cock — which Lancashire breeders call a spoilt Coppy — big in skull and with plenty of feather on it, and short in leg. You can get these from Mr. Barras or Mr. Fitton, Oldham, or any good Lancashire breeder for about 25s. Then you want a good green or heavily marked Crested hen with plenty of feather; never mind if it is out in centre a little. You can get a good stock hen for 30s. from some good fanciers, men who will try to help the novice. There are many who would help a young fellow on. If your pocket should be low get two pairs, unrelated. Then the young from each pair will go together after to breed with. In conclusion, never tell a lie about your birds to anyone; don't let your hobby lower your manhood. Wishing you good luck.

Sexing Canaries with Certainty.

Sir,—Some time ago there appeared in CAGE BIRDS a letter showing how to sex Canaries. Can any of your readers inform me how to do so with certainty, or what was the date the letter appeared?

The Best Canary for Novices.

A Roller Man and His Favourites.

Sir,—I at all times find it a pleasure to write you on cage birds, as I have had so much success by your advice in CAGE BIRDS. My 1913 season was a great success, as I sold every young bird with the exception of what I picked out for myself, and what pleased me more customers were highly pleased, and no birds returned. Now I think that the Roller Canary is the best for novices to start with, as you see I have had great success as a novice, for 1913 was my first year. I never kept birds before, and I have a fine bundle of CAGE BIRDS papers in my bird-room, which is ringing with song every day. I have also two hens singing very nicely, which makes my hobby charming. I have started to get my bird-room in readiness for 1914 season, and I am pleased to say, by your advice and by close attention to my stock, and careful feeding, my birds are all in first-class condition. My stock for 1914 season are five cocks, sixteen hens, all Roller Canaries, and I am breeding better strain for 1914. Very well pleased with 1914 Calendar; it is excellent. A friend of mine has informed me of the death of their Roller Canary at the ripe old age of 21 years and five months, and many a time it has sung after being put in total darkness. What would Mr. Hardy think of this, and I know of scores like this singing in darkness. I read with interest at our local library in the "Times" that a White Robin with conspicuous red breast has been seen in the garden of Mill Farm House, Tenterden, and others have been observed in various parts of the Weald of Kent.

A Robin Among the Curling Stones.

Sir,—After a game of curling, the players went into the club house for lunch. I had occasion to go to my box, and I left it open, the lid up against the wall. After lunch we had other two hours playing, and when the game was over all the members, over a dozen, came in to put their curling stones under lock and key. There is always a noise, discussing the different shots after the play, and yet this did not seem to disturb the Robin, who must have got into the box before we came in. I put the stones in the box, and locked it up. Imagine my surprise next morning when on opening the box out came Mr. Robin and hopped on my hand before taking his departure after his night's confinement.

Have We Too Many Societies?

Sir,—I see in your valued paper, CAGE BIRDS, that another society is being formed in West London. I certainly think it would be better if the fanciers were to patronise the existing societies, some of which have been established a considerable number of years. We have in West London now the West London Fanciers' Association, the Queen's Park, the City and Suburban, and the South Metropolitan Associations, whilst the London Cage Bird Association have their headquarters in Piccadilly. I am sure the most exacting bird fancier in West London could select one of the above societies to suit his requirements. It would be better for the Fancy generally if there were only a few flourishing societies with a good range of cups and prizes for competition amongst their members and with a "live" secretary to keep things moving, than a lot of small societies struggling for existence with a small membership.

ADIAPHOROUS.

On Caging Birds.

Sir,—Caged Birds are not a new feature amongst the civilised inhabitants of our globe. I was told by my own father of the Chinese gentlemen who carried when they took their daily walk a bird in a cage. Tamed animals and cruelty! What about domestic cats and dogs, and our useful and perhaps most valued animal the horse? Is he not broken in? Do not we find that "Every kind of beasts, and of birds and of serpents and of things in the sea is tamed and hath been tamed by mankind."—St. James, iii. chap., 7th verse? Mr. Hardy is not infallible on every subject under the sun. As to the breeding of caged birds, I have heard of a Guardsman in the Knightsbridge Barracks. A relative of mine, who was a clergyman ministering at All Saint's, Knightsbridge, told me of the case. This Guardsman bred Nightingales. Mr. Smee, a famous medical man, kept Nightingales, and heard them pour out their exquisite lays in the neighbourhood of Finsbury Square. As to lovers of animals being cruel! Those who keep them must love them, and I have found them just the reverse.

OVER SEVENTY.

Experiences of a Beginner.

Sir,—I wish to open this letter by telling you I only started this most interesting hobby in the year 1911, and in such a short time I have gained experience far beyond my expectations. I ignored such a book as CAGE BIRDS, and, "fat-headed," or anything you like, I thought I could do wonders with a pair of birds. At the beginning of February, 1911, I purchased a cock and hen Canary. A friend told me they were good birds. Well! Didn't I know they were? I bought them, so I ought to know. Within a fortnight these birds went to nest; the hen laid four eggs. Every day I looked into that nest to see if the eggs were all right. The fateful 14th day arrived, and I saw a piece of egg-shell on the floor of the cage. My hopes rose, and see those chicks I must. The hen wouldn't come off the nest, so I pushed her off. There was only one chick. Never mind; that was something. So I took the other eggs away and opened them. I wished I hadn't: two of those eggs had chicks in, ready to hatch. I may tell you she never went on that nest again, so I lost that chick as well. Four more nests I let her have that season, and the result was one chick, and that was a hen. The next season I tried Mule breeding, putting up a Greenie-Canary, Linnet-Canary, and a Siskin-Bullfinch. I sold the latter pair before the season started because the Bullfinch hen would take no notice of the Siskin, and I knew such a lot about Mule breeding! Well, I'll say no more. I took in CAGE BIRDS, and am now waiting, still smiling, for next season.

D. R. SWAINSON.

A Lady's Advice to Bird Breeders.

Sir,—It is essential, if you want to be successful, to purchase a really good book on the special kind of bird you intend to breed; and if you choose Yorkshires you cannot do better than buy Battye's "Yorkshire Canary," and, whatever else you choose, "Cage Birds Annual" will supply you with dozens of useful tips about birds. Read your bird books from cover to cover, and then set about your breeding according to your book. Make up your mind to buy good birds from a reliable breeder, and pay a good price for them, it is cheapest in the end. Keep down red-mite by occasionally painting underneath sand tray, etc., with a mixture of turpentine and camphor. Have your bird-room floor covered with lino and keep it scrupulously clean; change waters every day and twice a day in summer; once every week wash drinkers in warm water and Condy's Fluid; have one size drinkers and feeders. Keep an even temperature in the bird-room as far as possible; have a separate cage for sick birds, and whenever one is queer give it bread and milk. Above all, get your wife interested in your hobby, and never fail to buy CAGE BIRDS each week. You will find all the tips in there that you can wish for, and will learn more than I can tell you: and I know, because we have had the experience, though my husband is only a first-year novice. A word to the wives of fanciers: Don't grumble because the birds make a litter; try to keep the bird-room sweet and clean; above all, encourage your husband. MRS. H. L. HUGGINS.

Random Thoughts of a Yorkshire Breeder.

Sir,—Talking of Canaries, "Yorkshires" are my fancy, and fancy them I do. A bird perfect in my own eye has a nice small beak just in front of, and slightly under a moulded nearly oval head, set on a neck a trifle thinner than the shoulders. The wing showing the round part at top, as though placed for a shield to the side of a nice, smooth, round breast. And then, oh, that tapering waist, so long under that rounded flat (if there is such a term) wing-covered back. Now the wings get narrower across, but how close they appear to get to each other without touching, but if they do touch, they are magnets joined, they are tapering to a point. Well, really, they are close to, and nearly half way down that lovely straight, long, ten-in-one-feathered tail. The beautiful creature, six and three-quarter inches in unison, stands upon a perch, which it grips in earnest with two perfect feet close together, attached to legs so lovely and fine, full of life's blood. That nice-shaped hock and thigh, clothed with downy velvet, not a feather out of place. Well, I never! The bird is not only on a perch, but in a "show cage." Stand back one step and admire a sentry on duty, with his head thrown very slightly back and his eye as bright as glass.

Now I cannot see for the life of me why anyone should object to successful, professional exhibitors, for if it were not for these men, or rather the birds they exhibit, I, for one, should never have wished to breed a perfect bird. Shall I ever do it? No. There is no such thing as perfection here below.

Do We Coddle Our Birds Too Much?

An Aviarist's Experience.

Sir,—I have a large outdoor aviary, that is if 16ft. long by 4ft. 6in. wide and 7ft. at back to 6ft. in front can be considered large. A part of this is divided for breeding couples in the season in 3ft. lengths with wire partitions for the Finches, so that they can be shut off. It has often occurred to me when reading CAGE BIRDS and the opinions of its various correspondents that the tendency of most people is to coddle their birds far too much, and to keep to rigid rules for feeding both old birds and youngsters. In fact, it would appear from some of the things you read that every youngster's life is only hanging by a thread, and if the food is not mixed by exact measurements there is no hope of rearing. I suppose I have broken every rule most outrageously that has been laid down by experts, and yet I am quite satisfied with the results. My aviary is all wire in front, and the only protection is a piece of sheeting with tabs which is stretched over where the perches are placed. I have hen Canaries, Finches, Weavers, Spicebirds, Javas, and Waxbills, and yet I don't lose them on account of cold, although I have been breaking the ice each morning lately for their usual bath. I know a number of fanciers shudder at the thought of giving birds bathing water this weather. Yet I know my birds would be very unhappy without their morning dip. I bred 32 Mules last season from three pairs, all out in the open: they were reared entirely on egg cake and greenstuff. As regards greenstuff, it is always in the aviary, consequently young ones are fed with it from birth, so this does away with the idea that they should be some days old before they are allowed to have it. H. HAMMOND.

How to Popularise a Cage Bird Society.

Some Useful Hints.

Sir,—I have often thought that the secretary of a society who could invent some scheme whereby the apathy of the members—an apathy which generally sets in after the show season ends, and lasts till the moult begins—is worthy of the Carnegie medal for heroism. Sometimes there are so few members attending the ordinary meetings that the society's business can't be done, and those members who are most apathetic are generally the worst grumblers when they do turn up. I have in mind, though, one society who have a grand scheme to keep their members together, and which is worthy of adoption by any society. Moreover, it is a scheme which makes the wherewithal to run their open shows; for we all know that few societies can run an open show without drawing on their funds, and this scheme provides the sinews. They hold a show every month for the different varieties which are kept, an entry fee of 3d. each cage being charged, which all goes to the society's funds. A special prize of, say, 2s. 6d. or 3s. is given for the best bird in each section, but is not given until the end of the year, when some of the luckier members have quite a nice little nest egg to draw. At the wind-up of the season a show is run on bigger lines, with an increased entry fee, and prizes in each class accordingly. At the monthly shows, points are counted by Birds in the tickets, which are totalled up until the grand finale at the big show, when prizes are given to the 1st, 2nd and 3rd most points in each section. One rule they adopt, which seems to me a very good one, is that the birds which win the specials at the monthly shows are debarred from exhibition again until the final show, where all compete. This rule stops any one exhibitor from dominating the specials list, and gives all a chance of success. Now this scheme keeps the members interested throughout the year, and especially is that so in the summer months, when some fanciers' enthusiasm touches rock bottom quantities. Every month brings some fresh first feather youngster whose owner has hopes of winning the special in its section. This is a scheme which can be recommended as an antidote to any apathetic member, for with shows in every month except April and May—when the birds are busy breeding—and lectures in the winter, the members' interest is never allowed to flag. For judges each member is called upon to take his turn, and a syllabus is printed at the year's beginning with date of show, judge's name; the date of lecture and lecturer's name and subject. The syllabus system saves notifying each member every fortnight, and is really cheaper than postage. This society makes enough profit from these monthly shows to have a nice little sum in the bank in readiness for the open show, which is run in the autumn.

Disqualification of Borders at Bethesda.

Sir,—At the above show I was an exhibitor and subsequently became a victim. We have had a good deal of correspondence re short entries in our grand periodical "C.B." I am now about to point out what I consider one more cause for such. At the above show I had two Borders, one clear yellow, and his son, a variegated buff, entered in the Border class, in which they stood 1st and 2nd respectively. The clear yellow I had also entered in Canary Natural Colour. When I arrived at the show-room I saw my clear yellow 1st and special in his class, but cardless in regard to the Natural Colour class. I found a buff Border was 1st in this class, and only reserve in the Border class. Naturally, I wanted to know how this was, and on enquiry found that the judge had disqualified my bird, his reason being that it was colour-fed. Now every fancier knows that colour-fed Borders are not eligible to compete in Border classes under rules. I should be pleased if Mr. Wellings would answer the following questions, through "C.B.": 1st, Why he did not disqualify this bird in the Border class; 2nd, what makes him think it colour-fed; 3rd, is he prepared to support his decision? Awaiting Mr. Wellings' reply,

Specials at the Federation Show.

Sir,—In answer to Mr. Dewhurst re Federation Show specials in last week's CAGE BIRDS, I received my prize-money three or four months after show, also a note stating that as Mr. and Mrs. Salter had tied with me for No. 3 special I was to come to some arrangement with them regarding same. I wrote him, enclosing receipt and telling him that as I had made most entries according to rules of the society, I was entitled to it, and that it was his business to arrange with them, and not mine. I received no answer and at intervals I wrote him twice again, with same result. Now Mr. Dewhurst must have received my communications, or they would have been returned to me through the Dead Letter office, and yet he says he received no information concerning same from me. Now, again, if Mr. Dewhurst sent my special No. 22 for best Norwich, let him produce the initial of the individual who took it in, as no member of the family has seen it, and it is only them that take parcels in.

C. ROBERTS.

The Disqualified Yorkshire at Halifax.

Sir,—I have been very much interested of late in the correspondence connected with the Halifax disqualification, and what has struck me has been the unbusinesslike way in which the Yorkshire Union has treated the case, and more in particular the shameful way in which Mr. Clegg asserts that he has been treated over it. But to return to Mr. Johnson's letter, he says that anyone who tried to speak was ruled out of order. Is this the way Yorkshire Union meetings are carried on? Then again, how could Mr. Clegg have notified his committee on that afternoon in writing, as should have been the way to have dealt with this case, much more for Mr. Hill to have formally notified his committee after he had received the complaint in writing from Mr. Clegg?

Again, Mr. Clegg says that he was bamboozled at Bradford in front of a lot of fanciers. Is this right? It is a pity that the Halifax Society would not be affiliated at present, as I should suggest that from their next committee they send a formal report to the Union and let them deal with the case in a proper manner, after due notification. As a secretary myself I wonder what others think of the way this business has been carried on over the head of a fellow secretary, who appears to me to know what business is, and how it should be carried on. What I say is, let the whole case be reopened, and the business be carried on in a proper manner, and then I will take notice of the report that is given. My desire is, as Mr. Johnson's, "Fair play and no favour."

Are Lizards on the Down Grade?

Sir,—Having been a breeder, and on several occasions an exhibitor of the Lizard Canary for a good many years, I have now come to the conclusion that this beautiful variety of Canary is not having justice done to it, through lack of support on the show bench, etc., and I have been thinking it over very seriously for some time now, and I have often spoken to my fellow fanciers about the poor support given at the shows, and I think—yes, I am almost sure—that if a specialist club was worked for the Lizard alone it would be the means of getting more to join and to fanciers taking a larger interest in it. Now I know of several good Lizard fanciers who are strongly in favour of the Lizards going on their own, the same as the Norwich, Yorkshire, etc. Why not? There are enough of them bred to do it, and some, by the way, best fanciers, too. I know of one gentleman that would support it handsomely, and provide something for the members to show for. But as it is worked now he cannot see his way to support it. Now, I am not running the Lancashire Canary down or the Lancashire fanciers, as there are some of the best of fanciers among them, but not enough to run two specialist clubs, and, in my opinion, they seem to cripple the Lizard every time. Why not all Lancashire fanciers fall in together, and have one good society than two poor ones? Then the Lizard Canary can be on its own. Now what I should suggest is to call a meeting in a central town, say Manchester, some Saturday evening (not Sunday) early after the Palace Show, and have the matter thoroughly gone into, and form a working committee to get it going. I know of several good fanciers that are willing to support it. And in the meantime if any fancier who is willing to fall in with it will write to me we shall be better able to see how the feeling is, and I am sure, instead of seeing half-prize-money at almost every show where the Lizard is, we shall see good full classes. Now I don't wish to go into a big controversy on the matter, as I don't see any necessity for it, but what I, along with a few more well-known Lizard breeders and exhibitors, wish to see is how the above scheme would meet with the approval of the Lizard Canary breeders and exhibitors. Let us work together and see if we cannot make it into a good strong financial specialist society, one that we shall not be ashamed of.

Good News from the Hon. Sec.

Sir,—A short time ago you very kindly inserted a letter from me in your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS that I regretted I could not pay out prize money in connection with the above society's sixth annual show as soon as in recent years. I am now pleased to report that by the time this letter appears most, if not all, prize-winners who reside outside the area of our District Council have been paid their prize-money as awarded, as we are paying out in alphabetical order. I may say that we have another scheme on foot, and I trust that I shall soon be able to report that all prize-money has been paid.

Affairs of East Ham Fanciers.

Sir,—Our society, the East Ham F.S., have paid off all outstanding debts, and have a balance in hand of over £3. Great efforts will be made to increase the cage bird section. Our adjourned annual meeting will be held at headquarters on Thursday next, February 5, at eight o'clock. It is of the utmost importance that all members should make it their business to attend.

E. OAKES, Chairman.

The Testimonial to Mr. Allen Silver.

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me to make my final statement re above. The total amount subscribed is now £12 5s., made up as follows:—Amount previously acknowledged £11 9s., Miss M. Bousfield 5s., Mr. J. Montgomery 10s., Mr. J. Goodchild 1s. I would like personally to thank the generous donors for the hearty way in which they have supported this project; it has been a pleasure to me to receive the many congratulatory letters fully justifying my action in this matter. The presentation will take place on Monday evening, Feb. 9, next, at a public dinner, to be held conjointly by the F.B.E.L., L.C.B.A., and N.B.B. and M.C., at Frascati's Restaurant, Oxford Street, W. Being held during the Palace show week, it is hoped that it will be convenient for many country visitors to attend. The form of the presentation will, I feel sure, be pleasing both to the donors and the recipient alike.

How to Feed Bearded Reedlings.

Sir,—On getting my weekly CAGE BIRDS last week, I was highly delighted to see such a life-like picture of my pair of Bearded Reedlings on the front page. It does your artist, Mr. H. Norman, credit. They secured the Diploma of Honour at Brighton. It is very amusing to see them feed on maw seed sprinkled amongst their sand, they work with both feet just like a chicken would. Their diet is maw seed, mixed amongst sand to make them work, bread crumbs, crushed hemp, maw seed mixed is their general diet, with boiled water to drink. Wishing CAGE BIRDS a continuous success.

Border Fancy Club.

Proposed Tribute to Mr. Martin Jamieson.

Sir,—I noticed from CAGE BIRDS that Mr. Martin Jamieson has resigned the secretaryship of the Border F.C.C., after 21 years' service. It may have been an oversight on the part of those present at the annual meeting, as I see nothing was done to show appreciation of his faithful services to the above club, but I am sure all will join me in wishing him improved health, long life, and continued pleasure in his hobby; and I think we should stretch our appreciation beyond mere thanks. I should like to have the opinion of members on the matter. It does seem a bit cold and indifferent to see such an old and faithful servant go out of harness, with nothing to mark his service, as no doubt he will have often sacrificed pleasure, to fulfil his duty as secretary. I will be willing to lend any assistance I can in the matter, hoping Mr. Editor you will do the same.

ROBERT LAMBIE.

Exorbitant Railway Charges.

Sir,—As no one has taken up the "carriage" short entry view of Mr. Pope, in "our" paper, I feel strongly that a few remarks from one who is convinced that Mr. Pope has touched the crux of the question will not be out of place. I have made three entries this season, and can honestly say the fabulous railway charges for these absolutely stopped me. A man who fancies his stock is spurred on to have a dabble, and does not mind losing a few entry fees, especially if one gets a card now and again, but when the carriage is tacked on, by gum! don't it mount up, eh? I sent one bird to Sheffield weighing 12lbs., 2s. 10d. carriage; the same to Stamford (a quarter of the distance) cost 2s. Another to Nottingham, weighing 5½lbs., 1s. 10d., this being about half the Sheffield distance. Now one can send a bird from Land's End to John o'Groats (providing the weight does not exceed 2lb.) for 6d., but put a show cage and hamper round the bird, then how do we stand? I think for the distance mentioned about seven times the amount would be required. Therefore we are paying a tremendously enhanced rate for dead stock, and the liability of the company is no greater. Another point: live stock at the rate we pay should be delivered at once, and not be taken all over the district and delivered in rotation with other parcels. I have had a bird reach here before 8 p.m. and delivered at midday next day, 16 hours after arrival, how's that? There is not the slightest doubt that the companies are having the biggest plums from our shows, and officials and exhibitors alike are left to try to make both ends meet. I think Mr. Pope's idea of reducing the entry fee of long-distance exhibitors shows a generous spirit, coming as it does from one who thoroughly understands show business, but again it would be robbing the poor to help the companies swell their dividends.

ARTHUR G. LEWIS.

Blood Will Tell.

A Variegated Buff Norwich.

Sir,—I was much pleased to see my new flight variegated Buff illustrated in CAGE BIRDS. It is very seldom one sees such "an ugly beggar" as he has often been called illustrated in your paper. I presume because it is so difficult for one so marked to hold his own with birds less marked. That he did hold his own, and is thought good enough for CAGE BIRDS is a double honour, and I am justly proud of having bred him. His wins include 1st Clapham, 2nd Wimbledon, 2nd Dulwich and Peckham, etc. His brother was 2nd Clapham, 3rd Wimbledon, 3rd Southend, etc. With them it is a case of "blood will tell," as their grandfather was the best yellow cock I ever had in my room; old "Kaiser," bred by Mr. Spillman, of Devonport. As some of your readers know, I am a stickler for pedigree, and to this, coupled with the information I obtained from CAGE BIRDS, I attribute my success. It may interest your readers to know that his great-grandfather on his father's side and his grandfather on his mother's side is the same bird. As you say, he is oddly marked. This is accounted for quite easily, as his mother, grandmother and great grandfather were all heavily variegated; in fact, out of the twelve birds forming the last four generations there are only four clears amongst them. This fact should be well noted by your readers, and is a tip many might adopt with advantage.

OUR PAINTING COMPETITION.

BIGGER SUCCESS THAN EVER.

Some thousands of entries were received for the painting competition in our issue of December 20 last, and the task of selection has been tremendously difficult. The £1 1s. prize winner is Mr. G. Lawrence, 89, King's Road, Halstead, Essex, and the runners up were Mr. Walter Collins, 24, Norfolk Road, Southampton, and Mr. Percy Jowitt, 27, Derby Road, Great Horton, Bradford.

The attempts sent in by Mr. K. Hamilton-Jones, Manimead, Plymouth, and Mr. H. M. Govan, Melrose, were also extremely creditable.

It was curious to note the many strange ideas some of the competitors had regarding the identity of the birds to be coloured. The Norwich was made into a Bullfinch, a Chaffinch, and a Parrot; the Lizard into a Redpoll, a Siskin and a Goldfinch; whilst the Yorkshire Canary was changed by the misplaced ingenuity of one artist into a Scotch Fancy. It seems incredible that competitors should go to such length as to alter the shape and character of the birds in their colouring attempts, but such is the case.

Amongst the list of very excellent efforts we have to specially commend the paintings sent in by the following: D. Laidlaw, West Bromwich; G. M. Tillett, Holt; Master R. E. Brenchley, Aldershot; F. Clarke, Thirsk; A. Forse, Leyton; W. A. Martin, Selby Park; Dorothy Divall, E. Grinstead; C. Hopkins, Barnsbury; W. H. Lawley, Coleshill; C. Dunn, Partick, Glasgow; S. Golding, Montreal; F. S. Cook, Smethwick; J. Barker, Fenton; L. H. Vinsen, Dollis Hill; H. Woodhead, Littleboro'; Miss J. Parker, Redditch; J. Robert, Neath; Madge Duncan, W. Hartlepool; H. Everett, Thrapston; W. S. Carson, Farncombe; S. G. Charles, Gloucester; J. Boulton, Stoke-on-Trent; A. W. Stokes, Southsea; W. Watson, Shepshed; Miss E. A. Paramore, Taunton; A. B. Brown, Plymouth; Miss Silvester, Highgate; W. Ley, Nantymoel; D. Lindsay, Wishaw; F. Gaffney, Mitcham; Master S. Dawson, Washington; — Meredith, Alfreton; J. H. Dawson, Washington; R. Woods, Gt. Yarmouth; G. G. Frost, Cambridge; J. C. Rands, Surbiton; J. W. Goldsmith, Maidenhead; A. W. Lewis, Smethwick; J. Armitage, Oldham; G. Gipson, Alton, Hants.; O. Grey, Swansey Valley; A. Goldsmith, Bedford; B. Davies, Brecon; F. Bowman, Sunderland; H. Cunliffe, Oswaldtwistle; T. Sherwood, Crowle; Aggie H. Manchan, Dumbarton; E. Ousman, Stoke-on-Trent; A. Robinson, Walsall; O. T. Holmes, Blackwood, Mon.; P. Clarke, Thirsk; H. F. Garner, Euston Road; Miss M. Sweetnam, Innishannon; E. A. Croxon, Lowestoft; T. C. Weaver, Northfield; C. Gammon, St. Austell; Miss G. Dent, Cheltenham; S. Kellow, St. Austell; J. Williams, Bangor; H. Thomas, Musselburgh; Cissie Reilly, Tipperary; R. Bourne, Oxford; E. Bell, Staveley; A. F. Adam, Doncaster; Dora Lane, Notting Hill; A. Mitchell, Aberdeen; Jessie Beaumont, Snaith; J. W. Tingle, Castleford; D. Wilkes, N. Wingfield; Emily Turnham, Aylesbury; A. Moore, Wandsworth; H. Holf, Atherton; G. Williamson, Carbrook; A. Gibb, Blantyre; E. E. Seabright, Cheltenham; T. Hethering-ton, Greenhead.

JIG-SAW PUZZLE.—RESULT.

We also have pleasure in announcing the result of the Jig-saw picture puzzle. The winner of the prize of 10s. 6d. was Miss E. Newton, 4, Woodberry Down, Finsbury Park, N., whilst a consolation prize of a volume of "The Bird World" goes to Mr. W. Brinkman, junr., 21, Harleeh-avenue, Dewsbury Road, Leeds.

This competition proved a little too difficult, and the entries were not encouraging, but the attempts sent in by the following were worthy of special mention: John Vren, Connor Downs; S. M. Tillet, Holt; W. Gamble, South Wigston; Miss E. Thomas, Grange-over-Sands; S. Nield, Stalybridge; W. Field, Inverness; C. Killey, Douglas; J. Swindley, Chester; Mrs. A. Locke, Harrogate; Miss P. H. LARKHALL.

Annual show held Public Hall Jan. 24. There was an exeellent entry, and quality was good. The upstairs hall, where the cage birds were staged, was just on the small side, and during the afternoon it was with difficulty that a view of the birds could be got. The management, under the able guidance of sec., Mr. James McEwan, was all that could be desired. Mr. Allan Chalmers (Kirkintilloch) judged, and his awards were well received.

New members elected:—B. Roberts, A. H. Knapton. Members please note that owing to the International show the next meeting will be Feb. 15.—H. Best, Sec.

NORTHERN LIZARD CLUB.

Annual meeting, Fawcett Street Cafe, Jan. 24. Balance sheet passed. Sec. gave short review of past season, showing that signs were not wanting that fanciers were beginning to take an interest in the breed. Sec. reported he had been trying to get recruits, and had had several promises. He requested the members to try and influence as many new members as possible. Samples of medals to hand in a week's time. Two new members enrolled, Messrs. Smith and Proctor. Same office-bearers re-elected.—G. Davidson, Sec.

PARTICK C.B.S.

First meeting of the year held Foresters' Hall, Dumbarton Road, Jan. 10, Mr. T. Fraser presided over a grand attendance. Office-bearers for 1914 elected:—Pres., Mr. J. F. Park; vice-pres., Mr. Antony Maxwell; treas., J. McMillan; sec., Alex. Walker, 18, Buchanan Street, Partick; committee, Messrs. Fairweather, Aikenhead, Crammond, Henry, Fleming, Sinclair, Kidd. The management trusts that members will endeavour to make the opening of the season a red letter night in the history of the club. Decided to hold a smoker on Feb. 17; time and venue will be duly announced. Arrangements were left in the hands of Sec. Prospective members are cordially welcome. Annual sub., 4s. Full particulars from Alex. Walker, 18, Buchanan Street, Partick.

BEAMISH C.B.S.

Meeting held at Mr. Cowell's Bird Inn, Highhold, Beamish; Mr. J. H. Elliott chair, with a good turn out of members. We enrolled another new member, Mr. R. Mitchell, of Stanley. Decided, to hold annual show Feb. 7, Mr. J. Stanger, Pelon Fell, judge. We expect a record entry, as we have enlarged the schedule to 35 classes, and have a cup for the best young bird bred 1913 by a member and exhibited by him, and a special class where every member receives a special, exhibitors nominating one bird.—Peart and Cresswell, ECCLESHILL C.B.A.

Annual supper and prize distribution held Jan. 24, with a very good attendance. Supper was splendidly served by our good old friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilcock, Fountain Inn. Everything was in apple-pie order, and everyone seemed to get a tightener. After supper we had an enjoyable evening. Songs were splendidly given by Messrs. Boocock, Pennington, Naylor, Lee, Hall, Webster, and Wilcock. Our old friend, Mr. W. Richmond, of Radley, presented prizes to the following members: Messrs. Chippendale, Wilcock, Lee, Stebbing, Pearson, Sparks, Simonett, Shaw. Mr. A. Pearson wins cup with 95 pts. We had also Mr. P. Illingworth's cup and the society's rose bowl on view, and Mr. J. Wilcock has given us two copper kettles. We enrolled five more members.—Sam Wilcock, Sec.

GT. HORTON (Good Intent) O.S.

Special meeting, held at new club rooms, Grange Schools, All Saints' Road, Dirkhill, January 24. There was a splendid attendance of about 20. Officials elected for 1914: Pres., Mr. H. Worsnop; vice-pres., Mr. J. W. Kaberry and Mr. F. Tidswell; treas., Mr. A. Holden; auditors, Messrs. W. A. Brown and H. Worsnop; Yorkshire Union delegates, Mr. J. W. Kaberry and Mr. D. Bartle; sec., Mr. A. Firth. Decided to have five members' shows, one F.F. and four old birds shows. We have some good specials for these shows: silver cup, smoker's outfit, silver medal with gold centre, two cage show case, and several others. We are working on a system with these shows which will give novices a better chance of winning the specials than they have in any other society in the district. Next meeting, Feb. 7, at 7.30, when we hope to have a lecture on Canary breeding. We give a hearty invitation to all fanciers to join us. Subscription 3s., 1s. to be paid on nominaton.—A. Firth, Sec.

BATHGATE C.B.S.

Annual general meeting held in the usual place before a good attendance, Mr. R. Bald presiding. Financial statement was considered satisfactory. Classification for forthcoming show was gone over, and classes for F.M. Linnet, Goldfinch, Siskin, Lesser Redpoll, Mealy Redpoll or Twite, and Foreign Goldfinch (F.M.) added to schedule. Several new members were proposed, and accepted. A vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the meeting.—A. Nicol, Sec.

LUTON C.B.S.

Annual general meeting, held at headquarters, Jan. 20. Secretary's report and balance-sheet presented showed a gain of £1 2s. on year's working to add to balance at bank. Officers for 1914: Chair, Mr. E. Litchfield; vice, Mr. E. Cherry; treas., Mr. J. C. W. Meadows; auditor, Mr. S. Parkins; sec., Mr. E. Bloomfield; committee, Messrs. J. Litchfield, jun., H. Meakin, T. Neville, W. Smith, F. Webb, and F. J. Welch. Annual show fixed for Nov. 4. The chairman had the pleasure of presenting Mr. E. Bloomfield with a gold watch chain subscribed for by the members as a mark of their appreciation of the secretary's work during the past three years. Mr. Bloomfield briefly responded.—J. C. W. Meadows.

TORBAY O.S.

Seventh annual meeting, held at the Railway Temperance Hotel, Jan. 19, Mr. A. N. Innes presiding. The balance-sheet, which showed a balance at bank of £5 3s. 4d., was accepted as read, and sec. was warmly complimented on showing such a balance, considering the annual show was not supported as was the previous year's. In returning thanks, the Secretary explained there were an increasing number of cage bird societies who were holding open shows throughout the country, and it was difficult to arrange a date to avoid clashing. The London and P.O.S. intended holding an attractive autumn show at the Crystal Palace, the last Wednesday in October. It was therefore thought advisable to arrange another date for the Paignton show, and a week earlier was decided. Mr. Jeffery asked to be relieved of the office of secretary as he had held it for several years, but he was prevailed upon to continue. The chairman (Mr. Innes) who is also treasurer, was re-elected, and warmly thanked for the deep interest he took in the welfare of the society. Officers elected: Pres., H. Whitley; vice-pres., S. O. Manlove; hon. solicitor, J. B. Eastley; hon. auctioneer, F. W. Puddicombe; hon. treas., A. N. Innes; bankers, Wilts and Dorset Bank; hon. auditor, Mr. W. Drew; chairman, Mr. A. N. Innes; vice-chair., H. Daw; sec., J. N. Jeffery; committee, Messrs. P. W. Mogford, H. Fletcher, A. Nicks, J. Bastard, F. Lumble, G. Mudge, G. Heathman, W. Hodge, W. Jeffery, W. Wyatt, W. Burridge, J. J. Phillips.

WALKLEY C.B.S.

Annual tea and prize distribution held Jan. 8 at Doncaster Street Friends' Schoolroom; sixty members and their wives sat down to a capital tea, which proved a success in every way, both as an enjoyable evening and financially to the society. Chairman, Mr. J. Ridal, spoke of the rapid advance we had made. Starting eight years ago with eight members, we have now 70, also a substantial balance in the bank. The first half of the programme was filled with miscellaneous items:—Pianoforte solo, Mr. H. Fallding; duet, Misses Anson; violin solo, Mrs. Fallding; song, Miss Anson; and songs by Messrs. Dent, Pickering, Burrell, Broomhead, and Sparkes. The distribution of prizes took up a good share of the evening, there being 30 special prizes and four cups to distribute:—Yorks cup, W. F. Furniss; Nor. cup, J. Matthews; British, L. Fallding; joint special: 1 Lawton, 2 Furniss, 3 Tomlinson, 4 Fallding, 5 Lawton, 6 Matthews, 7 Woolhouse, 8 Jones, 9 Pickering, 10 French, 11 Wingford, 12 Carr. Show specials:—Runner-up Yorks cup, C. Tomlinson; best hen, Furniss; best 4th Brit., Sisson; Ramsden's, Furniss; Sandiford's, Marshall; table show specials, Yorks, 1 Furniss, 2 Tomlinson; Nor., Cowley, Woolhouse; Novice Nor. cup, Matthews; 2, Abbott; Yorks, Carr.; medal, 2, Kilsey; Brit., Baily, 2 Fallding. The second half of the concert was in the order of the first. A vote of thanks to artistes and the secs. concluded one of the best birdy evenings spent in Sheffield.—C. Tomlinson, Sec.

BOLDON COLLIERY C.B.S.

Meeting held Workmen's Institute, Jan. 16. Resolved to become a cage bird society in future. S. Wilkinson and W. Priestley elected as auditors; chairman, T. Hall; sec., J. Stephenson; treas., F. Urwin; committee, T. Wilkinson, A. Tucker, W. Smith, F. Urwin, W. Priestley.

Meeting held Jan. 24. Arranged that all members pay 6d. per month and that we hold a monthly table show. Mr. J. Tracey will give a medal for most points and Mr. F. Urwin medal for the runner-up. Next monthly meeting, Feb. 21. Table show, pairs for breeding. J. Tracey, judge. Entry 2d. We give fanciers a hearty invitation to join us.—J. Stephenson, Sec. (Kindly forward address.—Ed.)

CLUB REPORTS.

CLAPHAM C.B.A.

At the meeting held Jan. 20, it was proposed that as the Club Room is no longer available for a Saturday evening, the Pair and Finch show be held on the last Wednesday in February. Will all members please attend next meeting, when this matter will come up for discussion and settlement.—T. J. Hose, Hon. Sec.

STRATFORD & E. LONDON F.S.

The cups and prizes won at the annual show were presented on Jan. 24, at the new headquarters, The Eagle, Cobham Road, Stratford. The society boasts of 19 cups for the different sections, and what with the numerous points, medals, and spoons, most of the evening was taken up with this alone. Intending members are invited to the annual general meeting, Feb. 12. Old members kindly notice alteration of annual.—A. E. Baker, Hon. Sec.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Will members kindly note that everything possible is being done to ensure payment of prize money of last show, and it will greatly facilitate matters if all holders of tickets and cash due will forward same at once to H. Bowring, hon. sec. pro tem, address 67, Everington Street, Fulham, S.W. The present officials are unanimous in their endeavours to make the Association one of the best in London, and ask all fanciers connected to continue to place their confidence in us. Now, members, please rally.—H. Bowring, hon. sec. pro tem.

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE C.B.S.

General meeting held Jan. 8. Mr. M. C. Potts chair. Mr. H Bird was elected a member. Nominations took place for judge for open show. Oct. 23 and 24. Mr. M. Cossan was appointed Auditor in place of Mr. Atkinson. Mr. Crawball read a letter, the writer of which wished to remain anonymous, urging the members to do their best for the Society and work together in harmony. Secretary intimated that he wished to be relieved of the secretaryship; this will be brought forward at next meeting. Subs. are now due. Annual meeting Feb. 5. Election of officers, final selection of judges, etc.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

COLINTON AND CURRIE PARISHES O.S.

Second annual smoker, held at the Railway Inn, Juniper Green, Jan. 10, Pres., Mr. Begbie, presiding. There was not such a good turn out as was expected, but a very enjoyable evening was spent. Mr. Napier gave selections on his gramophone, and songs were sung by Messrs. Crabb, Dickson, Ferguson, Gray, Preston, Begbie, Campbell, Marshall and Napier. Mr. Marshall moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Begbie for the splendid manner in which he had conducted the smoker. A very good night's enjoyment was brought to a close by singing "Auld Lang Syne."—Jas. Napier Sec.

METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Annual general meeting Jan. 15, a good attendance, Mr. W. E. Plank in the chair. Election of officers for 1914 resulted as follows:—Vice-pres., W. W. Lathbury, Esq.; chairman, Mr. G. Harrison; treas., Mr. W. Nichols; comm., Mrs. Mullis, Mrs. Wilkes, Mr. Jeffrey, Mr. B. Green, Mr. J. Green, and Mr. Garrod; auditors, Mr. E. Pegg, Mr. F. Ward; sec., H. F. Bowring; assist. sec., W. E. Plank. The Pair Show was decided for Feb. 19, and members who were not present are requested to note that no entry forms will be sent out, but all birds will be entered upon arrival at the hall, which must not be later than 7.30 p.m. It was agreed to ask Mr. Shepherd to judge. Two new members were elected—Mrs. Jeffrey and Mr. Piggins.—H. F. Bowring, Hon. Sec.

BURNLEY.

Meeting held Jan. 13, at the Star Inn, Church Street, Burnley. Mr. A. E. Barwise, chair, with a good turn up of members. Mr. J. Moorhouse was appointed vice-chairman in place of Mr. Spencer, who has taken on the duty of treasurer. Mr. Towler read his report of the Rochdale Amalgamated Soc., and it was decided by a large majority not to join same. Proposed that we have a judging competition on Jan. 28; 3 prizes, and 3d. entry. Other competitions were proposed, such as lecture on experiences on keeping birds, and buying birds, as a cash prize has been offered by Mr. Spencer for best lecture. Several inquiries having been made by me, I would be obliged if fanciers would note that this society has no connection whatever with any other society in Burnley. Fanciers wishing to join, please apply for particulars to either W. H. Spencer, 85, Athol Street, Burnley, or the sec., Mr. G. Whittaker, 18, Sandhurst Street, Burnley.—G. Whittaker, Sec.

Who is the Champion

Exhibitor of Yorkshires? My winnings each season for the past five years have far exceeded any other exhibitors. Again winning the National Green Marked Y.C.C. Tencuinea Trophy and Gold Medal for 1913-14, also the Y.C.C. Challenge Cup, 1913-14, in addition to several Diplomas for best Yorkshire at Sunderland, Scottish National, etc., etc., and over 70 firsts at all the leading shows, a record that cannot be approached by any other exhibitor. In addition to above I have bred and sold over 100 winners to my customers each season. This is not empty bounce, but a few solid facts that cannot be denied. Another fact I would like to mention. I have sold hundreds of birds during the past few years through "C.B." deposit system, and never had a single deposit to return. What better proof can I give of the class of birds I breed and sell? I have still a fine stock for sale, including several winners, that for length, type, and quality I defy competition, and at prices to suit all. Pairs, mated personally by me, not haphazard, to breed big winners, at 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair, in clears, ticked, or marked. All cocks on full song, and every bird cold room bred and kept, and in the pink of condition. Odd cocks from 6/- each. Hens from 4/- each. Travelling cages 3d. extra. I cordially invite you to come and see them, and remember that my rooms are acknowledged by all as the finest in the Fancy. Or please state wants, and I will send any bird on seven days' approval, at my sole risk, either on receipt of cash, or deposit system, with pleasure. Easy payments arranged to suit the convenience of any genuine fancier. Price list containing scores of recent testimonials, post free. Correspondence a pleasure: L. Dykes, Reliable Aviaries, Shann-st., Bolton Woods, Bradford.

YORKSHIRE BREEDERS' SOCIETY

Buy from the breeders whose birds are bred from the best strains; cocks from 6/-, hens from 4/-; cash or deposit; seven day's approval; easy terms: Secretary, 15, Dalton-ter., Manningham, Bradford. (1233)

H. H. TOWERS

For business reasons must reduce stock at once; cocks, 6/6 to 10/-, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, and upwards; hens, similar prices; good matched pairs, from 12/6 upwards; birds suitable for exhibition or stock to suit all; this strain is one of the best in the Fancy, as proved at Manchester, Cardiff, Sheffield, Bradford National, etc.; write at once to: Glusburn, nr. Keighley.

L. C. CASEY

Breeder and Exhibitor of high class Yorkshires; a few for sale at 12/- per pair and upwards; all from my own strain that has won cups and numerous prizes and medals; and I have won at all the leading shows during 1913, so I think I have one of the finest strains in the world; satisfaction guaranteed: 7, Plumsoll-st., East Bowling, Bradford.

OGDEN BROS.

again top of the tree, winning the Yorkshire Union competition, also winning outright the Yorkshire challenge trophy 1913, and other trophies too numerous to describe. Our winnings during the last 10 years have never been accomplished by any other exhibitor. Note, the above competitions have been won with birds of our own breeding, so write direct to the most reliable strain in the world for producing winners. For proof read the following—just one out of thousands filed for inspection; can be seen any day:—"2, Barlow Street, Bacup.—Dear Sirs, I am glad to tell you that the two Yorkshire cock you sent me took two 1st prizes on Saturday, and special for best bird in show, also extra prize for best cock. Thanking you for the wonderful value you have sent me.—Truly, E. E. Humphries." We guarantee same strain as our winners at 10/6, 15/6, 21/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/-, 60/- per pair. Odd cocks or hens proportionate. All birds sent seven days' approval at our risk; inspection invited: Dudley Hill, Bradford.

SUTCLIFFE & SON FOR VALUE

Our winnings for twenty five years exceed those of any other firm, winning the Cinnamon Marked Competition nine years, also winners of the Green Mark Competition, 1910 and 1911, and Championship Diploma at Bradford National, 1913; extra good pairs, same strain as above, from 20/- to 50/- a pair; can be seen any time on receipt of a postcard; if you want to breed winners buy direct from the breeders; stamp for reply; approval: 1, Back Kitson-st., Windhill, and 21, Valley-rd., Shipley, Yorks. (1209)

COOPER & SON

CAN ANYTHING

"Kensington, Jan. 24th, 1911.—The bird arrived safely, and is quite satisfactory, as your birds always are."

AMATEURS and NOVICES

On the look out for something useful, and that will prove profitable to breed from with ordinary luck, should have a pair of any of the following on approval; all scientifically matched to produce best results. Prize-bred Norwich, Yorkshires, Border Fancies, or Hartz Mountain Rollers, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-; all cocks guaranteed on song; Crests, 15/-, 20/-, 30/-, 40/-; travelling cages, 3d.; single breeding cages, 2/6; double ditto, 3/6 and 5/- each—all fitted ready for immediate starting, with all utensils complete.

"I CONSIDER IT A SPLENDID BOOK."

112, Edwards Road, Erdington, Birmingham.

Dear Sir,—I consider "Our Canaries" a splendid book, just the thing we have been in want of to make the breeding of Canaries quite successful for new beginners. It is honestly worth the money you ask for it, and I consider everybody that keeps birds ought not to be without the book.

I am confident I shall have a more successful year next year than I have had this season, thanks to your splendid book.

I remain, Yours faithfully,
A. W. PYATT.

MORE SUCCESS AND PROFITS FOR YOU.

Make money and win prizes and honours with your Canaries. This volume tells you how to breed, rear, feed, and show prize birds.

The big prize-winners of to-day once knew less than you know at this very minute. They learnt the secret of right methods after years of experiment and many failures. But why lose years and years of opportunities in gaining similar experience when you can get it at once for a first payment of only 1/-.

In one brief hour you can gain knowledge by reading "Our Canaries" that would otherwise take years of your life to acquire. Every page in "Our Canaries" is a short cut to successful money making breeding, rearing, and showing.

Fill up the coupon you will find at the foot of this page and post it to-day. By return you will receive a handsome 20-page Illustrated Brochure that will tell you all about this unique 5lb. weight volume, the splendid 133 illustrations, and the beautiful 32 Coloured Plates (true to life). It shows you how you can have this magnificent volume at once by a first payment of only 12 pence, the balance payable at the rate of about 1d. a day.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit system should be insisted upon

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient, plus the extra postage incurred, has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5. A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

THE OUTSTANDING VALUE OF 'CANARIES HYBRIDS and CAGE BIRDS'

WRITTEN BY MR. JOHN ROBSON. EDITED BY MR. S. H. LEWER (Feathered World.)

The outstanding value of this work lies in its immense practicality: it satisfies on every point. You learn how to breed, rear, and bring to perfection every kind of Canary. In the 41 chapters all Canary points are dealt with in graphic, clear, understandable language. It is up-to-date in its methods, and by relying on its advice, thousands of working-men have becomo successful Canary rearers and exhibitors, have secured top prizes, and made satisfying incomes out of their hobby. You may do so, too.

That is because the book is thorough and practical, and common-sense. It gives the advice of experienced experts. It does not leave out just those points a beginner wants to learn. It tells those secrets of the Fancy which make all the difference in success. There never was a book like it for completeness, for sound, sensible advice—it is the best work on Canaries ever produced. Remember, too, the book is profusely illustrated with colour plates, black and white reproductions and diagrams, etc.

THE SCOPE of the WORK IS IMMENSE.

THE WAVERLEY BOOK CO., Ltd., 7, OLD BAILEY, LONDON, E.C.

This Instructive Sectional Model of the CANARY is FREE.

FILL IN THE COUPON BELOW and get THE BOOK WHICH EXPLAINS.

This model will prove to be of lifelong use to the Canary lover. It instructs, guides, and helps at every step. It is printed in true-to-life colours, and the five distinct plates of which the model is composed, and the 105 named and numbered parts, gives accurate insight into and familiarity with the construction of every part of the CANARY.

To the man who means to succeed, nothing could be more enlightening as to the anatomy of the Canary.

The scientific and general names of the outer parts are all numbered and named, the make up of the skeleton and the constitution of the vascular system are also numbered and named, and further plates reveal in similar completeness all the internal organs, not only in natural colours but also in their true positions and relative sizes.

Altogether this unprecedented gift—which is neatly bound—is calculated to be of signal service to the Canary lover who is practical and enterprising, and is keen on keeping, or winning, a first place in the ranks of successful fanciers.

BIRD MEDICINES

Frank Ditchfield

LONDON ZOO.

Ditchfield's Bird Medicines have been used for over six years by most leading fanciers, and have been proved to be the most reliable. We have over 2,000 testimonials, and are receiving letters every day from fanciers, telling us of the marvellous results of our Bird Medicines. The proof of the value of these Medicines is given in the repeat orders and ever-increasing sales. In 1911 we sold nearly 1,000 bottles; in 1912 over 3,000 bottles; during 1913 we sold over 5,000 bottles. Fanciers we want a trial; we have confidence we can give you satisfaction. Every order is given prompt and personal attention. We do not send you one medicine to cure all diseases, but give every customer our careful attention, and where an extra bottle or Powders are required, we enclose them free. Our Medicines are perfectly safe, and can be given with confidence to all classes of cage birds.

SPECIAL OFFER.—If you have any birds you are relying upon for the coming breeding season that are not singing, or have gone into the soft moult, we guarantee you a perfect cure. We have the grandest medicine ever introduced for bringing birds into breeding condition. Mr. Hatton, Atherton, writes: "Your Medicine for soft moult is excellent stuff; it has cured me four birds in soft moult. They are now in full song." Mr. Fletcher, Chademoor: "Have used your Tonic Drops for 18 months, and they have never failed to do as advertised." Mr. W. Harris, Dorchester: "The effect of your Tonic Drops are marvellous." Major B. Horsbrough: "Your medicine is magnificent stuff." Mr. W. Reid, Greenock: "Your Medicine has been a great success, for both my birds are now singing." Mr. G. Chappell, New Mills: "Your Tonic Drops have worked wonders with my Roller, after being stopped singing from July until December. I was astonished at so quick result. He is now better than he was last year." Mr. A. Eddy, Penzance: "Your Tonic Drops have worked wonders on my sick birds. The buff cock was so bad that I was tempted to destroy him; to see him now is wonderful." A. Sammons, Southend-on-Sea: "You have got a genuine remedy, which no fancier should be without." B. Hutton, Holbeach: "I shall never be without your Revivo again; it's too valuable." A. Steel, Leicester: "Send two 1s. bottles Tonic Drops and Lung Tonic, I consider them to be by far the best Medicine advertised." Mr. A. Ezra, London: "I find your Tonic Drops very excellent." Mr. G. Dodd, Chesterfield: "Have used your medicines with good results." G. H. Wilkes, Oldham, Loc. Hon. Sec., "Cage Birds" League, writes: "Your Lung Tonic is splendid stuff. It has entirely cured my best Roller cock." Mr. Johnstone, Newcastle-on-Tyne: "Send one dozen more Powders for gastro-enteritis; I had good results with the last." Ditchfield's Tonic Drops are a guaranteed cure for soft moult, not singing, going light, feather plucking, diarrhœa, and inflammation of the bowels. In 7d., 1/1, 2/-, and 5/- bottles. We guarantee every customer perfect satisfaction, or return full money. For Bronchitis, Wheezing, and Hoarseness, get Ditchfield's special Lung Tonic. It is the grandest Medicine ever offered for chest and lung affections in cage birds. Also in 7d., 1/1, and 2/- bottles. For cases of Constitutional Weakness and Debility get Ditchfield's Famous Devivo. There is nothing to equal it for giving new life and vigour to the birds. As a pick-me-up for birds before and after showing, Revivo is absolutely unequalled. In 7d. and 1/1 bottles. Special Notice.—All our Medicines can be given in the drinking water, and the birds take them freely with marvellous results. When ordering Medicine, kindly mention for what complaint, as in some cases an extra bottle is required, which we enclose free. For the convenience of our customers in the country, and for those who wish to order Medicines on Sunday, kindly send postcard, we will send Medicines per return; the amount can be remitted by post when convenient. It is dangerous to delay; there are thousands of birds lost annually for want of proper treatment at the right time. As an advertisement, we will send two 7d. bottles of any of the above medicines for 1/-, three for 1/6, or two 1/1 bottles any kind for 1/9, three for 2/6. All medicines are sent, post free, per return. All bottles broken in transit replaced. Also two valuable Seed Recipes: How to Feed Linnets and Rollers for Song, give free to all Purchasers of our Medicines. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed.

SOFTBILLS: the smaller species; full information upon their proper feeding and management in captivity, is given by H. J. Fulljames in "Nutshell No. 25," which also deals with hand rearing, and describes the collection of ants' eggs, 2½d. post free, from: "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. (2d from agents; see list on another page).

EXTRAORDINARY massive, large cock Skylark, like Thrush, magnificently pencilled and spangled, fit for exhibition, the largest and loudest songster ever seen or heard, been in my possession since a nestling, fit for singing contest or shop attraction, 1/6; or with new joiner-made cage 4/-, including free my valuable feeding secret which keeps skylarks in full song ten months out of twelve. I have supplied more contest winners than anyone in England. Heaps of unsolicited testimonials to prove this. Same address 25 years. Money returned in full if not approved of: Wools, Cross-st., Dunstable. (1083)

SOFTBILL keepers, take expert advice before proceeding to buy and keep the larger species of Insectivorous birds. You will then have no trouble in keeping your pets in the best of health. This advice is offered in "Nutshell No. 26," by H. J. Fulljames. It is a wonderful little work, dealing with most varieties in a highly interesting and instructive manner. Foods and their preparation, and the various styles of cages also receive full attention. Can you breed Mealworms? This booklet tells you how. Post free, 2½d., from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Look at our list of agents; call on the nearest and get it for 2d.

JUST ARRIVED

On Sunday, Feb. 1st, I received the last consignment for this season of the real Siberian Goldfinches, Bullfinches and Siskins. These birds are all in magnificent trim, and consignment consists of 850 cock Goldfinches, 200 cock Bullfinches, 130 hen Bullfinches, 240 cock Siskins and 80 hen Siskins. (No Hawfinches or Linnets this time.) I guarantee all above to have come to me direct, and offer the sum of £100 to any person in the United Kingdom who can prove he ever saw one of them before myself. I advertise these birds as what they really are, viz., genuine Siberians, and not Russians palmed off as Siberians, and offer £100 to any dealer who can prove I have bought a single Russian bird during past season. I offer splendid Siberian cock Goldfinches in full song at 4/6 each, seven 24/6. Picked jonques for muling and showing in minor competition, 7/6 each. Superb exhibition specimens with full complement of show points, and guaranteed fit for keenest competition, 10/6 each. Magnificent Siberian cock Bullfinches, 5/- each, seven 28/-. Exhibition specimens, fit for keenest competition, 7/6 and 10/6 each. Siberian hen Bullfinches, 5/-, 7/6 and 10/6 each. Cock Siskins, in splendid condition, 2/6 each. Picked yellows, with full bib, 5/-; few extra good, 10/6 each. Hen Siskins, 1/- each. Few yellows, well laced, 1/6 each. Please note, all above are birds of last year's breeding, and being steady and well used to cage-life, should readily breed in captivity. All will be sent on approval on receipt of cash or CAGE BIRDS deposit system. Fullest satisfaction guaranteed or money fully refunded. I make no boast of the winners I have supplied, but merely mention that I have probably sold more winners than three men alive, including winners at Palace and Scottish National in Goldfinches, Bullfinches and Siskins. I never supply any person with my exhibition specimens unless he pays full retail price, so that every buyer has an equal chance of getting the finest specimens. Intending purchasers should place their orders without delay to avoid disappointment.
